HILARITA PROJECT FINANCING IS SET

Federal Action Assures 23 Remaining Families At Site Will Not Be Evicted

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has approved financing for the $2,682,000 Hilarita Housing Project in Tiburon, Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, announced yesterday.

Four years of delays, including an 18-month legal suit filed by neighbors objecting to the low and moderate income project, have resulted in more than $300,000 in increased construction costs, Mailliard said.

Tiburon regulations require that the city council review the project master plan again because more than three years have passed since it was approved.

In addition, a new ruling from the California attorney general's office holds that similar projects involving more than five buildings on one parcel constitute a subdivision and are subject to requirements for an environmental impact report.

There is some question, however, as to whether the city will require an impact statement before the Tiburon Ecumenical Association begins construciton.

HUD's action assures that the 23 remaining families still living in existing Hilarita apartments will not be evicted.

The Marin County Housing Authority this week approved a $15,785 contract for work to improve the existing apartments. Repairs will include new electrical wiring, revamping of hazardous stair wells and improvements to water heaters and vents in gas heaters.

The 23 families will receive first priority for sapce in the new project, which will offer 28 one-bedroom, 34 two-bedroom, 28 three-bedroom and 12 four-bedroom apartments.

Twenty per cent of the 102 units will be reserved for subsidized low income residents under the direction of the county housing authority, Mailliard said.

Nixon Says Gas Rationing May Not Be Necessary

Present Sacrifices Applauded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon told the American people today that gas rationing can be prevented and repeated his promise to seek an excess profits tax program to protect them from price-gouging by oil and other producers.

The President said that because of the peoples' sacrifices "we can prevent hardships this winter and prevent gas rationing this spring."

In a national radio broadcast, Nixon announced that when Congress returns to work Monday he would renew his request for a windfall profits tax to prevent "unconscionable profits" and would take other executive actions to curb "private profiteering at the expense of public sacrifices."

In his brief talk, Nixon reported that the consumption of gasoline, heating oil, natural gas and electricity have all been reduced substantially from last year's levels.

He said this progress was attributable to the public response to his plea 10 weeks ago that Americans accept "some sacrifice and inconvenience" to meet the crisis.

"I am glad to be able to report we are making solid progress in facing up to this job ...," he said. "It is your response to actions you take to save energy on a voluntary day-to-day basis that is now the most important success so far".

Partly as a result of "gasless Sundays," Nixon said, total comsumption of gasoline in the United States in December was nearly 9 per cent below expectations.

Nixon promised to do everything in his power to hold down oil prices and to prevent "private profiteering at the expense of public sacrifices."

Nixon said petroleum prices are rising because the cost of a barrel of crude oil has risen by $8 in the past five months. But he said it was "ridiculous" to believe that gasoline would rise to $1 a gallon.

Nixon said he has ordered the Federal Energy Office to conduct a thorough audit of major oil companies to "be sure that the information that we have is accurate and complete." He said that if the audit reports are not satisfactory he would ask the heads of the companies to meet with him in Washington.

The President said he also would order an examination of the international tax structure so that oil companies would not "be able to avail themselves of special tax laws abroad."

'THAT BEAUTIFUL TRUCK'

A pick-up truck balances between mud and deep water in the creek near Sir Francis Drake High School after the driver, hampered by wet pavement, lost control and spun into the channel yesterday about 10:30 a.m. It took a large semi-hauler to get the pick-up out of its precarious position as a bystander murmured "that beautiful truck." The driver, Michael E. Jenkins, 24, of San Anselmo, was not injured.

A Call To Expand Transit Service

The Marin County Transit District yesterday released a report calling for a major expansion of local bus service to put transit within walking distance of most Marin households by mid-1975.

The report, to be considered Monday during a special meeting of the transit district board at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center, proposes the purchase of 40 new buses at a cost of about $2 million.

In a letter accompanying the report, Assistant Gen. Mgr. Robert L. Harrison urged the board authorize him to seek federal funding immediately, begin work to place a property tax hike before voters in June and negotiate with the Golden Gate Bridge District and Metropolitan Transportation Commission for state transit funds.

His 22-page report says the expanded bus system could be operational by July 1975 if federal funding is acquired and voters approve a 20-cent increase to the current tax rate of 5-cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Besides the $2 million price tag for buses, Harrison estimated it would cost about $3.9 million to operate the fleet in 1975-76 when it would carry an estimated 6 million passengers.

In 1976-77, operating costs would jump to $4.3 million for about 10 million passengers to be served.

Fares of 25 cents per trip would offset operating costs about $1 million the first year and $1.9 million the second year, Harrison said. The property tax payer would subsidize the rest.

Major goal of the expansion is to put bus service within a five-minute walk of two out of every three homes in Marin. Current service is within walking distance of about half the homes.

The buses would operate from 6:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. with "High service" during weekday commute and midday hours and "reduced service" during weekends and evenings.

Areas which would receive service from the expanded system include east Novato along Olive Avenue, southwest Novato along Center Street and Vineyard Road, parts of central Novato and San Marin, Peacock Gap, Glenwood, Sun Valley, south San Rafael along D Street, Wolfe Grade in Greenbrae and Center Street in San Anselmo.

Improved service would be provided in Lucas Valley, Northgate Industrial Park, Terra Linda, Santa Venetia, Bret Harte , Sleepy Hollow, Strawberry, east Corte Madera, Marin General Hospital and Tamal Vista Drive in Corte Madera.

S. Vietnam Reports Battles With China

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnam said it fought land and sea battles with China today in a group of uninhabitated South China Sea islands to which they both lay claim. Two naval vessels—one from each side—were believed sunk.

A South Vietnamese gunboat with about 100 men and a Chinese warship usually carrying a crew of the same number were hit and "probably" sank, the Saigon command said. Another South Vietnamese vessel was reported damaged.

Chinese troops and South Vietnamese navy commandos enaged in a brief land clash in the chain—the Paracel Islands — that left two Vietnamese dead, the command said. Chinese casualties were unknown.

A 750-man Chinese batallion that landed on the 300-squareyard Duncan island in the Paracels was bombarded with three-inch guns from South Vietnamese destroyers and "could have suffered heavy casualties," the Saigon command reported.

In Washington, the State Department said it was "concerned" about reports of fighting, but a spokesman said, "We have no interest in the islands or in defending anybody's particular claim to them."

The clashes began when a Chinese boat opened fire on a

Speedy Action On Impeachment Is Sought By Republican Leader

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes today called on the House Judiciary Committee to hold limited hearings and vote promptly, yes or no, on a resolution to impeach President Nixon.

The Arizona congressman, who succeeded Vice President Gerald L. Ford as minority leader, said in a UPI Washington Window interview that the House would give the committee subpoena powers soon after it reconvened Monday for its 1974 session.

He suggested that a way would be found to give the House group access to information held by Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski if the Judiciary Committee limited its subpoena requests to what was "reasonable" and avoided what Rhodes labeled as the "shotgun" approach of the Senate Watergate Committee.

He said the Ervin Committee had fulfilled its function and ought to wind up its investigation.

A report by the liberal National Committee for an Effective Congress (NCEC) concerning impeachment suggested that the full House might vote for impeachment as the easy way out. "There is indeed fear in the land and fear in the House," the report, based on interviews with House members, said.

The committee explained its reasoning this way: "A 'no' vote is the definitive vote, the vote for final and ultimate ac-

Kissinger Extends Shuttle Diplomacy

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived in Jordan today in an effort to extend his shuttle diplomacy, which already achieved an accomodation between Egypt and Israel, to Israel's other Arab neighbors.

Kissinger's arrived from the Nile River resort city of Luxor where Kissinger spent the night. Kissinger was scheduled to hold talks with King Hussein at Aqaba before flying to Syria tomorrow.

Kissinger and his party were seen off at Luxor airport by Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi, who is scheduled to leave himself shortly for Moscow to brief the Soviet Union on the Israel-Egypt troop disengagement accord which Kissinger is now seeking to extend to other Mideast battle fronts.

Aiding Kissinger in his efforts was Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, who arrived in Syrian capital of Damascus today to mplain the troop disengagement pact for the Suez Canal front signed Friday to other Arab countries.

The agreement appeared to take hold today as the United Nationa Emergency Force headquarters in Cairo reported no cease-fire violations along the canal for the second straight day.

Before leaving for a meeting with Jordan's King Hussein at the southern Jordan coastal town of Aqaba, Kissinger toured ancient Egyptian monuments at the Nile town of Luxor. He spent 2 ½ hours looking over the famed valley of the kings on the west bank of the Nile, which contains the tombs of 62 rulers of ancient Egypt.

As Kissinger stood in front of two colossal statues of the 18th dynasty King Amenophis III which stand in the middle of green fields and were known to the Greeks as the Colossi of Memnon, a newsman asked

MARKET RUSH SCENE

Early-morning shoppers swarm to the meat department at United Market in San Rafael today, apparently anticipating a strike threatened by the Retail Clerks' Union for next week. The store opened 10 minutes early to accomodate a dozen customers lined up before 10 a.m. Fifteen minutes later, the market was filled, as it has been the past two days, the store manager reported. Union members have voted overwhelmingly to authorize a strike, which would affect most major Marin markets.

China Expells Five Soviet Diplomats Over Espionage

HONG KONG (UPI) — China today expelled five Soviet diplomats and sent a strongly worded protest note to the Kremlin over alleged espionage activities of the Soviet embassy staff in Peking' the New China News Agency said.

The official news agency broadcast, monitored in Hong Kong, said first secretary V.I. Marchenko and his wife, third secretary U.A. Semenov and his wife and A.A. Kolosov, interpreter of the office of the Soviet military attache, were declared unwanted persons after they were caught while engaged in espionage by Chinese public security personnel and militiamen.

NCNA said the protest note was sent to Soviet ambassador to China V.S. Talstikov this morning and the Soviet diplomats left China in the afternoon.

"On the evening of Jan. 15, 1974, they made secret contact with Soviet-sent agent...in the outskirts of Peking, handing over and receiving intelligence, counter-revolutionary documents, radio transmitter and receiver, communication timetable, forged border passes," the agency said.

Marin Rainfall Is Now Trailing 1973 Figures

A Pacific storm dumped moderate rain throughout Marin yesterday and this morning, but more wet stuff may be on the way.

The National Weather Service reported a 30 per cent chance of rain tonight, increasing to 60 per cent by tomorrow with southeasterly winds.

Yesterday was the first day this rainy season that rainfall fell behind the total for last year. Marin has absorbed 37.54 inches this year compared to 38.39 last year.

Over the past 24 hours, San Rafael reported .21 of an inch, .25 fell at Lake Lagunitas and .12 in Sausalito.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Mills Suggests Resignation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., says that if the House Judiciary Committee recommends impeachment of President Nixon, he would urge Nixon to resign.

Mills

If necessary to convince Nixon to resign, Mills said yesterday, "I would sponsor legislation granting him immunity from any prosecution of crime that he may have committed, if he has committed any."

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said that while he was not now urging Nixon to resign, he felt it probably would be in the country's best interest if he did so.

"Under the circumstances, I would have to say that I think we would all be better off with Jerry Ford as President," Mills said.

But if an impeachment resolution was approved by the Judiciary Committee, "I think it would be much better for the President to consider resigning rather than put the country into the greatest schism since the Civil War."

Fire Kills Seven

TORBAY, Nfld. (UPI) — Seven brothers and sisters, aged 2 to 14, died early today as fire raged through their home.

The children's parents and a 13-year-old brother escaped from the fire by jumping from a second-story window, officials of the St. John's Fire Department reported. They were in satisfactory condition in St. John's General Hospital.

Undergoes Surgery

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, said yesterday a tumor was removed from his colon in an operation earlier this month at Bethesda, Md.

"I think so," Mailliard answered when asked if the tumor was cancerous.

The 55-year-old Republican lawmaker nominated by President Nixon recently to be the U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States.

Mailliard said he entered Bethesda Naval Hospital Jan. 3 and stayed seven days.

Decision Soon

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger says he will announce Wednesday whether he will see reelection or run for the Republican nomination for governor.

Younger, who has frequently said he is having difficulty raising campaign money in an election year following Watergate disclosures, was reported yesterday by the Los Angeles Times to have decided firmly to seek a second term as attorney general.

Asked about the report, Younger avoided a direct answer but told newsmen, "I have made a decision."

Capote III

PALM SPRINGS (UPI) — Writer Truman Capote is resting here, and will be unable to fulfill his contract to cover the mass murder trial of Elmer Wayne Henley in Houston, it was reported yesterday.

Capote, who wrote the best selling "In Cold Blood" about a real life mass murder in Kansas, had planned to cover the trial for the Washington Post, which was going to syndicate his work to about 55 U.S. and foreign newspapers. A spokesman for the post writers group said Capote was being treated for a pulmonary condition and exhaustion and would be unable to write the series. Nurses at Desert Hospital here said Capote had been there, but was staying with a friend in the area, and was not hospitalized.

Resigns Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury Department announced the resignation yesterday of Assistant Treasury Secretary Edward L. Morgan, to "return to private life."

A former deputy counsel to President Nixon, Morgan, 35, worked in the areas of international trade law, minting and engraving operations and areas of drug control, in the Treasury. His resignation is effective Feb. 1.

Tied To Future

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — President Lon Nol said today the current offensive by Communist Khmer Rouge rebels will be decisive for the future of Camobida's seven million people.

The president, making his second nationwide radio broadcast since the rebel dry-season offensive began six weeks ago, spoke for 25 minutes in a somber tone about the war.

As he spoke, more deadly rockets whooshed into Phnom Penh from a point just five miles west of the capital, marking the fifth consecutive day the city has been shelled. One person was killed and at least 13 were wounded when two 122mm rockets hit the city.

To Drop Gold

ROME (UPI) — Finance ministers of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) agreed yesterday to drop gold as the base of the world monetary system and replace it with an average of 14 paper currencies.

But the ministers balked at a U.S. proposal to create a united front to deal with the oil crisis that threatens to wreck the balance of payments of major petroleum consuming nations as the price of oil climbs upward.

Finance ministers from IMF's steering committee of 20 nations issued a comminique agreeing in principle to use a "basket" of paper currencies in place of gold as the basis for the value of the new special drawing right.

Martin Son Is Freed On $5,000 Bond

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dean Martin Jr. "innocently acquired" machine guns and a 20mm antitank cannon as part of a teen-age hobby, and was trying to get rid of them when he sold two automatic weapons to a federal undercover agent, according to Martin's attorney.

Martin Jr., 22, son of the popular singer and entertainer, was arraigned yesterday on charges of illegally possessing seven machine guns, in violation of the federal gun control act.

He was freed on $5,000 bond. The comparitively low bond amount was suggested by Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Perry, who said Martin had been "extremely cooperative" since his arrest at his Beverly Hills home "and we think it is highly improbable he would attempt to flee."

He said there was no evidence "of any intent to sell the guns to any terrorist organization."

"He foolishly, but innocently acquired guns the government has restrictions on," as part of a weapons collection begun as a teen-age hobby, said Martin's attorney, Charles Weedman.

The Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms Bureau, a Treasury Department agency charged with enforcing federal gun control law, said Martin sold one of its undercover agents an American AR15 and a Russian AK47, two weapons that were widely used in the Vietnam war, for $625.

Martin, the agent said, offered to sell him an arsenal of other weapons for $2,125 that included a 20mm Belgian-made Pvakan cannon, about 14 feet long, that is used as an antitank or antiaircraft weapon, along with a two Belgian FN machine guns, a .45-caliber Thompson submachinegun, a British Sten gun and an M2 carine, a light submachine gun widely used by U.S. troops in World War II.

Weedman said he regarded the violations as "highly technical," involving failure to obtain the required—and rarely granted—federal license to possess a machine gun, and payment of a tax.

Sirica Wants Jury To Probe The Tape Mystery

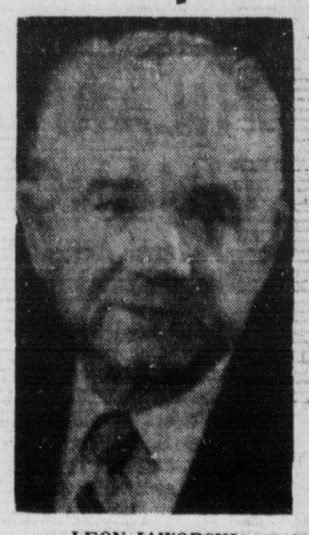

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Judge John Sirica, concluding there may have been "unlawful destruction of evidence" on some of President Nixon's Watergate tapes, has urged the matter be turned over to a grand jury for possible criminal indictments.

Sirica's suggestion, issued yesterday in a stunning finale to his lengthy investigation into the mystery shrouding some of the tapes, won a swift but cautiously worded response from Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

"It is our purpose, in conjunction with the FBI, to conduct an exhaustive investigation into all phases of the matter, and any relevant information will be referred to the grand jury," he said.

White House lawyers termed the recommendation "appropriate" but urged the public not be misled since the referral is neither a conviction nor an indictment.

"And it wuld be wrong to conclude on the basis of Judge Sirica's decision that any individual within the White House is guilty of impropriety or wrongdoing in the handling of the Watergate tapes." a White House statement said.

LEON JAWORSKI
A cautious response

Reading slowly from a prepared statement, Sirica said he was suspending his own investigation which began last October when the White House revealed two of the subpoenaed Watergate tapes did not exist.

On Nov. 21, it was further revealed that 18-½ minutes of a third subpoenaed tape had been obliterated by a loud buzz.

"It is the court's considered opinion that a distinct possibility of unlawful conduct on the part of one or more persons exists here," said Sirica, chief judge of the U.S. District Court in Washington. "A grand jury should now determine whether indictments are appropriate."

He stressed he was not accusing any individual of a specific crime.

"Rather, the court has concluded from the evidence now before it that the possibility of unlawful tampering with or suppression of evidence is sufficiently strong to merit grand jury scrutiny...

"The court hereby strongly recommends to the special prosecutor that he give immediate and serious consideration to opening a grand jury investigation into the possibility of unlawful destruction of evidence and any related offenses," Sirica said.

Just hours before, the attorney for Rose Mary Woods, Nixon's personal secretary, charged in court that White House lawyers had tried to pin the blame on his client for the 18-½-minute erasure at a private meeting with Sirica last Nov. 21.

"These lawyers for Miss Woods came down here and pleaded her guilty before these proceedings even started," said her attorney.

The marred tape is of a meeting Nixon had June 20, 1972 — just three days after the Watergate bugging arrests — with his then top aide, H.R. Haldeman. Haldeman's notes of that meeting show that discussion now obliterated centered on Watergate.

Collision In Mississippi River Claims Two Lives

PILOTTOWN, La. (UPI) — A tanker loaded with home heating oil and a Norwegian freighter collided near the mouth of the Mississippi River yesterday, killing at least two crewmen and spreading flames over one mile of the river's surface.

A spokesman for the U. S. Coast Guard said today two bodies were found and 14 other persons were missing. Fog hampered rescue and fire fighting efforts.

"They have about 50 feet of visibility," said Dave Cipra. "The fire's still real hot right now so it's a little hard for our ships to get in real close."

During the first hours of the accident, 65 persons were saved.

The tanker was the 155-foot Key Trader, loaded with 152,000 barrels of home heating oil, and the freighter was the 657-foot Norwegian ore ship Baune.

Coast Guard fire boats managed to break up most of the burning oil slick with high pressure water hoses, though for a time the river was engulfed in flames. The Baune was destroyed, its superstructure gutted, blackened and smoldering.

Cipra said the number of missing might shrink as more complete crew lists were made available by the owners of the ships.

Government In Belgium Collapses

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Socialist Premier Edmond Leburton's coalition government resigned today in a parliamentary dispute brought on by the oil crisis, a Royal palace spokesman said.

The spokesman said Leburton handed his government's resignation to King Baudouin who accepted it. He said the king asked Leburton to handle running affairs pending formation of a new cabinet.

Leburton, 58, said last night the crisis was caused by the collapse of Belgian-Iranian plans for building the $275 million Ibramco oil refinery in Belgium's Liege Province.

"We found the Ibramco project had created such divergences of views in the coalition that it justified a reappraisal of the government agreement," the premier told a news conference after an emergency cabinet session.

Leburton refused to take a stand on the desirability of new elections, but several Socialist cabinet ministers said a new parliamentary vote was the only way out of the crisis.

The call for new talks came after the Shah of Iran was quoted in a West German magazine as saying his nation would not export crude oil after 1985. The Arab oil nations, which set off the energy crisis by ordering cutbacks last October, have indicated a similar reluctance to use up their fuel resources.

Officers Sort Out $10,000 In Loot

LOOT — Inspector Charles Prandi of the Marin County Sheriff's Department views some of the $7,000 worth of loot seized in a Santa Venetia home of an alleged "fence."

Sheriff's department officers and men from two Marin police departments worked yesterday to sort out more than $10,000 in stolen merchandise recovered from two homes.

Estimates of the value of the goods — much of it believed stolen in Washington State and brought to Marin — could go as high as $17,000, deputies said.

Seized Thursday in a Santa Venetia home were tools, electronic equipment and cameras worth some $7,000, said Charles T. Prandi, juvenile officer for the sheriff's department.

He said officers, acting on a tip staked out a Santa Venetia apartment, where they found an escapee from a Sonoma County Drug Treatment Program. The man told of a large quantity of stolen goods at the nearby house, Prandi said.

A youth, believed to be a "fence," and his mother, who live in the house where the stolen goods were found, were cooperating with authorities in recovering more articles taken in burglaries, Prandi said.

Turned up so far were $3,000 worth of tools, plus rifles, stereos, tape machines, two television sets, a radio and $100 worth of suspected heroin, according to the officer.

In the second raid, Marin and San Francisco authorities went to a house at 353 Corte Madera Avenu, Corte Mardera, in search of a man wanted by Seattle police in connection with two rape cases.

There they arrested Dalus J. Weir, 29, booked him at San Francisco City Prison, then returned seeking clothing as evidence in the rape cases. While inside the house, they noticed sacks of jewelry and tape recorders, so they obtained a search warrant and went back Thursday.

Seized were about 60 pounds of assorted costume jewelry, cameras, tape recorders, pocket calculators, oriental rugs, tools, a slide projector and camera lenses.

Although no estimate of the total value was available, Sheriff's Inspector Kenneth L. Irving said much of the loot is thought to have been taken in about 40 Seattle area burglaries which resulted in losses of up to $100,000.

Sheriff's officers said much of the goods recovered from Weir's house is thought to have been taken from Marin homes, and plans will be announced for displaying the merchandise for viewing by local burglary victims.

The goods are believed to have been stolen in burglaries of Santa Venetia and Novato residences.

What Am I?

Often I am unrecognized - particularly in the very young.

I make the elderly suffer. So much, they may cut themselves off from family and friends . . . and they know the heartbreak of loneliness.

I rob more than 15 million Americans of much that is good. I undermine their confidence and eat away their social life.

I am equally hard on the rich and poor. I cause trouble on the job and in the home. Yet, few of those I attack do anything to fight me, because no-one wants to admit I exist.

I am a hearing problem. Early detection is important.

ABAG Approves Hikes In County, City Dues

I-J Special Report

BERKELEY — A 65 per cent increase in dues counties pay to the Association of Bay Area Governments was approved last night by the Association's executive committee.

Cities' dues will go up 25 per cen over this current levels under the budget approved Thursday night. It will go to ABAG's general assembly on Feb. 21.

The $1,577,000 spending plan proposed for next fiscal year is $53,550 higher than the current budget. A 25 per cent cut expected in planning funds from the federal government was blamed for the dues hike.

The committee dropped an earlier proposal that would have levied a flat 44 per cent dues hike on both cities and counties.

Proposed dues, with current figures in parentheses, are: Marin County, $12,234 ($7,500); Belvedere, $244 ($222); Corte Madera, $534 ($458); Larkspur, $713 ($545); Mill Valley, $755 ($639); Novato, $1,811 ($1,408); Ross $251 ($227); San Anselmo, $750, ($635); San Rafael, $2,260 ($1,671); Sausalito, $416 ($361), and Tiburon, $417 ($363).

In Southern Sonoma County, the figures are: Cotati, $234 ($65); Petaluma, $1,559 ($1,155), and Rohnert Park, $536 ($292). The County of Sonoma does not belong to ABAG.

Marriage Of Couple Dissolved

The marriage of James A. Collins, 49, former superintendent of the Mill Valley School District, and his wife, Mary E., has been dissolved in Marin Superior Court.

Mrs. Collins cited irreconsilable differences in filing for dissolution of the 13-year marriage.

She was granted $350 a month support for the couple's one child, Christopher John, 12, and title to the family home at 175 Stanford Avenue, Tamalpais Valley.

According to the petition, the Collins were married Aug. 6, 1959, in Juarez, Mexico, and separated July 1, 1972.

Collins became superintendent of the school district in 1967 but stepped down last July to return to classroom teaching.

CRASHING FINALE TO STORM

Workmen from Morrison Tree Experts chop up not one but two large elms that fell yesterday in front of a Spanish-style home on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Ross. The woodchoppers were called to the scene early in the morning to clear up the debris from one fallen tree at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert F. Hickey, but as they ate lunch, a second 70-foot elm plummeted to the ground hitting both their truck and the chipper. The fallen trees also did some damage to the tiled roof.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, light air pollution.
San Jose, clean air.
Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

him, "Does this make you forget about politics?"

"Well, it puts it all in perspective," Kissinger replied.

Jordan did not participate in the 1973 Middle East war but the western half of the kingdom has been occupied by Israel since an earlier war in 1967.

On Sunday, Kissinger is scheduled to fly on on Syria to try to work out a similar troop disengagement accord on the Golan Heights front. Sadat met with Syrian President Hafez Assad today and then was to continue his journey to Kuwait. He has already been in Saudi Arabia.

Political sources said Sadat's talks with the Syrian president could have an important bearing on the success of Kissinger's mission.

In Jerusalem, Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Allon of Israel said Kissinger may set up a round of negotiations between Israel and Syria on troop disengagement similar to the talks that produced an agreement with Egypt.

'Mock House' Votes For Impeachment

A "mock House of Representatives" of senior government students at San Rafael High School yesterday voted to impeach President Nixon after day-long hearings.

Principal Robert Royle did not have the final tally today on the vote but said it was one vote more than the two-thirds needed to impeach.

In a real impeachment action, the matter would go to the Senate after a vote to impeach in the House of Representatives.

Royle said the close vote was indicative of split feelings among students at the high school. He added students "went overwhelmingly for Nixon" when a straw vote was taken in 1972 before the last presidential election.

About 120 students from four classes made up the voting group.

"They carried out the procedures that Congress would have to go through to impeach or not," Royle said. "They subpoenaed witnesses and interrogated persons as would be done on the nationaw level."

Growth Plan Policy Will Be Studied

The county's proposed growth control ordinance will be reviwed Monday at 9 a.m. by the Marin County Planning Commission.

The commission, meeting at Civic Center, will be asked by the county planning department to recommend adoption of the ordinance by county supervisors.

The ordiannce proposes that special "area review boards" be set up in various parts of the county to allocate a limited number of building permits each year.

The allocations, granted on the basis of what social and environmental amenities are offered in residential projects, would vary from area to area depending on general plan growth projections.

Planning Director Werner von Gundell recommended yesterday the ordinance be modified to provide separate allocation requirements and quotas for large and small developments.

(A growth control ordinance in the city of Petaluma was declared unconstitutional Thursday by a federal judge in San Francisco.)

quittal. The 'yes' vote, both in the Judiciary Committee and in the House, merely passes the buck on to another body (the Senate) and House members will be able to interpret their vote in a number of ways."

Rhodes said his talks with constituents between sessions convinced him that the American people "wish a decision to be made almost immediately and then we'd forget the whole tting and move on to the business of running the country."

Two Hurt In Shoreline Crash

Two Stinson Beach teen-agers were injured last night when their car skidded off twisting Shoreline Highway and landed on its roof.

Driver Nicholas C. Cecil, 16, of 316 Seadrift Road, suffered facial injuries and was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital.

According to the California Highway Patrol, the youths' northbound car was traveling too fast to negotiate a curve near Stinson Beach at 9:40 p.m.

BATTLES

South Vietnamese craft, the Saigon command said.

The Vietnamese navy task force pulled back after one of its boats was sunk by a Styx radar-guided missle, Saigon said, with the two navies reported about six miles from each other late Saturday afternoon.

Saigon said the Chinese had sent at least 11 vessels to the island group in addition to the 750 ground troops. South Vietnam had a garrison of militiamen and a weather station on the islands prior to the clash.

The two ships apparently sunk were said to be 640-ton former American Navy coastal patrol escorts.

Peking's New China News Agency did not mention a clash on its regular 9 p.m. broadcast monitored in Hong Kong.

The current interest in the Paracels — a desolate archipelago about 200 miles east of the South Vietnam's central coast and midway between it and China's Hainan island— could be explained by possible oil deposits under the South China Sea. South Vietnam has let oil exploration contracts south of the island group.

South Vietnam's foreign ministry called the battles a "brutal act of war by Communist China against an independent and sovereign nation" that "once again point to the expansionist and imperialistic policy consistently pursued by Communist China, as illustrated by its annexation of Tibet, invasion of Korea and attacks against India."

The statement warned: "In the course of their history, the Vietnamese people have defeated many foreign aggressors."

The current developments began with a dispatch issued by the New China News Agency Jan. 12 stating China's historic claim to the islands. The South Vietnamese foreign ministry responded that the islands had belonged to Vietnam since 1802.

South Vietnam moved a small naval task force in and China countered by sending back two gunboats.

Nationalist China today reasserted its claim to the Paracels, but official sources said Taipei had no plans to send troops there.

IN MEMORIAM

NETTRO, ARTHUR "JIM" In loving memory of our beloved husband and father, ARTHUR "JIM" NETTRO, who passed away JANUARY 20, 1963.

We often sit in silence
No eyes may see us weep;
But forever in our aching hearts,
His memory we will keep.
The call was short, the shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear;
Good took him home, it was his will,
But in our hearts he liveth still.
'Tis sweet to know we'll meet again,
Where parting is no more;
And that the one we truly loved,
Has only gone before.
The flowers we lay upon his grave
May wither and decay;
But love for him who sleeps beneath,
Will never fade away.

Mill Valley Wants Simpler Plan

Mill Valley's general plan consulting firm has come up with an extensive report on what might be included in the city's final general plan, but a citizens advisory committee has asked the firm to go back to the drawing board and write a simple set of goals for it to study first.

Planning Director Tom W. Newton said that the 40-member citizens advisory committee on the general plan told Sedway-Cooke of San Francisco that the 32-page report had too many options in it for them to choose among at this point.

The members asked the firm, represented by Jeffrey Grote, to write a list of goals for the general plan first and said they would study his more complicated report in a few months.

The report is divided into sections dealing with open space, housing and commercial development, environmental quality and circulation. It describes what the community's biggest problems are in each of these areas and then proposes several solutions for each one.

According to the planners, Mill Valley is changing from a stable, family-oriented community to a more mobile one "characterized by more affluent households, usually childless, and single persons living in household groups."

High property values and taxes are forcing out lower and moderate income residents, and there has been an influx of chain stores and tourist-oriented business, according to the report.

If the city wants to retain its present population, says the report, it may have to encourage more townhouse and apartment style dwellings, and "mother-in-law" apartments in existing single family areas.

If the city wants to get even more moderate and low income residents than are presently living there, it will have to seek the building of public housing, according to the report.

To maintain more resident-attracting retail services, the report suggests that the city may have to limit the total floor space given to tourist-oriented stores and restrict parking areas.

The report also notes that the city will have to choose between having a single city center, in Lytton Square or along its marshlands, or having multiple centers in several city areas.

The report suggests that traffic congestion can be untangled by repatterning the circulation system to make Miller Avenue the primary city road and de-emphasizing East Blithedale Avenue for heavy traffic.

The report also suggests providing more commuter parking and an around-the-town transit system.

An extensive list is also given of undeveloped lands which should be considered for possible permanent preservation including: Blithedale Ridge and Warner Canyon, East Corte Madera Ridge, Kite Hill, Alto Hill, Fern Canyon, Middle Ridge and Blithedale Canyon, Cascade Canyon and several areas along the Mill Valley marshlands.

New Welfare Plan Adds Paper Work

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Nine parttime employees have been added to the state payroll to answer complaints since the federal government took over welfare programs for the aged, blind and disabled.

Phillip Newlin, chief deputy director of the state Social Welfare department, said yesterday the part-time employees have been added to the regular 14-person "communications staff" to handle increased complaints and questions from recipients.

An estimated 30,000 Californians failed to receive their checks on time Jan. 2 and flooded local and federal offices with protest. Some of these calls began finding their way back to the state, which no longer is responsible for sending checks.

The employees were added since the federal Social Security Administration took over making payments to 500,000 aged, blind and disabled recipients.

Newlin said the department's "communications unit," which has offices in Sacramento, Los Angeles and San Francisco, received some 500 complaints and inquiries since Jan. 3, most of them coming during the week of Jan. 7-11.

Most of the complaints, according to Newlin, whether written or telephoned, were complicated and required time to solve or answer.

"By the time people got to us they were pretty excited," Newlin said, noting that many had been met with recorded messages or busy telephone numbers.

It is costing the state about $1,500 per week to employ the additional complaint-takers, Newlin said. They will remain on the staff until after next month's federal checks come to the aged, blind and disabled.

He said if the checks are made out accurately the number of complaints should decrease at the state level. Then the communications staff could be trimmed to its normal size.

He said the complaints varied from the number of checks they received to no check at all.

One woman complained she didn't like the city that her check was being mailed from, Birmingham, Ala. She asked state welfare workers if the next one could come from a northern city.

Vocational Counseling Service May Be Springboard To Better Things

By JOAN LISETOR

Marin County has a multitude of natural resources — Mount Tamalpais, Point Reyes National Seashore, Samuel P. Taylor Park, Muir Woods, Angel Island, the Golden Gate Bridge — and women.

A great portion of the female population in Marin is an untapped reservoir of abilities and talents.

The women range from young college graduates to the housewife who has never held a paying job. Often these women are unaware of their abilities and talents and need guidance in the form of career counseling.

Little help in the area was available for women until last fall when Sheila Butler of San Rafael, Anne Kracha of Novato and Sarah Levine of Tiburon opened the Kentfield office of Vocational Counseling Services for Women.

THE SERVICE is designed for women who are returning to work, those interested in improving career opportunities, entering the labor market for the first time or exploring educational opportunities leading to productive employment.

The majority of the counselors' clients are women in their 40s and 50s; many are newly divorced and need a job both for the income and the self esteem.

The counselors hope to reach the middle class housewife in her middle years who is having an identity crisis because she doesn't know what to do besides being a housewife and mother. The idea is to focus on a specific job goal in a field in which the woman shows interest and aptitude and where there are job opportunities.

Good areas of employment for women currently are in finance, real estate, banking, insurance and the para medical fields, according to the counselors. Pressure from the women's movement is increasing the number of women being hired as management trainees, and banks are beginning to promote women from within.

The counselors see secretarial work as a dead end job, and many of their clients are secretaries unhappy in their jobs.

If a woman wants to move up in a corporation she has to open the door herself, because an employer rarely comes to a woman with an offer of a management position, Mrs. Levene said. One exception is in the television field, where women got a foot in the door by doing weather reports and are now doing news and even sports on some local stations.

THE THIRD step in the counseling service is a course in job seeking skills, which covers job interviewing, application forms and resumes. Miss Kracha, who runs the course, said that 92 per cent of the people do not know how to fill out an application and 87 per cent do not know how to act in an interview. Using video tape techniques the person can see and hear how they looked in a mock interview. A person is ready to go after a job when her liabilities have been turned into assets and she is given the confidence to sell herself, she said.

A job is not always the solution to the problem of low self esteem, but it is a certain step toward acquiring the confidence that so many women lack.

Students See Different Side — Parenting

By KAREN PETERSON

"Kids my age just want to make it better so that things will really come out happy ever after."

Kerry O'Regan, a senior at Terra Linda High School, was talking about the family and her efforts now to learn about child development and human interaction through the pilot program on parenting, "Exploring Childhood."

Miss O'Regan was one of the guest speakers discussing the year-old program at Thursday's meeting of the 14th District Parent-Teacher Association, (Marin and Sonoma counties.) Other guests at the meeting at the Petaluma Schools Administration Building were Jeff Price, also of Terra Linda; program teacher Maria Martin; Ronn Briggs and Mara Mamut of Redwood High School; their teacher, Margaret Bruce, and Mrs. Fred Bennett, California State P-TA director of parent education.

There's more emphasis on completing a driver education course than there is on learning what it's like to be a parent, said Mrs. Bennett. Education for parenthood, she said, is often too little and too late.

The program was piloted last year in 500 junior and senior high schools across the country, including Redwood and Terra Linda in Marin, through the support of the Office of Child Development and the National Institute of Mental Health.

Listed as an elective at both schools, the class is open to sophomore, junior and senior students, and must have a 15 per cent male enrollment to benefit from the materials developed by the social studies program of the Education Development Center.

The students spend much of their time observing and working with children in day-care centers and nursery and elementary schools after basic instruction from reading and visual materials supplied by the center.

"The program can provide young people the knowledge and skills to become effective parents," said Mrs. Bennett, adding that statistics indicated that 85 per cent of the 210,000 girls, 18 and under, who had children in 1971 chose to keep them. "We should look to the schools to provide teens with the basic competencies," she said.

Students surveyed about the program, said Mrs. Bennett, listed a number of areas that should be covered in class including sequential aspects of growth, family planning and population growth, reproduction, individual differences, the effects of heredity and environment and human sexuality.

At Terra Linda, the 13 students involved in the program spend two days a week in the classroom and the rest of the week attend the nursery and elementary schools in their area, including Forest Meadows Development Center for mentally retarded children, said Mrs. Martin.

Miss O'Regan said she took the Great Books course at Dominican College last summer and now co-leads the third graders at St. Isabella's School in Terra Linda in discussions on their readings. She also spends some of her time with second graders, helping them with their classroom problems.

"If you think about it," she said of her experience in explaining math to a second grader, "it's hard to learn."

Price, a sophomore, said he enrolled because he had "six younger brothers and sisters and thought I'd be pretty good at it. I wanted to see other little kids to widen my horizons."

At Redwood, Mrs. Bruce said, some of the students in her class have part-time jobs because of their work at the schools. The advantages, other than possible employment, she said, include learning what their own parents contend with.

"They've never been in a parenting role before," she said of the students, "and they're much more sympathetic to you as parents."

Sophomore Briggs spends three days a week in classes and the rest of the time observing and working with the youngsters at the San Anselmo pre-school.

"They're interested in different areas of learning," he said, "... and each day is a new challenge. They begin to like us and work hard to please us. It's satisfying to see them respond to our efforts."

Miss Mamet, a junior, said her experiences at the Fairfax-San Anselmo Children's Center gave her the opportunity to see "what the whole thing involves." She also said it will be a beneficial learning experience if she decides to have her own children.

Both teachers hope to bring pre-schoolers on the campus in the future because of transportation difficulties and the small number of pre-schools in their area.

Mrs. Martin said that at present they are looking into using a room at the Dixie School, where four or five youngsters from a day care center could come in once a day for a couple of hours.

"It's a good feeling," said Miss O'Regan of her work at St. Isabella's, "because all the little kids need me ... and I realize that I need my mom like all the little kids need me."

ON THE AGENDA

Husband, Wife Team Will Give Excerpts From 'My Fair Lady'

Excerpts from "My Fair Lady" will be presented by actor Jack Aranson and soprano Claudia Cummings at the Outdoor Art Club guest tea at 2 p.m. Thursday at the clubhouse in Mill Valley.

The husband and wife team starred in the complete production in San Francisco last year, and have chosen selections from the musical for the program. Aranson, best known for his Shakespearean roles and such one-man shows as "Dylan Thomas" and "Moby Dick" made his musical comedy debut in "My Fair Lady." He is now appearing in "The Trial of James McNeill Whistler" in San Francisco.

In 1959 Miss Cummings was a Marin Music Chest scholarship winner. She is a graduate of California State University, San Francisco, where she majored in music. She has starred in operas and musical comedies, and performed with the San Francisco Symphony and the Los Angeles Philharmonic, and made her debut at Carnegie Hall in New York in 1972. She recently sang the title role in "Daughter of the Regiment" with the Seattle Opera Company.

Mmes. Roy A. Carlsen and Michael Amoroso are tea chairmen; Frank Pompei, Eugene Crawford, Willis Drury, Robert Andresen, William Bowen and Miss Audrey Lawsen, assistants; Mmes. John Rousch, Edward J. Smith, Kenyon Spalding and Warren S. McDonald, tea table hostesses; and John Gardiner, Hans Forrer and Earl F. Reinke, greeting committee.

"PHYSICAL EDUCATION in Action" is the theme of the program to be presented at the Tamalpais Valley School Parent-Teacher Association meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the school multipurpose room.

Katherine Kirkland, physical education coordinator for the early childhood education program at the school, will conduct the children through walking beam, tumbling and movement exploration exercises. Her students will also give a demonstration of baton twirling.

Fifth grade pupils will give a program of folk and square dances under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Jeanne Streckfus.

Mrs. Iva Pace is P-TA program chairman.

Tamalpais Valley School is the first school in the Mill Valley District to have the early childhood education program, funded by the state.

LOCH LOMOND Yacht Club will have a dinner dance tonight honoring the new commodore Eric Nelson, and the other officers and the retiring commodore Jim Howard and his staff at the clubhouse in San Rafael.

The women of the club, headed by Mmes. Stan Leetz and Eric Nelson, will decorate the clubhouse in blue and green official burgee colors of the club for the installation party.

LAWYERS' WIVES of Marin will hear Sgt. David Jones of the San Rafael Police Department speak on the 459 project, a burglary protection program sponsored by the Criminal Justice Planning Agency, at a luncheon Wednesday.

The program will be held in the Monterey Room of the Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club. A social hour will begin at 11:30 a.m. with luncheon scheduled at 12:15 p.m. followed by the program.

Metric System Made Simple

Arthur Peg Bracken of Bolinas has considered the ramifications of switching to the metric system in the February issue of Family Circle magazine.

Her personal dimensions of 36-26-36 translate into a "perfect 625-500-625 millimeters," which Mrs. Bracken comments, "Sounds more like specifications for a silo."

Mrs. Bracken, author of several cookbooks, said she has some difficulties visualizing the gram. Knowing that it was 1/28th the weight of an ounce didn't seem to help any more than realizing that 28 Connecticuts could fit into one California. The breakthrough came when she found that 28 middle-sized raisins equal one ounce. Thus, one raisin equals one gram.

Childbirth Film Will Be Shown

"The Story of Eric," a Lamaze childbirth film, will be shown at 8 p.m. Jan. 29 at Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma. A certified Lamaze instructor and local obstetrician will answer questions after the film showing.

QUILTED CALICO AND PILGRIM

Designed for spring by Mary Ann Restivo for Pioggia, the cotton quilted coat dress (above) reverts to its reverse pattern for collar and cuff detailing. The red, white and navy Pilgrim dress (below) sports a huge self pussycat bow and oversized white collar. The long torso silhouette ends in a mass of hip stitched pleats. The dress is by Kappi, a division of Nat Kaplan, and the knit beret is from the Veaumont collection.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Several To Have Duties Of Models

By MOLLY MARIN

Marin's Junior League members have always participated heavily in the league's annual two-performance fashion show fund raiser, and this year is no exception.

Just announced as models for the March 15 luncheon and dinner shows, many are repeats from past sellout shows. Modeling from Marin will be Mmes. Blaine Boyden of Greenbrae, Roger Cook of Tiburon, Gene M. Edwards of Mill Valley, Lee M. Gammill Jr. of Mill Valley, McKenzie Moss of Kentfield, James E. Munson of Tiburon and Gilbert Powers of Ross. Alice Wiley Potts of Mill Valley will be the model for the special jewel sequence, now a tradition at the Junior League shows.

The show will be given at noon and again at 8:30 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the Fairmont Hotel.

A DEEP sea adventure awaits Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Corn of Belvedere when they fly to Hawaii Wednesday to begin a week of exploring lagoons and reefs around atolls of Micronesia. The Corns are avid shell collectors, and on this trip he plans also to experiment with undersea movie making, photographing World War II wrecks and exotic sea life as he dives with self-contained underwater breathing aparatus.

"I can free dive to 30 feet," added Wendy Corn," but I will just snorkel because I have not yet been certified for tank diving." The Corns are delighted with the remoteness of the islands they will visit — Truk, Palau, Ponape and Majuro. On one they will stay in a thatched hut with only lantern light.

The trip is the Corns' annual winter "sun break" and they will take their usual summer with their five children.

AFTER TWO months in Brazil and Peru, Mr. and Mrs. James Doody are home in Strawberry. A business consultant, Mr. Doody attended to business in Rio de Janeiro while his wife went sightseeing. The couple also visited Brasilia, the planned capital city which seemed sterile to them. Mrs. Doody said that the weather and beaches in Rio were excellent.

Highlight of their trip was a flight between snow-capped 22,000 foot peaks to the Peruvian Andes and a train, bus and foot jaunt to the Inca citadel, Machu Picchu.

DR. AND Mrs. Chester Noyes of Tiburon are sailing their yawl Blue Sea up and down the coast of Baja California on the first leisurely leg of an eight-month cruise which began last November. They spent Christmas in Acapulco and have visited Puerto Vallarta, reports Dottie Noyes' mother, Mrs. Sydney Ford of Sausalito. They have enjoyed good weather so far, she added.

The Noyeses had planned to host friends who will meet the Blue Sea along her route, and their son Dr. Peter Noyes of San Francisco and his wife plan to vacation aboard the Blue Sea.

Tentative plans call for the Blue Sea to pass through the Panama Canal and cruise the Caribbean before beginning her voyage up the Eastern seaboard to Maine, where the Noyeses plan to leave her in June and return to Marin.

BABY NEWS — The William McDuffies of San Rafael are grandparents of twin grandsons born Thursday in San Diego. Parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert McClenathan (Maureen McDuffie). And Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Edwards of San Rafael are parents of a new baby girl born in Woodland. Mrs. Edwards is the former Kristine F. Keithly.

MARINITES WHO will lead two of the new series of free Saturday afternoon tours at the De Young Museum in Golden Gate Park are Mrs. William Steen of Belvedere and Mrs. John E. James of Mill Valley. The series opens Jan. 26, and Mrs. Steen will lead the March 23 tour on the history of European furniture and Mrs. James will conduct the March 30 tour on the Chinese influence in Western art. Both women are docents at the museum. Tours are held at 1 p.m.

FOLLOWING THE Marin Symphony concert Tuesday evening a reception will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Stephens in Ross to honor Maestro and Mrs. Sandor Salgo and guest artist George Sakellariou and Mrs. Sakellariou.

The reception will be attended by concertmaster Charles Meacham and Mrs. Meacham, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Rinaldi, members of the Marin Symphony Association board of directors and officers of its auxiliary.

Shrunken Garment

A shrunken garment sometimes can be steamed and stretched back into shape. But usually it reverts to its shrunken dimensions upon hanging for several hours.

AGAINST GIMMICKRY

Party Planner's Tips For Success

Parties in the home are about 49 per cent food, setting and hosting and 51 per cent the guests themselves, international party planner Clive David told his A.M. lecture series audience yesterday at Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

"What the host and hostess project is what the party is," he said, adding that taste is individual — subdued or flamboyant — and whichever you are, chances are that your friends will have similar tastes.

He warned against gimmickry such as attempting an Hawaii luau or a Japanese temple theme if you have French Provincial or Colonial furniture. It comes out corny, he commented. David also warned the hostess to beware of etiquette books and magazines that tell how to entertain and behave.

"Seventy per cent is misinformation. Take it all with a pinch of salt," the English-born party architect said.

David, who counts the occasion of the state visit of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip to Nassau, a Madison Square Garden birthday party for President John F. Kennedy, a Venetian ball for the Jet Set and party for Golda Meir on Israel's 25th anniversary, among his party-giving credits, named some important ingredients in a home party.

KEEP THE cocktail time to 30 minutes and serve dinner promptly. Extending it to an hour or more means that nobody will have an appetite for dinner and the cost of liquor is great, he said. A half-hour is ample for socialability while guests are arriving, he said.

And if it is on a weeknight, don't start the party too early, he warned.

"About 7:30 p.m. is good. I get people there on time by telling them that the party starts at 7:30 but 'we're eating at 8 so please be there by 7:45'.

"And music is an absolute must. It fills the void — not vocal — but piano, guitar or zither recordings," he said. He reminded to keep the volume low and hide the stereo or tape deck behind draperies or under furniture, out of sight. The music helps fill that void when the first few guests arrive in the living room and provide a good background for the conversation, David said.

A party should be special and that means flowers, he said. "Realize that a room filled with people will look, so put a super arrangement where it can be seen," he suggested.

Lighting is very important, too, he emphasized. The designer Valentino once told him prior to the Venetian Costume Ball he planned, "Young man, if I don't look good and the lighting is bad, you're ruined."

IF THERE are dark corner so that you can't see what you are eating or there is an 150 watt bulb on in a lamp over the sofa it is disturbing, he said. He recommended having all the lights in the room put on dimmers so that amount of light can be adjusted. Then put pretty candles, non-scented, on the mantle and solid places around the edge of the room, lighting them and turning electric lighting to the same level.

CLIVE DAVID
Party planner

"This gives the room a wash of light and makes people look fine."

The menu should not be involved if the host and hostess do not have help, David said. He cited one party, a small home dinner, which began with an excellent cream of potato-leek soup, featured breast of veal basted with Grand Marnier, a good vegetable, salad and dessert. He suggested light desserts served elegantly after a filling meal. In place of a birthday cake and ice cream, he served a tray lined with candles and laden with crystal bowls of fruits.

After dinner serve the coffee and liqueurs in the living room or area where you want the guests to be after the meal. This helps keep the men from separating from the women and going into the den, he said.

GAMES ARE not good after dinner, he said, partly because some people hate to lose. "Conversation is the greatest thing." And when it is time for guests to leave, have a close friend primed to stand up, look at his watch, exclaim on the lateness of the hour and begin to leave, David suggested.

The party architect, who said that this benefit parties have raised some $8 to $10 million for charities, suggested involving young people in benefit-planning to give a sellout rock concert for fund-raising.

"And let them be active, supervised by you."

One of the big ideas for fund-raising in the next three years is the American Bicentennial theme, David said.

"Plan a triple header, with the big one in 1976, but start now. Keep some money from the first year as seed money for the next ones," he advised.

Marriage Without Love? Be Sure Before Deciding To Break Tie

RAP:

I'm married and have a little girl, and I want to get a divorce, but I don't want to hurt my husband Jimmy.

It's not his fault, it's mine, although I think he might feel trapped, too. Up until I turned 19 I led a very sheltered life. Then I left home and went wild for six months. You see, I didn't know how to act, as I'd never had a date while living at home.

Jimmy's parents treated him like a baby too, and so when I got pregnant, that was his way out from under their domination. But he's a lot better sport than I am: He acts like he loves me, treats me like a queen, helps with the house and baby and works hard to support us. The trouble is I just can't love him.

Should I stay with the marriage for the baby's sake? — 20 AND CONFUSED

A marriage without love is like a lamppost without light: Its reason for being is gone. What's more you can smash up against it and hurt yourselves pretty bad. You might even hurt your daughter most of all.

I'd vote for divorce, if you're sure there's no love here. — SUE

DEAR 20:

But are you sure! Love isn't constant. Sometimes you think the light has burned out when it's only temporarily short-circuited.

A man who "treats you like a queen, helps with the house and baby,works hard to support you," and "acts like he loves you" probably isn't acting.

So why don't you stop acting like a spoiled child whose freedom has been curtailed, and give love a chance to grow?

Here's a suggestion: for six months, treat Jimmy as he treats you —with affection and consideration. At the end of that time, talk it out. If you still feel you have an empty marriage, then proceed to a lawyer.

Somehow, I don't believe you will choose for divorce. Please let us know, come July, if I'm right. — HELEN

DEAR RAP:

I'm another member of that aimless generation of '67 high school graduates. My problem is not related to the drug movement, but more a sense of abandonment. Our lives are as false as the history we were taught. Our success is that of Paul Revere's ride and the Battle of Bunker Hill —talked about, but non-existent. Yet, we don't give up. We look for new goals to reach. Columbus "discovered" an inhabited "new" land already visited hundreds of years earlier by the Norse. So shall we make our "discoveries."

History was not the only part of our education found lacking. The books we learned to read by are no longer acceptable. Even our math has been replaced. Yet, while the schools were using poor methods, the world was teaching us many lessons. We learned that on Thanksgiving you gave thanks because your cranberries were free from Aminotriazole. We were born into an era of "wonder drugs" and later saw others born in a world with Thalidomide disasters. We sensed the tension surrounding Powers and his U-2, but didn't really understand. Later, during the Cuban missile crises we were very much aware —and frightened.

We were weaned on politics with the election of JFK. His assassination cost us more than just a President. It would not be the last time we would be cheated by fate. We endured some very difficult times at a point in our development where we were protected by neither the innocence of those younger, nor the strength of those older.

So we shall remain, a "lost" generation, until we can find what we lost during our growing-up years — STILL SEARCHING

SEW SIMPLE

Put Winter Sewing Away Until Late Next Summer

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

Now that we're all back into sewing as therapy for that "after-the-holidays" letdown, I'd like to make a few suggestions. If you haven't completed your winter sewing, better pack it away and begin again late next summer in time for fall.

It's always more exciting to make something new when you know it will be part of your wardrobe for the coming season. Plan your clothing needs carefully for a successful ensemble look that fits well in everyone's life. It gives you the most versatility.

I've been asked by many of you who like my fashion tips if blazer jackets are out. No — they are more popular than ever with the top designers who set the fashion pace. They fit into the classic look of today and are perfect for spring and summer everywhere, lined or unlined, depending on your choice of fabric.

A blazer jacket can be worn from morning to night with pants, dresses and skirts both long and short. Watch for blazers in the most unexpected fabrics such as printed glazed chintz, embroidered denim and cotton eyelet.

DEAR EUNICE,

I like your column because you keep us informed on new fabrics and fashions, not just sewing techniques. I was intrigued by your column on "ultra-suede," and since I live in a fairly small town, no one has heard of it here. The salesgirl in our local fabric shop gave me two samples —she didn't know whether they were ultra-suede or a cotton suede cloth. How can we tell? Also, can this fabric be pressed nice and sharp? — MRS. J. K.

DEAR MRS. J.K.,

Neither of the samples you sent me are ultra-suede. Each roll of this fabulous fake-suede cloth will be clearly marked. If the mark has been removed, here are some of the clues. First, it is presently only produced in 36-inch widths. It has almost the same appearance on both sides, although one side does have more of a nap. It looks and feels exactly like a real suede skin. Lastly, the price is fairly expensive — ranging from $22-$25 per yard, depending on the area where you live.

The plus points do make up for the expense, however. First, it is machine washable and can be put in the dryer. It actually comes out more beautiful each and every time it is washed. It doesn't require lining and is very easy to work with.

As for pressing in a sharp crease or seam, it is press-able. However, you must remember that it is a substitute for leather — it looks like leather, feels like leather. Therefore, don't over-press it; instead, do a lot of top stitching to gain a flat, tailored look. If you press it too hard, you will destroy the expensive, beautiful look of suede.

If you have any further questions on this fabulous fabric, please write to me and I shall do another column on it.

DEAR EUNICE,

I'm making a shirtwaist dress out of a satin type Quiana knit. It is rather revealing and I would like to try to make it double, at least the bodice, but I can't figure out just how to go about this. Please help me. — MRS. J. H. T.

DEAR MRS. J. H. T.,

If the Quiana knit isn't too lightweight, you may decide to only make the bodice front double, although both front and back can be done very well.

As for the front bodice, since it is a shirtwaist with a button closing, you must place the fold line of the front (which is 5/8 inch beyond the center front) on the fold of your fabric. Instead of cutting the regular facing extension, your extension will go back to the side seam.

Your construction will be the same. Just baste the two layers of fabric together at the neck edges, shoulders, underarms, and lower edge of bodice, and proceed the same as if it were just one layer of fabric.

If you have cut the facing extension by error, just make a seam at the edge of the facing to the side seams. This is very popular with very expensive clothes and it's a nice courturier touch to add to your own dressy clothes. Please don't consider making the bodice double unless the fabric is very lightweight.

If you have questions about fitting a pattern, send for the booklet, "Your Pattern and You." Mail 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

ANTIQUES ARE not running out, says Russell Carrell, antiques dealer and entrepreneur of 20 annual shows, and predicts a big year for Shaker furniture to mark the Shakers' 200th anniversary of arrival in America. In the time of shortages, people may turn to antiques, he believes.

Antiques Provide Certain Silver Lining To Current Shortages Gloom

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The cloud of shortages has a silver lining for the antiques business.

More people will turn to collecting valuable old things even as they go without some of today's necessities.

"With all the other shortages we face, antiques are going to be more popular than ever," said Russell Carrell, an antiques dealer and entrepreneur of 20 antique shows held each year.

"THE MONEY is there," Carrell said. "People will spend it, spoil themselves." It's the reaction of — 'If I have to do without one thing, I'll make it up somewhere else.' "

Carrell said the antiques business had a boom during World War II for some of the same reasons — shortage of manufactured goods.

But then, buying often was a necessity because new furniture was scarce.

"World War II was when the business of antique shows really got a start," said Carrell, who came out of the Navy and opened an antiques shop in Salisbury, Conn.

Now on the 1974 horizon is the specter of a plastics shortage which will affect the production of new furniture.

But he said there is no shortage of antiques.

Carrell figures many of the sources continue to be the breakup of estates and old houses.

Too, some collectors change their tastes and sell in one area to start in another.

It should go without saying that a good antique is a good investment, but Carrell advised caution.

"ANTIQUES ARE a wise investment for a certain kind of investor — not the average person. They're a nice hedge against inflation if you don't have to live on them."

For the time, Carrell is involved with the 20th annual Winter Antiques Show at New York's Seventh Regiment Armory.

Somehow, in between shows this spring, he will restock his Connecticut shop, which specializes in American primitives, and travel abroad shopping and examining market trends.

He's already sure of some trends — a whole renaissance of Shaker furniture because this year marks the 200th anniversary of the colony's coming to America, and a big push for Americana from 1876 as the nation prepares to celebrate a bicentennial.

CARRELL'S INTEREST in collecting antiques began as it does in many families. Heirlooms came down through his family.

"Most people inherit one good thing and start building around it," he said. "Or, they decide to buy one antique to use and find they're collecting things to go with it. Once hooked . . ."

He divides people into those who "want to acquire and those who don't want anything."

For you who may find an interest in antiques stirring, Carrell offers some definitions and advice.

"I LIKE to think of an antique as something made before the machine age," he said. "Something handcrafted . . . and I think over 100 years old.

"Folk art is supposed to be something done by a naive artist, for pasttime or purpose. Usually folk art was done by an itinerant or a local doing something extra that was utilitarian."

Where to start if you're a novice? Carrell said some collectors see something they like first, then go home and start reading. Some have already done their homework and arrive at a show knowing what they want and whether the item is the real thing.

Browse the shops and shows as frequently as you can because with each trip you broaden your knowledge. And read!

"You're always learning," he said. "One great thing about antiques — you never can know enough."

Sunny Hills Redwood Guild Lists Officers

Mrs. Earl F. Reinke of Mill Valley, who has been a member of the Redwood Guild of Sunny Hills for six years, has been elected guild president.

She served as vice president and Grape Festival chairman for the group, which is noted for the chutney members make and sell at the Grape Festival. They also make aprons to wear with slacks, and are experimenting with some new items for their booth. In the spring the guild will give a theater party at the Ross Valley Players Barn at the Marin Art and Garden Center on April 20. All of these activities assist with financial support of Sunny Hills.

During the 21 years she has lived in the county, Jane Reinke has been active with the Outdoor Art Club of Mill Valley and is a past president of the club; the Rector's Guild of the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley, and was general chairman of the Marin County Antiques Show and Sale, put on by the Episcopal Churchwomen of the Mill Valley church, in 1967 and 1973, and is a member of the Old Mill Branch, Marin General Hospital Volunteers.

Born in Racine, Wis., Mrs. Reinke attended Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., received the bachelor of art degree at the University of Wisconsin, at Madison, Wis., and the master of art degree from Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill. She took the advanced degree in counseling and was a college counselor before her marriage.

The new president is the wife of Earl F. Reinke, who is employed in management by the Defense Supply Agency of the United States Department of Defense in Burlingame. They have one daughter, Ann, who was graduated from the University of the Pacific in Stockton last May.

Other incoming officers are Mmes. George Gustafson, first vice president and fund raising chairman; Benjamin Upham Jr., second vice president and Grape Festival chairman; J. Ralph Martindale, treasurer; William Obata, recording secretary; Harrison Leppo, corresponding secretary; Joseph Brewster, membership; Douglas Cummings, publicity; Eugene McGeorge, parliamentarian; Robert S. Scott, hostesses; John B. Wyand, Bargain Box, and Herman Zwart, assistant Grape Festival chairman.

Birth Classes Include Granny

At St. Francis Hospital in Milwaukee, Wis., grandmothers are attending classes for expectant mothers, Bonnie Jachowicz, registered nurse, reports in the "Journal of Obstetric, Gynecologic, and Neo-natal Nursing."

Young mothers-to-be are often "highly influenced by their parents, particularly their mothers," regarding the hygiene of pregnancy, labor and delivery and infant care, nurse Jachowicz writes. Grandmothers sometimes have outmoded ideas, and the classes are intended to bring them up to date.

Mrs. Van Winkle Will Head Presbyterian Group

Mrs. William Van Winkle of Novato has been elected president of the United Presbyterian Women of the Presbyterian Church of Novato. She has also served as circle chairman and literature chairman of the group during her five years as a member.

The club plans monthly meetings with speakers and a Christmas boutique to be held in November.

The new president is also active in the Terra Linda Guild of Boyd Marin Museum of Science, Novato Newcomer's Club, and International Hospital Center of San Francisco. She was born in Ross and has lived all her life in Marin County.

Katherine Van Winkle and her husband, principal at Don Timoteo School, have two sons. Derral is 14 and Daniel is 11 years old. Mrs. Van Winkle enjoys stitchery, reading, travel and gardening. She was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School, College of Marin, and Sonoma State College.

Officers elected to serve with the new president are Mmes. Warren Clark, vice president; Phillip Hicks, secretary; Winston Wishon, treasurer; Frederick Klein, nominating committee chairman; Glyn Shavor, service co-ordinator, and Donald Dobler, fellowship coordinator.

An Infection Risk In Eye Cosmetics

Women who use eye cosmetics face an increased risk of bacterial or fungal infection, according to Dr. Louis A. Wilson, professor of ophthalmology, Emory University of Medicine.

An analysis ot 1,031 samples of used eye cosmetics from 460 women showed 512 contaminated by bacteria and 155 by fungi. Dr. Wilson pointed out that risk of infection could be reduced if women replaced mascara brushes frequently, threw away old cosmetics and did not share cosmetics with others.

Spring Fashion Pivots On Dress

The dress is the main pivot of spring fashion, forecasts Eleanor Lambert, of the American Designer Showings.

She adds — "What seems like a suit is more often a dress and jacket; there is, however, a good show of the nipped and rounded tailleur, with still more of that look indicated for next fall."

LAGOON LOCKS NEAR COMPLETION

Looking like a miniature version of the Panama Canal, this lock between the lagoon at Bel Marin Keys and Novato Creek soon will allow the community's boat owners to enjoy better cruising and less mud. The lock is being built by Duncanson-Harrelson contractors of Oakland at a cost of $651,000; Shellmaker Inc. of Sonoma County is performing almost $250,000 worth of dredging in the lagoon and creek. The Bel Marin Keys Community Service District financed the work through a $700,000 bond issue and accumulated taxes. (Photo by Bob Hax)

Moscone Criticized For Trying To Dilute His Own Conflict Law

CHICO (AP) — Sen. George Moscone, author of California's new conflict of interest law, was criticized by a fellow legislator yesterday for trying to dilute his own law.

Assemblyman Ray Johnson, R-Chico, said in a statement that Moscone, D-San Francisco, definitely should not exclude lawyers from the mandate of the law, which went into effect Jan. 1.

The law requires public officials to disclose all sources of income of $250 or more, including salary, investment earnings and gifts.

It also requires disclosure of investments which might constitute a conflict of interest and it provides that public officials may not accept employment for a period of two years after leaving office with any firm with which they had dealings in their public post.

"We cannot afford to dilute the law to the point where the very information needed can be withheld," Johnson said.

Johnson was referring to a bill being carried by Moscone, which was approved unanimously Thursday by the Senate Governmental Organization Committee.

The bill, which would take effect immediately upon Gov. Ronald Reagan's signature because it is an urgency measure, would specify that all those affected by the law need not disclose their individual clients' names.

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Johnson was present the night the bill was passed in the Assembly and he did not understand the lengthy debate on who had to disclose what," Moscone said in a statement issued by his press spokesman, John Jervis.

Jervis said that it was made "very clear" during debate that doctors, lawyers and businessmen would not have to disclose their individual clients.

In recent weeks, the new disclosure law has caused a stir in local communities — prompting several officials to resign their posts rather than comply with its provisions.

Several resigning officials specifically cited provisions which they said would require that they disclose the names of individual clients of their private businesses. Moscone said the law never was intended to work that way.

One official who took that position was Bob Long, an insurance broker and the former chairman of the Nevada County Board of Supervisors.

Brown Seeks Reopening ITT Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. argued yesterday that his right as a voter was impaired when he cast his ballot in an election to which corporations had made illegal contributions.

Brown argued before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit that his suit against International Telephone and Telegraph, brought as an individual, should be reinstated.

Brown charged IT&T with violating federal campaign contributions law by donating $100,000 to the San Diego Convention and Tourist Bureau in August 1971, for use in the 1972 Republican convention there.

U.S. Dist. Judge Robert J. Kellegher dismissed Brown's suit in Los Angeles in May 1972, on grounds Brown had no standing to sue as an individual. Brown appealed.

"I am concerned that the election system itself is losing its legitimacy," Brown said.

"The past few years has seen the integrity of the election system held up to ridicule."

Howard J. Privett, attorney for IT&T, says there has not been a prosecution for 50 years because of contributions by corporations to finance national conventions. Such contributions are perfectly legal, he said.

The law, Privett said, prohibits contributions by state-chartered corporations to the election of electors for president and vice president but does not affect contributions to party conventions.

The convention of a national political party has nothing to do with the selection of electors, he argued.

Privett also argued Brown had no standing to bring the suit because he did not personally suffer injury. The court took the case under submission.

Brown said the U.S. Department of Justice failed to prosecute the alleged violation which occurred in August 1971. The contribution was allegedly made by ITT's Sheraton Hotels subsidiary to the Republican National Convention, then scheduled to be held in San Diego.

"There appeared to be clear evidence that the Department of Justice was intimately involved in the decision to accept the illegal campaign contribution, and I felt the department's refusal to prosecute was the result of the department's own conflict-of-interest involving the case," Brown said.

Valuable Bonsai Trees Stolen

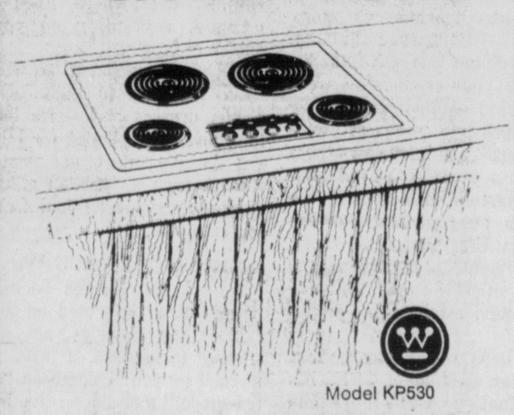

Twenty bonsai trees worth $5,000, part of a collection laboriously built up by a reclusive Strawberry gardener who died last year, have been stolen from the nurseryman's yard.

Marin sheriff's deputies said someone dug up the trees last weekend and hauled them away from the yard of Leon Gagne. They were among 400 bonsai trees left by the nurseryman, who died Dec. 14 at the age of 79.

Deputies said publicity about Gagne's $200,000 estate and the trees probably led to the theft.

MURRAY OLDERMAN

Rehabilitation Of Old Athletes

THE TIPOFF:

Basketball isn't slumbering on the blackout rule, Franklin Mieuli, representing the pro owners, is already dickering with CBS for more dough in cases where the blackout of televised NBA games is lifted.

Q. Can you tell me about Cookie Gilchrist's new movement to help retired athletes? — Joe Beck, Denver, Colo.

Ever personable Chester Gilchrist favored us with a call to describe his United Athletics Coalition of America. "We'll deal with the rehabilitation of athletes," says Chester Carlton G., "offering them psychiatric help and marriage, family and financial counseling. In it with me are such people as Dick Bass, Ernie Barnes and Bubba Smith. I know why such help is needed. I've been through the tough adjustment period."

Q. My husband is always talking about iron men in football. He keeps telling me he played three college games in four days, also scored a touchdown in each game. True or false? He played for Northern Teachers College at Aberdeen, S.D., in 1940. — Ruth Ries, Oakland, Calif.

After 33 years, a slight exaggeration is permissible. Northern State in '40 did play three games in six days —against Moorhead State on Saturday, Sioux Falls College on Wednesday and Wayne State on Thursday. This year, in fact, Northern also played two games back-to-back, on a Friday night against the University of South Dakota at Springfield, the next day opposing Mankato State. You mean you didn't believe your husband?

Q. Why didn't the Washington Redskins play Duane Thomas more this year? With everybody ganging up on Larry Brown, it would have seemed logical. — Bruce Banks, Bristol, Va.

For all his evangelical work, George Allen didn't quite restore mysterious Duane to the community of man. The running back still has some of his old hangups which limited him as a performer. Maybe next year.

Q. How important is the big man in basketball? A lot of the scoring seems to be dominated by the littler guys. — Ray Torrance, Corpus Christi, Tex.

Just ask the Los Angeles Lakers how they're getting along without Wilt. It's like a football team playing without a decent quarterback (e.g., Green Bay). Actually, the Lakers did acquire a big man, 7-1 Elmore Smith, who's still in the learning process. And for all his mistakes, coach Bill Sharman says, "Without him, we'd be under .500 in our won-lost record."

Q. Is it really true Don Meredith isn't coming back to the Monday night ABC telecasts next year? — Jean Baxter, Dallas, Tex.

So we hear. Because Dandy wants to pursue bigger and better things in life. And ABC might not be altogether unhappy because he's been flaunting some habits of Seth Maxwell (Pete Gent's fictional character). And Ho'ahrd's insufferable ego is also beginning to grate on him. But, as one football lawyer says, "Wait'll they put that money in front of him again."

Q. There is some discussion among baseball men regarding a proposed change to the intentional walk rule. It is suggested all base runners be permitted to move up a base when the intentional walk is issued, to lessen the possibility of a double play. Your comments, please. — Gerry Snedeker, Chambersburg, Pa.

Unfeasible. A pitcher who wants to get by a dangerous batter can always keep the ball far enough away from him to put him on base, without making it a blatant intentional pass. I'd still rather see the umpire just motion the batter to first base, instead of going through the motions of four pitches.

Q. With the growing number of field goals, wouldn't it be good for the colleges and pros both to rule field goals usable only inside the 20-yard line on fourth down? —S. D. Claghorn, Orange, Calif.

Interesting thought and one I haven't been aware of. It just might work. But what would it do for foreign relations?

PARTING SHOT:

Sudden, temporary slump of one basketball hot shot (he's pulled out of it now) resulted from the usual "personal problems," as they say in the press. He came home from one road trip and in a fit of honesty told all —about his off-court maneuvers.

San Rafael Rebuffs Redwood, 46-44

By LEW CODDINGTON

Some 31 minutes and 59 seconds of finely woven team basketball by San Rafael High School served only to send Byron Stewart to the foul line last night to face the most glaring kind of individual pressure: with the score tied and one second left, he had two free throws.

First one, good. And after a massive roar from the Bulldog fans and a jubilant embrace from teammate Steve D'Ambra, the second one was good as well.

This game the Bulldogs a 46-44 victory over Redwood in a battle of undefeated Marin County Athletic League teams waged before about 1,000 fans in the Giants' Larkspur gym.

It was a game crammed with drama and tenacity, as San Rafael came back from an early 10-point deficit to lead by nine, and Redwood rebounded from that to tie the score late.

Its outcome gave San Rafael a 4-0 MCAL record and a share of first place with Drake, whom the Bulldogs play Tuesday. Redwood slipped to 3-1.

"Our aggressiveness," said San Rafael coach Bret Tovani when asked what was the key to the game. "We must have been outsized six inches per man in there (under the basket). When we went out of a zone into a man-to-man (after falling behind), you'd say, 'That's crazy,' except we go at 'em and challenge 'em."

The 6-foot-7 Stewart scored 14 points and grabbed 10 rebounds in his duel with Redwood's heavier 6-7 Darrell Elder, who had eight points and five rebounds. After Stewart, the Bulldogs' height dropped off to an assortment of 6-1 players, compared to Redwood's 6-6, 6-4 and 6-3, yet San Rafael had a 21-13 advantage on the boards.

High scorer for the game was Redwood's Neil Hennessy, who tallied 16 — 12 of them in the first half, as his hot early shooting staked the Giants to an 18-8 lead.

San Rafael forged back and took the lead early in the third quarter as Gary Patterson scored six quick points. Patterson was one of five substitutes who logged plenty of playing time. He finished with 10 points and "he killed us," Redwood coach Dick Hart said.

Redwood had a blue-chip substitute of its own — guard Mark Kilmer, who entered midway through the third quarter with his team down, 35-26, and scored 10 points to bring them back. He got the Giants' first field goal of the second half after they had gone nearly seven minutes without one.

Redwood drew within one point on a jump shot by Elder and then tied the game with 1:36 left at 44-44 as Elder made the first of two free throw chances.

San Rafael made 18 of 42 shots for 43 per cent compared to Redwood's 15 of 45 for 33 per cent — just two of 11 in the third quarter. From the free throw line, San Rafael hit 10 of 13 and Redwood 14 of 22.

Drake Wins On Basket By Chavez

By DAVE DEL GRANDE

Eddie Joe Chavez hit a 20-foot jumper from the left side with 1:06 remaining in the game to give Drake High School's Pirates a 45-43, come-from-behind basketball win over Tamalpais last night before 1,300 fans at College of Marin.

The victory leaves Drake at 4-0 and tied for the Marin County Athletic League lead with San Rafael. The loss drops the Indians' record to 1-3.

With Tam ahead 43-39 and four and one-half minutes to go, the Pirates' 1-2-2 zone defense went to work and shut out the Indians for the remainder of the game. It was the third time in four league contests that a Drake opponent has been held under 50 points.

Chavez, who led the Pirates' scoring with 18 points, took control of the game for the last four minutes, scoring all six of his team's points. Chavez tied the contest with two minutes left on an outside jumper, this shot setting the stage for the spectacular finish.

For the Indians, who trailed by six at halftime and by eight midway through the third period, it ws the scoring of Mike Dinehart and the rebounding of Hollis Owens that brought them into the lead.

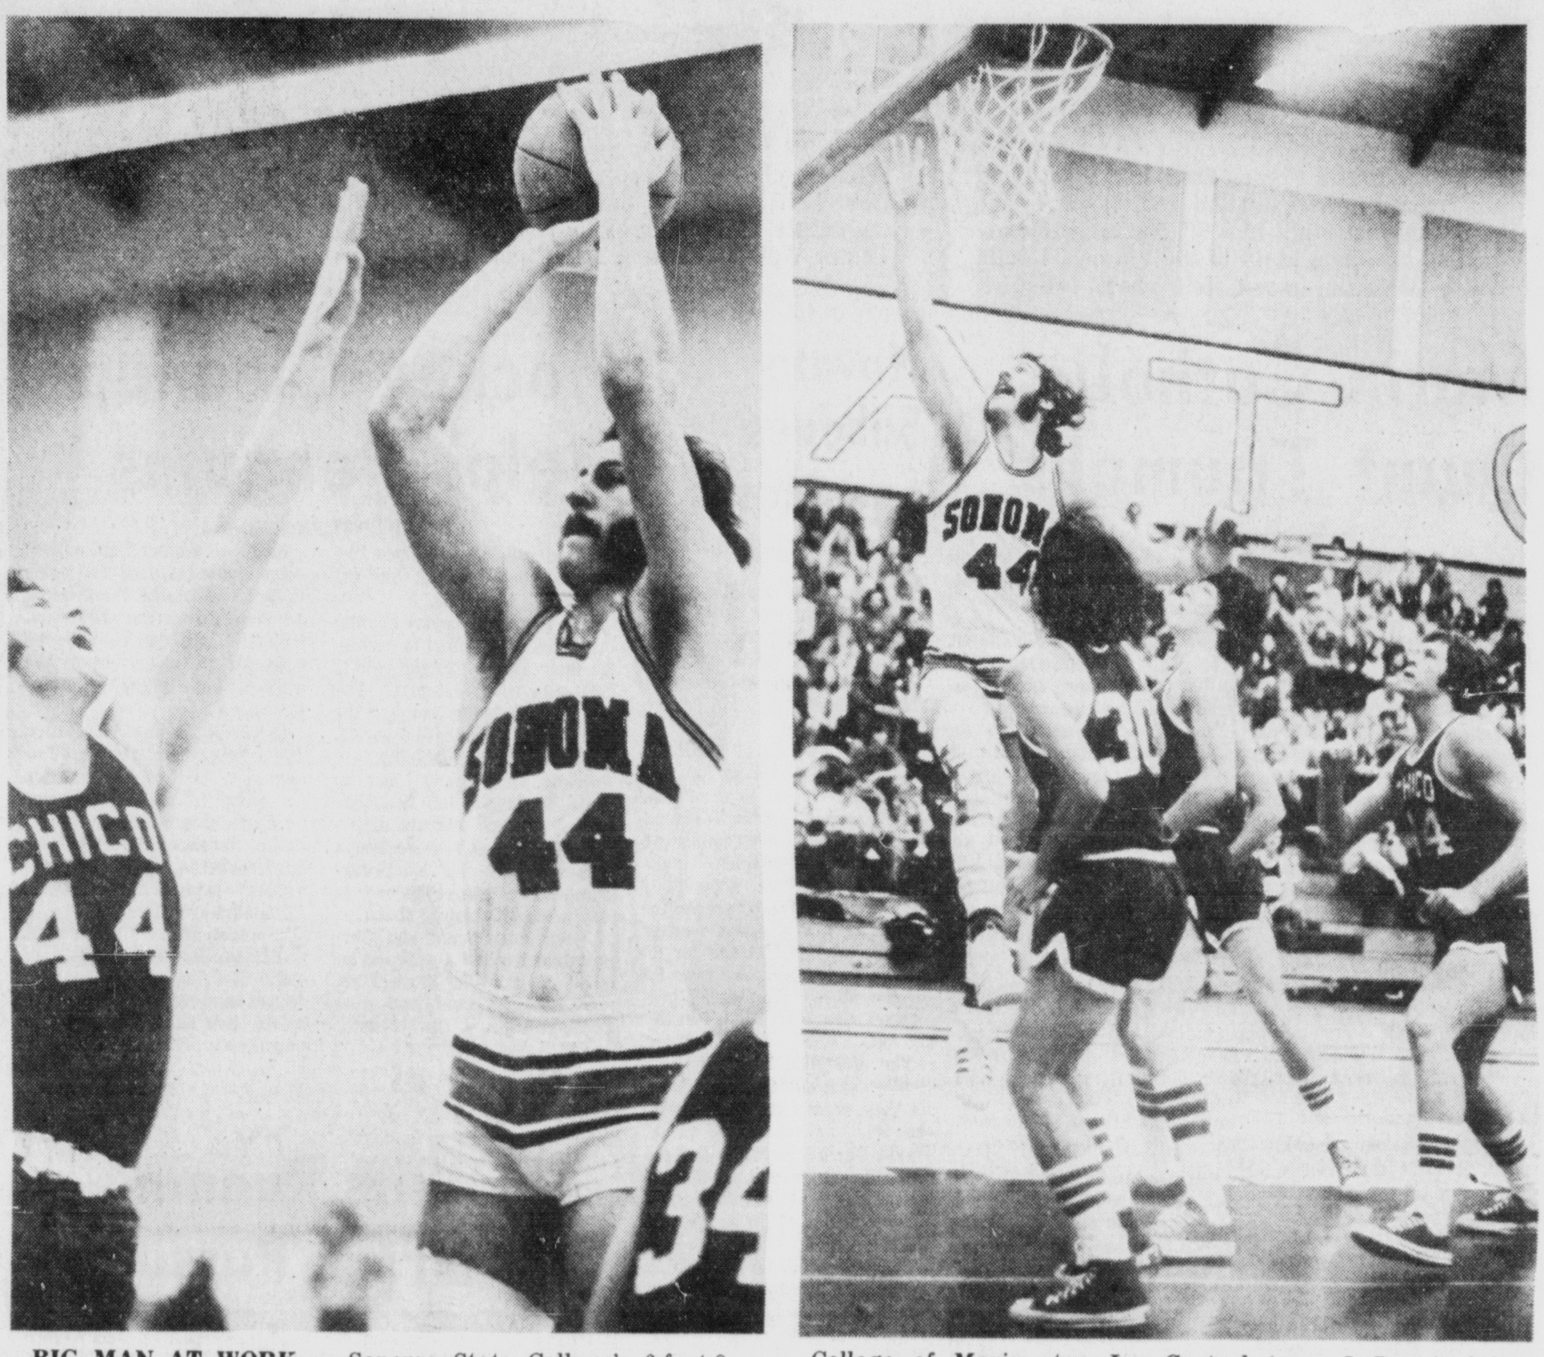

Dinehart scored six of his game-high 20 points near the end of the quarter, when Tam took the lead. Owens was a main reason for the Indians' defensive success, grabbing 15 rebounds, usually holding the Pirates to one shot.

"What a way to win!" declared Pirate coach Pete Hayward. "Our defense did it again, down the stretch they (his Pirates) were really tough." The Drake zone held Tam to a shooting percentage of just 36 per cent, with Tam hitting only 18 of 50.

Bekey's Perfecto: A First In Marin

Remember the name of Leemoi Bekey. Marin County's women bowlers will. She was the first.

Mrs. Bekey — an actress, singer, dancer, lawyer, housewife and mother of five from Terra Linda — last night became the first woman to bowl a 300 game in Marin County.

She did it in her third game in the TGIF (Thank God It's Friday) League at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael, bowling for a team captained by her husband, Peter.

"It's a shock — I'll tell you," said Mrs. Bekey after the feat. "I've been bowling lousy lately.

"I started to get a little nervous about the 11th ball. On Friday nights the house is loaded, and people stopped bowling and began to gather to watch."

Mrs. Bekey had two narrow escapes. She hit on the Brooklyn side on the 11th ball, and on her third ball she almost left a 6-10 split, but in each case the pins fell.

Carrying a 164 average, she bowled games of 180 and 170 prior to her 300, giving her a 650 series, highest of her life. A six-year bowler, she had a best previous game of 254.

She should be able to make sure her feat is properly inscribed in the record books, since she is vice president of the Marin County Women's Bowling Association, as well as secretary of the Junior Association.

Little League Signup Notice Was Incorrect

Prospective Little League baseball players in the Hamilton, Loma Verde and Nicasio areas were not supposed to sign up yesterday and today with the Novato Little League, as erroneously reported in Thursday's Independent-Journal.

Signup dates for those leagues will be announced at a later date. Novato residents were to sign up yesterday and today.

King, Evert Meet Tonight For Net Title

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Billie Jean King meets Chris Evert tonight in the match fans were hoping for when 32 top women tennis players opened their 1974 tournament tour here Monday, and neither finalist wants to be considered a favorite to win the $10,000 prize.

"She's beaten me more times than I've beaten her," said Mrs. King, the all-time biggest money winner in women's tennis. The score in matches is 4-3 for the 19-year-old Fort Lauderdale, Fla. lass, she added.

Miss Evert, who lost to Billie Jean in the Wimbledon finals when they last met, had the computer-assigned No. 1 seeding for the tournament, her first on the West Coast.

"But I'll go in feeling no pressure," Miss Evert siad.

Because she lives just across the Bay Bridge in Emeryville and because she humbled Boby Riggs last year, Mrs. King will have plenty of supporters in tonight's sellout crowd of about 5,000 at Civic Ausitorium.

In semifinals last night Mrs. King overpowered Texan Nancy Richey Gunter 6-1, 6-3 and Miss Evert beat Kerry Melville of Australia 7-6, 6-2.

Then they teamed up as doubles partners to score a 6-4, 6-2 semifinal victory over Mrs. Gunter and Rosemary Casals of Sausalito. This is the first time Billie Jean and Chris have paired for doubles.

BELANDER POURS IN 31

Sonoma State Cagers Bludgeon Chico

By PAUL DWORIN

Sonoma State College put on an impressive display of shooting last night, hitting 60 per cent of its field goal shots to take a 10-388 Far Western Conference basketball victory from visiting Chico State.

The win upped the Cossacks' conference mark to 3-0, putting them into a first-place tie with University of California, Davis which cancelled its game with Humboldt State due to rain and poor road conditions. Tonight at 8 o'clock, Sonoma will host Davis.

In the preliminary game last night, the Cossack junior varsity bested Chico's frosh, 73-59, for its 10th consecutive victory.

Chico was playing without 6-foot-8 pivotmen Mike Harski and Arlandos Lee, but hung in there until Sonoma went on a 23-8 scoring rampage in the second half to take a 78-58 lead with 11 minutes remaining.

Harski, who made all-conference last season, was injured in an automobile accident Tuesday and is in the hospital. Lee quit the team earlier this week for personal reasons.

Despite the absence of their big men — perhaps because of it — the Wildcats never quit even when they were down by 20 points. With 4:55 left, they clawed back to within 10, but the Cossacks then went on another scoring spree to take a 101-81 lead while 1,200 fans in Rohnert Park roared.

Every Cossack who put in more than a token appearance played extremely well, but once again it was Bill Belander who gained the spotlight. Proving more each week that he is the finest all-around player in the conference, Belander scored a game-high 31 points and picked off eight rebounds.

"I just went out and played. I did okay," commented the modest 6-4 senior from Spring Valley after the game. "Ill take those stats anytime."

Following Belander in the scoring column was Steve Tiedeman, who broke out of a season-long shooting slump by connecting on nine of 14 shots and two free throws for 20 points. He also led the team with seven assists.

Much of Sonoma's early game success, before it established dominance, was due to Tom Fitchie who hit all six of his attempts in the first half and finished with eight for eight from the field.

Dan Heien came off the bench to collect 13 points and grabbed a team high nine rebounds. Bob LeBrun added 13 tallies and picked off eight caroms before coming out of the game in the middle of the second half when he fell down hard. He is expected to play tonight.

The standout for the Wildcats was former College of Marin star Joe Casteel, who led his team with 22 points and 10 rebounds in his first starting role as a forward.

Dissension-Infested Seals Demolished By Atlanta, 6-2

ATLANTA (AP) — The dissension-plaqued California Golden Seals, whose only National Hockey League victory on the road this season was in Buffalo three months ago, have started a four-game road trip with a 6-2 loss to the Atlanta Flames.

Tomorrow they go to Buffalo, then to New York to meet the Islanders Tuesday. They complete the trip in Detroit Wednesday.

Center Walt McKechnie, central figure in reports earlier in the day of hostility toward coach Fred Glover, scored both Seals' goals last night against Atlanta, raising his season total to 15.

But John Stewart scored in the first and third period for the Flames, and Atlanta got four goals in a second-period outburst. The Flames showered 48 shots at Seals' goalie Gilles Meloche, and California had a shot total of only 21.

The McKechnie-Glover incident reported by the Oakland Tribune occurred last month in a New York hotel bar. The newspaper said Glover reprimanded McKechnie, Stan Gilbertson and Rick Kessell for violating what he said was a midnight curfew.

McKechnie and the coach cmae to blows and the fight was broken up by hotle employes, the Tribuen said and quoted Gilbertson as saying:

"I think we were making fools of ourselves rolling around on the floor."

Kessell was quoted saying, "It was a stupid dispute. We thought it was one time, and it was another."

Glover declined to comment.

Redwood J.V. Five Wins In 3 Overtimes

Gary Sorgen scored the game-winning basket with one second left in the third overtime period last night to give Redwood High School (4-0) a hard-fought 50-48 victory over visiting San Rafael (1-3) in a junior varsity basketball game.

Sorgen scored 19 points for the evening. In another Marin County Athletic League game, San Marin (1-3) overcame 21 points by Mark Heidelberger and 17 by Jeff Mertell to down visiting Novato (0-4) in one overtime, 64-61.

Sacramento Is Brewers' Club

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Sacramento, Calif., of the Pacific Coast League will replace Evansville, Ind., of the American Association as the Milwaukee Brewers Class AAA affiliate.

The Brewers named Bob Lemon, former pitching star with the Cleveland Indians and manager of the Kansas City Royals, as the team's manager.

Sacramento will replace Eugene, Ore., in the league next season.

49ers Have Six Early Round Picks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers announced yesterday they will have six picks, including two in the first round, during the first four rounds of the National Football League draft Jan. 29.

In the first round, they will have their own choice as well as New England's. They secured the Patriots' first round selection in the trade that sent tight end Bob Windsor to New England.

The club also has two picks in the second round, one being Washington's in the deal that sent defensive back Roosevelt Taylor to the Redskins.

San Francisco won't have a third-round choice, since it traded its spot to the St. Louis Cardinals for defensive tackle Rolf Krueger. However, the 49ers will pick twice in the fourth round, although they traded their place to New Orleans in the deal that brought wide receiver Danny Abramowicz to San Francisco.

Meanwhile, the 49ers yesterday struck a blow for women's liberation by naming Robin Mitchell as director of promotions. She succeeds Dick Berg, who resignd Wednesday to become general manager of the North American Soccer League's new franchise in San Jose.

Miss Mitchell, who was Berg's assistant, originally joined the 49ers in 1969 as secretary to George McFadden, director of public information. She is a 1969 graduate of Colorado State.

A 49ers official said Miss Mitchell is one of a small number of women executives in the NFL and the first for the San Francisco club. She will assume her new duties immediately.

AN EVENING IN THE LIFE OF THE SEALS

The California Golden Seals had their usual long periods of frustration and short periods of elation last night in a 6-2 National Hockey League loss in Atlanta to the Flames. Goalie Gilles Meloche (mask, left photo) was besieged by Flames Leon Rochefort (11) and Bob Leiter (16) in the first period while teammate Terry Murray (5) tried to help out. Center Walt McKechnie (right photo) ignored a stick thrust between his legs, brushed aside Atlanta's Arnie Brown and went on to score a goal in the first period — one of two he was to notch. Marin Catholic Quint Triumphs

By TOM THOMPSON

Marin Catholic High School outran the ever-stubborn Terra Linda Trojans last night for a 63-60 Marin County Athletic League basketball triumph.

Over 600 fans elbowed their way into Marin Catholic's tiny Greenbrae gym to watch the speedy, high-scoring hosts take on the deliberate Trojans. After three quarters with the Trojans leading, 43-41, the Wildcats forced Terra Linda to run with them and came out on top to even their MCAL record at 2-2, while Terra Linda slipped to 1-3.

Winning coach Dave Gonsalves' tactic was a common but usually successful one — "I played just about everyone on the roster in the first half, and it payed off. In the end, we made quite a few steals and we were able to run."

Center Tom Cronin, making his return to Marin Catholic's lineup after a four-game absence because of the measles, helped the Wildcats also. Cronin, minus "15 or 20 pounds" according to Gonsalves, scored six points and grabbed seven rebounds in the short time he played, and aided the play of teammate Mike Mahoney who finished with 20 points.

Chris McCarthy was another star sinking two free throws to put it out of reach for the Trojans with five seconds left to play.

With 5:59 left in the game, the 'Cats took the lead, 47-45, after trailing most of the second and third quarters. The Trojans never made up the deficit and around the four minute mark, coach Fred Arnold went to a different offense, what he called the "run and gun." Marin Catholic took advantage of the opportunity and extended the lead to eight, before Arnold called time out again, this time with 2:11 showing on the clock.

He said after the contest that he had reminded his team "That we had won earlier this year (a non-league 62-60 victory over Concord) after we'd been behind by as much as nine with just over a minute left to play. These kids just don't give up."

Marin Catholic went into a stall and the Trojans, in a desperate tactic which rarely works, began fouling freely. The 'Cats missed twice from the line on rebound situations however and the Trojans closed the margin to 61-60 with :38 showing on the clock, to set up McCarthy's freethrows.

Novato Subdues San Marin

Sooner or later, it had to happen.

Novato High School's basketball team, gnawed by the frustration of losing its first three Marin County Athletic League basketball games, lashed out last night for a 69-54 victory over San Marin.

About 1,000 fans at San Marin watched in horror as the Hornets jumped out to a 9-2 lead and just kept scoring — extending the margin to 27 points, 47-20, in the third quarter.

Mike Moroski scored 19 points on jump shots around the key and Curtis Saine worked underneath the basket for 19 more for the Hornets, now 1-3 in the MCAL after a 9-2 preseason. San Marin is 0-4 in the league.

The Mustangs had their biggest scoring quarter of the year as they poured in 29 points in the final period. Some 12 of David Harris' 16 points and all 10 of Bruce Smith's production came in that stanza. Skip Starnes netted 11 for San Marin for the game.

San Marin cut the margin to 59-49, but Novato was able to regain command by putting its regulars back in.

Hockey Cleanup Helps Penguins

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The housecleaning looks like it may be working for the Pittsburgh Penguins.

The Penguins began dealing last week in an effort to revitalize their attack and the results looked positive last night. The new-look Penguins bombed the Vancouver Canucks 6-2 in National Hockey League play.

Goalie Gary Innes, just up from Hershey of the American Hockey League, allowed only a fluke shot from mid-ice and a meaningless goal by Bobby Schmautz with one second to play while blocking 35 shots.

Lowell MacDonald and Bernie Lukowich had a goal and an assist each while Steve Durbano got one goal and also managed to break Dave Dunn's nose with a punch.

In the only other NHL action, John Stewart scored two goals to lead the Atlanta Flames to a 6-2 victory over the California, the 15th straight loss on the road for the Seals, who have won just once in 23 road games this season.

In World Hockey Association play, Edmonton whipped Jersey 7-4, Winnipeg downed Cleveland 7-3 and Los Angeles downed Toronto 4-1.

Winnipeg scored five straight goals, two by Bobby Hull, to crush Cleveland and Marc Tardif, continuing his hotscoring, scored two goals to lead Los Angeles over Toronto.

Marin Vs. De Anza Is Key Game

It's a long basketball season and anything can happen, but nobody can tell College of Marin that its game tonight in Cupertino isn't a big, big one.

The Tars, ranked eighth in California, will play No. 7 De Anza College at 8 p.m. in a key Camino Norte Conference encounter.

With one loss already hung about their necks, the Tars need a victory to avoid slipping further behind the Dons, who lead the conference with a 4-0 record. Foothill of Los Altos, which defeated Marin on Saturday, sports a 3-0 mark while the Tars are 3-1 following their 59-56 conquest of Solano College in Suisun City Tuesday.

De Anza has four scorers averaging in double figures, according to three-game conference statistics. Mitch Platt is hitting 15.7 points a game, while Russ Carlson is at 13.0, Larry Dickerson 10.5 and Bill Ames 10.3 in the balanced attack.

The Dons are 14-3 overall, compared to Marin's 15-1, and have always had a strong team in recent years. Last season they contended for the championship until late in the campaign when Marin dealt them a 47-42 defeat. The Tars also won a tight game in Cupertino, 43-32, surviving a stall.

First Touchdown

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

USF-Las Vegas Clash Tonight

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

UCLA is not the only West Coast team with a crucial basketball game today.

After the top-rated Bruins, who may or may not have the injured Bill Walton in the pivot, try to keep their win streak alive at second-ranked Notre Dame, University of San Francisco visits Nevada-Las Vegas tonight in a game which could decide which team will meet the Bruins in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Western regionals.

The Rebels were heavily favored to take the West Coast Athletic Conference this season, yet almost saw their record slump to 0-3 Friday night before pulling out an 81-79 win over Santa Clara in three overtimes.

Bobby Florence led the Rebels with 23 points but it was freshmen Eddie Owens and Jackie Robinson who hit the free throws in the final 32 seconds of the third overtime that won it. Gerry Bellotti had 20 for the Broncs.

USF, meanwhile, is 3-0 and winning big despite a disappointing pre-conference performance. The difference has been the turn-around by big Kevin Restani, who had 10 rebounds and 21 points in an impressive 92-73 win at Nevada-Reno last night. Phil Smith hit 25 against the Wolfpack, while Redwood High School graduate John Boro added eight points for the Dons.

USF could take a three-game lead with a win over NevadaLas Vegas tonight.

Seattle is also 3-0 in the WCAC after blasting Loyola 81-65 and Pepperdine took St. Mary's 75-71 as Billy Williams and Dick Scophammer led the way.

Pac-Eight teams are all over this weekend with Stanford at Utah tonight and Washington at home to Hawaii this afternoon. Oregon fell 76-66 at Air Force Friday and Washington State won 53-48 over Montana State.

Grand Canyon made its record 16-0 with a 73-63 win over Santa Fe and U.S. International nipped Occidental 55-53 in overtime for its 11th win in a row.

In the Far Western Conference, Sonoma State made its record 3-0 with a 103-88 win over Chico State behind Bill Belander's 31 points. Sacramento State is 2-1 after taking Hayward State 84-75 behind Mike Steinbeck's 26 points.

San Francisco State, with Richard Mulligan scoring 18, beat Stanislaus State 67-62 and the big Northern California rains forced postponement of the Cal Aggies game at Humboldt State.

ABA ROUNDUP

Uneven Situation In East Division

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The American Basketball Association schedule makers have created somewhat of an uneven situation in the Eastern Division race.

The Nets, who beat the Memphis Tams 112-105 last night while Kentucky was idle, have now played five more games than the Colonels. They have a 3-2 record in those games so the two clubs are practically even.

Kentucky is 28-16 for a .636 percentage while New York is 31-18 for a .633 percentage. So while the Nets are technically a half-game ahead, they're still .003 behind in percentages. It means Kentucky will have to go 4-1 in those extra five games to have an advantage—if the two clubs are even the rest of the way.

Julius Erving and Larry Kenon combined for 17 points in the third quarter to pace the Nets over Memphis. Erving led New York with 28 points and Kenon had 26. Mike Jackson and Wilbert Jones had 20 each for Memphis.

In the other games, Indiana beat Virginia 118-106, Utah downed Carolina 115-102 and Denver topped San Diego 120-113.

Utah outscored Carolina 30-16 in the first quarter and then coasted over the Cougars. Utah leads the West by 5 ½ games. Willie Wise scored 16 of his 26 points in the first quarter when the Stars built their lead to 30-17.

Indiana reeled off 15 straight points in the third period to overpower Virginia. George McGinnis led the Pacers with 22 points while George Gervin topped the Squires with 32 but was held to six in the second half.

Willie Long scored 25 points, 18 of them in the last quarter, as Denver wiped out a 13-point first half deficit and beat San Diego. Down 92-87 at the end of three quarters, the Rockets also got 24 points from Byron Beck and 22 from Ralph Simpson. Caldwell Jones paced the Q's with 22.

Poor First Quarter Keys Petaluma Loss

Petaluma High School played just one bad quarter of basketball here last night, but that was one too many as it dropped a 78-63 North Bay League game to host Montgomery in Santa Rosa.

"We just couldn't get untracked," expalined Trojan coach Mark Reischling about his team's 25-11 first quarter deficit. "We came out slow and couldn't buy a basket."

After that first quarter, Petaluma played well but couldn't make up the 14-point difference as Montgomery hit on 56 per cent of its field goal attempts.

The Trojans got strong efforts from Dan Pacheco and Sid Shired, who both scored 17 points. Scott Vincent paced Montgomery with 19.

Meanwhile, four other local schools lost on the road in cage action last night.

In Sonoma County League, Casa Grande lost to Analy (Sebastopol) 64-51 and Rancho Cotate bowed to Cardinal Newman (Santa Rosa) 65-49. St. Vincent was upended by Point Arena 57-40 and Tomales fell to Calistoga 79-54 in North Central League II play.

Bullets Vs. Optimistic Warriors

LARGO, Md. (UPI) — The Golden Sate Warriors bring a .500 record and an optimistic attitude here tonight for a battle with the Central Division-leading Capital Bullets.

Then they have to shift quickly to Boston for a Sunday afternoon encounter with the Celtics, basketball's hottest team.

The Warriors got 44 points from a slumping Rick Barry in a 127-120 win over Phoenix Thursday. He hit 15 of 26 shots and all 14 of his free throws.

After that one, Barry promised to go "all out" from here on in and give way to a benchwarmer when he got tired instead of pacing himself.

But the other half of the Warriors 1-2 punch, Nate Thurmond, has been playing poorly of late. He hit 1-of-6 from the field and got only eight rebounds against the Suns and must improve those figures if the Warriors are going to come back at tough Los Angeles in their Pacific Division battle.

PRO BOWL

AFC Pits Running Vs. NFC's Passing

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — It figures to be the passing of the National Football Conference against the running of the American Conference tomorrow at 11 a.m. in the annual Pro Bowl game here televised on Channels 3, 4 in the Bay Area.

In shooting for its third straight win, the AFC will send record 2,003-yard runner O.J. Simpson of Buffalo against the best the NFC can offer.

John Hadl and Roman Gabriel of the NFC, meanwhile, have a tremendous corps of receivers to go to, including 6-foot-8 Harold Carmichael of Philadelphia, who led the league in receptions, Rookie of the Year Charles Young of Philadelphia, and veteran Charley Taylor of Washington.

The AFC lost five members of the champion Miami Dolphins this past week with injuries, including powerful fullback Larry Csonka. This means Oakland quarterback Kenny Stabler and Oakland fullback Marv Hubbard will probably join Simpson.

Running for the NFC will be guys like Larry McCutcheon and Jim Bertelsen of Los Angeles, John Brockington of Green Bay and Chuck Foreman of Minnesota.

Coaches Tom Landry of the NFC and John Madden of the AFC agreed in not predicting a winner because they said the game depended on who had the good day.

The teams worked out in San Diego this week before heading for the stormy Midwest for the game.

S.F. Executive Heads A Group Dealing For A's

OAKLAND (UPI) — San Francisco advertising executive John Hayes says he is heading a group negotiating with Charles O. Finley to purchase the World Champion Oakland Athletics.

"We are going to make an offer shortly that, we believe, will be fully acceptable to him," Hayes said yesterday.

Finley has been told by doctors to get out of the sports ownership business. He is selling the California Seals to the National Hockey League and also has Memphis of the American Basketball Association up for sale.

Hayes would not reveal the full makeup of his group but said there were "about eight" persons, all living in Oakland.

DON'T LET THE GASOLINE SHORTAGE DRIVE YOU TO A CRISIS OF SMALLER PROPORTIONS.

Yet unlike small cars, Volvo has about the same front seat legroom as a Cadillac de Ville. As much back seat legroom as a Lincoln Continental. And more trunk space than the Pinto and Barracuda combined.

But Volvo isn't just roomy. It's comfortable.

The bucket seats are orthopedically designed to give support to all the contours of the body. Even to the point of having an adjustment that gives the small of your back firmer or softer support.

And in a Volvo, you won't have to gather your courage to enter crowded highways. Its responsive, fuel-injected engine lets you move out into traffic before onrushing traffic moves into you.

And once you're out there, you'll actually feel the rigidity of Volvo's body—welded into one solid piece of steel with thousands of closely-spaced spot welds.

So instead of overreacting to the gasoline shortage, respond thoughtfully. By getting a Volvo.

That way, you can drive a big car without adding fuel to the energy crisis.

Runners Clark, Foreman Tabbed Rookies Of Year

Combined AP & UPI

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Two running backs, Charles (Boobie) Clark of the Cincinnati Bengals and the Minnesota Vikings' Chuck Foreman, were named 1973 National Football League Rookies of the Year today. Their selection from 10 finalists — five each from the American and National Football Conferences chosen by fans in nationwide balloting during the past season — was announced at an awards luncheon at the Crown Center Hotel here.

Final selection of Clark who gained 988 yards and Foreman who netted 801 yards from the 10 fan nominees was made by a panel of judges from the Pro Football Hall of Fame, Canton Ohio. The Hall of Fame cooperates with the sponsoring Wheaties Sports Federation of General Mills, Minneapolis, Minn., in the fan-participation Rookies of the Year program.

BOSTON OR PUERTO RICO

Champ Mulls Site Of Bout

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Boston and Puerto Rico appear to be the prime sites for the March 25 world heavyweight title fight between champion George Foreman and challenger Ken Norton.

Hank Schwartz, vice president of Video Techniques Inc., of New York, promoters of the fight, was expected to travel to both places to meet with fight officials and he said an announcement would be made next week.

Bob Burt, who manages Norton's affairs along with Art Rifkin, said the fight would definitely be held east of the Mississippi River.

He ruled out Jamaica, where the 25-year-old Foreman captured the title from Joe Frazier Jan. 22, 1973, and New York's Madison Square Garden, site of the Frazier-Muhammad Ali fight Jan. 28.

As in all title fights, the main considration is money and Schwartz empasized that when he said:

"This is a big fight...with a big live gate and we want to put it in a big arena."

Foreman—fighting for the first time since he knocked down Joe Roman six times in two rounds in Tokyo Sept. 1 in his only title defense—was guaranteed $700,000 against 40 per cent of the receipts, according to terms revealed at yesterday's news conference.

Norton, 29, will get $200,000 against 20 per cent of the receipts.

The fight will be telecast live in most countries, including England and Japan, and via closed circuit in the United States and Canada.

Dick Sadley, Foreman's advisor, said Norton was approached for the fight because he is the "leading, logical contender."

Both the World Boxing Association and World Boxing Council had threatened to strip Foreman of his title if he did not sign to defend against a leading contender by Jan. 21—a year from when he won the title.

The World Boxing Council rankings list Ali as the number one contender, Norton No. 2, Frazier No. 3 and Jerry Quarry No. 4.

Foreman, unbeaten in 39 professional fights with 36 knockouts, said he would begin his training here and would also hold some workouts in Hayward, Calif., where he has lived for some time, San Francisco, Oakland and New York.

Norton, who owns a 29-2 record with 22 knockouts, will open training Feb. 1 at Gilman Hot Springs, Calif., where he trained for both fights with Ali.

He won the first fight with Ali last March and lost the rematch in September in a disputed split decision.

Hoskins, 28, a four-year pro and a starting defensive tackle, has been at St. Mary's Hospital for the past two weeks after he detected an enlarged lymph node under his arm. He is expected to be released from the hospital some time next week, according to Dr. Milburn.

Hoskins is married and has four children.

NBA ROUNDUP

Mr. Clutch Proves Worth

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

There are statistics for just about everything in basketball but they should invent a new one for Jerry West—games won at the buzzer.

Basketball's Mr. Clutch was sidelined since Dec. 11—missing 14 games with an abdominal muscle pull—but he made his return to the Los Angeles Lakers' lineup last night in typical fashion.

West hit a 15-footer at the buzzer to give the Lakers a 116-115 triumph over the Kansas City'Bmaha Kings. West got only seven points in the National Baksetball Association game but he got the big basket when the Lakers needed it.

West's basket prevented rookie Jim Price from being the goat of the game. Price hit two free throws with three seconds left to give the Lakers a 114-113 lead.

But he then was charged with a dead ball foul when the Kings tried an in-bounds pass at midcourt and Nate Archibald made two free throws to give the Kings a 115-114 margin.

In the other NBA games, Houston beat the New York Knicks 96-90, Boston downed Atlanta 98-94, Detroit topped Chicago 113-95, Buffalo beat the Capital Bullets 98-94 and Seattle beat Philadelphia116-104.

KEEPS COACHING JOB

Athletic Director Lucas Steps Down

The last man to hold the dual positions of head football coach and athletic director at a Marin high school has resigned the latter post, calling it "too time consuming."

Don Lucas of Terra Linda High submitted his resignation as A.D. on Monday, but will continue to hold the position until his successor is named, and will stay on as football coach.

"The athletic directorship is too time-consuming," he said, "and the time can be used more effectively in pursuing those things which are more valuable to me at this time."

The list of those activities includes teaching physical education at the school, working with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, and serving on a variety of committees in the Marin County Athletic League and the North Coast Section, plus "a variety of self-improvement projects."

Lucas has been at Terra Linda for 13 years, has coached varsity football for seven and was athletic director for five.

The A.D. job has become progressively more difficult during that period. "It's the timeliness rather than the magnitude," Lucas said. "Water polo and soccer were moved to the fall. I was trying to coach my sport (football) and little things kept coming up to disrupt it."

Citing substantially the same reasons, Novato High's Al Scott resigned as athletic director last spring but remained as football coach.

Terra Linda principal Frank A. Stocking said word of the opening was being circulated through the San Rafael School District and that applications would then be accepted. He hoped to be able to name the new athletic director by the end of the semester next Friday, but said it might take longer.

IN TUCSON OPEN

Miller Hopes 71 Only Poor Round

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Johnny Miller, the leader in the $150,000 Dean Martin Tucson Open, hopes yesterday's one-under- par second round was his worst of the tournament.

Miller starts today leading with an 11-under-par 133. But, in the second round he fired a 71 that was marred by three bogeys on the back nine.

"I hope this was my bad round," said the blond Napa resident as he finished his ninth straight session of under-par golf.

But the score was well above his record setting 10-under 62 performance in the opening round.

"I haven't played in the wind for so long and that threw my putting off," he said. Westerly winds gusted across the 7,200 yard Tucson National course.

"I didn't condition myself to the wind. It would control the ball, pushing it around," he said.

The 1973 U.S. Open champ is trying to become the first player in 12 years to win three consecutive tourneys; the last was Arnold Palmer. Miller already has victories in the Bing Crosby Pro-Am National and the Phoenix Open and is the earnings leader with $60,000.

Four strokes off the pace at the end of 36 holes was Allen Miller, who carded a second round 71, one-under-par, leaving him at 137, seven-under-par. Miller, who is not related to Johnny Miller, also had troubles in the second round, bogeying three back nine holes.

The best second round score belonged to Jim Colbert, whose five-under 67 vaulted him into third place with a 138, six-under- par. Colbert had six birdies including a 50-foot chip shot on the par four, 420-yard third hole and a 40-foot putt on the 425-yard 16th hole.

Four pros were at 139, five-under-par, six shots behind Miller. They were Rod Curl, Kermit Zarley, Jerry Heard and Ben Crenshaw. Bunched at 140 were Gary Sanders, Jerry McGee, Roy Pace and Tom Shaw. Napa's Ron Cerrudo was at 144.

Scores in the second round were appreciably higher than Thursday with the wind making the course longer and drying out the greens.

Following the 36 hole cut at 146, two-over-par, 74 players were left for the final two days of competition. Victims of the cut included Lee Trevino, whose two-day 147 missed by one stroke. Also eliminated were Bert Yancey (147); Charles Coody (148); Frank Beard (149) and Rod Funseth (150).

Tee-off time for the third round was set at mid-morning with the weatherman promising above seasonal temperatures in the 70s and sunny skies.

BOWLS 268

Big Night Enjoyed By Nedderman

Four Country Club Bowl competitors shared the bowling spotlight this week in local league action:

Jeff Nedderman, who sported a 116 average, bowled a 268;

Larry Gruver, who had a 181 average, notched a 706 series and;

Nedderman was participating in the Jacks and Jills League Thursday night. Tedford bowled three consecutive 111s Tuesday night in the Alibi League. Faber garnered a 252, 235 and 193 Wednesday night in the Splinters League. Gruver of San Quentin shot a 235, 249 and 222 Thursday evening in the Mariners League.

World Team Tennis Gains Recognition

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Lawn Tennis Association, the father of organized tennis, has offered to take another wayward child under its wing.

Already at peace with contract professionals and various players' associations, the USLTA announced yesterday it would sanction World Team Tennis.

Now USLTA President Walter E. Elcock is waiting for WTT and its president, Jordan Kaiser, to accept.

Under the proposal, dues would be $200 per match for each of the 16 teams scheduled to begin play in May, plus a possible percentage of television revenues. The estimated $140,000 would put WTT players in good standing for USLTA events, such as the U.S. Open.

It also could pave the way to acceptance by the ILTF, which had threatened to ban WTT from the major international championships. The ILTF is meeting in London Jan. 26, and Elcock said he hoped Kaiser would accept the offer by that date.

Major 2-Mile Run In Examiner Games

A confrontation in the two-mile run among Steve Prefontaine, Frank Shorter and Emiel Puttemans will be featured at the 11th annual San Francisco Examiner Games next Friday starting at 6:30 p.m. at the Cow Palace.

The world class track and field meet also will include several other top performers.

Puttemans, of Belgium, currently holds the world records for two and three miles. Prefontaine has been America's premier distance runner the past three years, and Shorter, the current Sullivan Award holder as the nation's foremost amateur athlete, won the Olympic gold medal in the marathon in 1972. Also in the field is indoor three-mile record holder Tracy Smith.

They head a large array of prominent athletes in several events. A partial list includes Al Feuerbach and George Woods in the shot put; Kjell Isaksson of Sweden and Dave Roberts in the pole vault; Dwight Stones and Reynaldo Brown in the high jump; Randy Williams and James McAlister in the long jump; Rod Milburn, Tom Hill and Tom Lee White in the hurdles, Steve Williams and Herb Washington in the sprints; and Dave Wottle, Kenya's Ben Jipcho and Marty Liquori in the half-mile and mile.

Also on tap will be invitational events for women, seniors, high school students, junior college stars and collegiate athletes, beginning at 6 p.m.

Tickets cost $6, $5 and $4 and are available at Macy's, Greyhound and Ticketron outlets throughout the Bay Area, plus the Examiner, the San Francisco Downtown Center box office and several other sites. Mail orders should be sent to Cow Palace, San Francisco 94124.

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The Transition To Adult Status

By JEFF GREER

The sudden scary metamorphosis from what the law calls an "infant" of 17 years, 11 months to an "adult" of 18 was explained yesterday to Redwood High School seniors by Douglas D. Bosco, director of the Marin County Human Relations Department.

"The 'infnat,' let's call a juvenile. He or she is the object of a lot of social concern," Bosco said. "The juvenile is treated under the law much as a good father would treat his own child. But let the juvenile turn 18 and very little mercy is shown if he or she violates the law."

Bosco was one of the speakers in the final day of a three-day "consumer awareness crash course" at Redwood High School.

The school's 600 seniors also were exposed to the utility-fighting ideas of Mill Valley consumer advocate Sylvia Siegel and the merchant's side of consumerism by two officers of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce.

Bosco's talk, "Your Legal Rights at Age 18," drew the largest attendance of any of the 11 seminars during the three-day experimental course.

Law requires the state to "protect" juveniles with closed court hearings, their own attorneys if desired, sealed records, and extensive probation programs, Bosco pointed out. Adulthood means that the state turns prosecutor over law violations, he said.

There are compensations for the 18-year-old's suddenly toughened status under criminal law. The new adult can marry without consent, vote, run for office, get in debt and do everything older persons legally may do except drink alcoholic beverages, Bosco pointed out.

Recent law changes lowering the age of "majority" from 21 years to 18 have not yet been changed to include drinking in California, Bosco noted.

Chamber of Commerce vice presidents R. David Muir and Jack McNutt warned that consumers are paying higher prices because other consumers "are ripping off" businessmen by not paying their bills, and sometimes by stealing merchandise or damaging it so badly that no one else will buy it.

Small businesses commonly lose $10,000 a year on unpaid bills, McNutt explained. "If you can only collect 90 to 92 per cent of what's owed you, you must add to your prices" for goods or services, McNutt said. "Unfortunately, it's not as fashionable as it used to be to pay for things."

Muir added that his firm, which operates a chain of clothing stores, finds it cheaper to pay $360 a month for a shoplift control electronic gadget than to stand theft that previously averaged $750 a month. Such costs must be added to merchandise prices, making the store less competitive with other stores.

Muir said that in large department stores, employees commonly steal about as much as outsiders take — also adding to consumer costs.

McNutt, whose firm operates an employment service among other activities, praised young people as being "most often the best credit risks. . . they don't always do it the way they're supposed to, but they sure try. Where we have trouble is with the over-30s," McNutt added. "In our office we'll extend credit to any youngster getting that first job."

While McNutt and Muir stressed that most merchants are governed by competition and supply and demand, Mrs. Siegel decried that public utilities virtually have no competition in an ever-growing market.

The only way to regulate utility rates, she said is through such agencies as the federal Power Commission and the California Public Utilities Commission.

The state commission is politically appointed and its members "are ruling in the investor's interest rather than in the public interest," Mrs. Siegel charged. Bay Area cities had the highest percentage of utility bill increases in the nation last year.

"I'm not very proud of that," she said, "but the rates would be worse if I weren't there fighting."

She urged that the students learn about the public's interest in the utility problem and "above all get active in this — my hair is getting gray."

She called for the teen-agers to check up on energy saving both in the home and in auto use, but said she was not sure an energy shortage, if it really exists, wasn't "contrived" by the oil industry.

The three-day, intensive program to teach consumer awareness to the seniors was sponsored by "Survival for Singles," a consumer course taught by Sue Chelini, in cooperation with government teacher Constantino Lavezzo and Bette Wallace, county consumer deputy and Tamalpais School District trustee.

Each Redwood senior attended three or more of the seminars as part of the required government studies. After polling student reactions to the short course next week, it may be modified and offered to high school and junior college students countywide, Mrs. Chelini and Mrs. Wallace said.

Students showed most interest in the discussions of legal rights, auto repairs and advertising fraud.

Apparently reflecting lack of personal experience, the teenagers were less numerous and asked fewer questions in sessions on credit, tenant-landlord problems and the merchants' side of consumerism.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO SELL REAL PROPERTY AT PRIVATE SALE
NO. 21897

In the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Marin

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, subject to confirmation by the above entitled Superior Court, the undersigned, as Conservator of the Person and Estate of LEATHA BRINK, Conservatee, will, on February 20, 1974, at 12:00 P.M., or thereafter within the time allowed by law, sell at private sale to the highest and best net bidder on the terms and conditions hereinafter mentioned all right, title, and interest of LEATHA BRINK, Conservatee, and all right, title, and interest that the estate has acquired in addition to that of the Conservatee, in the real property located in the County of Marin, State of California, described as follows:

LOT 5, in Block 2, as shown upon that certain Map entitled, "Morningside Court, Map No. 1, San Anselmo, Cal.", filed May 29, 1924 in Book 5 of Maps, at page 32, in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Marin, State of California.

The property is commonly referred to as 1416 Sir Francis Drake Blvd., San Anselmo, California.

The sale is subject to current taxes, convenants, conditions, restrictions, reservations, rights, rights of way, and easements of record.

The property is to be sold on an "as is" basis, except as to title.

Bids or offers are invited for this property and must be in writing and will be received at the office of DONOVAN O. COOKE, M.D., Civic Center, Hall of Justice, San Rafael, California, or the office of his attorneys, VALLARINO, COSTAMAGNA & MOREHOUSE, A Professional Corporation, La Plaza, 4340 Redwood Highway, San Rafael, California, or may be filed with the Clerk of the Superior Court, at any time after first publication of this notice and before making the sale.

Bids must be sealed and will be opened at the office of DONOVAN O. COOKE, M.D. at the hour of 12:00 P.M. on the above date.

The property will be sold on the following terms: cash or part cash and part credit, the terms of credit to be acceptable to the undersigned and to the Superior Court, ten percent (10%) of the amount bid to accompany the offer by certified check, and the balance to be paid on confirmation of sale by the Superior Court. Taxes, rents, operating and maintenance expenses, and premiums on insurance acceptable to the purchaser shall be prorated as of the date of confirmation of sale. Examination of title, recording of conveyance, transfer taxes, and any title insurance policy shall be at the expense of the purchaser or purchasers.

The undersigned reserves the right to reject any and all bids prior to entry of an order confirming the sale.

SAN FRANCISCO BAY CONSERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMMISSION
30 Van Ness Avenue, San Francisco 94102

NOTICE OF AMENDMENT TO McATEER-PETRIS ACT REQUIRING FILING OF CLAIMS OF EXEMPTION

Any person who claims an exemption from the permit requirements of the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission (BCDC) for a project involving further fill in the Bay must file his claim and supporting documentation with the Commission on or before April 1, 1974, for Commission determination of the validity of those rights. Failure to file a proper claim on or before April 1, 1974, will result in the loss of any exemption rights and subject the project to normal BCDC permit requirements. In cases where the Commission has already determined that a fill project is exempt from the permit requirements of the Commission, a new claim of exemption need not be filed if those persons involved in the project have in their possession a written determination by or on behalf of the Commission that the project is exempt.

Forms for filing claims of exemption will be available at the Commission offices after January 3, 1974. Claims will be accepted for processing only on these forms, and the forms must be completed and submitted with documents supporting the claims as prescribed in Sections 10840 through 10849, inclusive, of the Commission's Administrative Regulations. Because there is a substantial amount of material required of the claimant in supporting a claim of exemption, persons who wish to file a claim should contact the Commission staff in writing as soon as possible for additional information on filing claims. ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE

Superior Court of California, County of Marin

In the Matter of the Application of JEANNE SUE ZWEIG

To Change her Name to JEANNE JIWAN JHOTI KAUR ZWEIG.

WHEREAS JEANNE SUE ZWEIG, Petitioner, has filed a Petition with the Clerk of this Court for an Order changing Petitioner's name from JEANNE SUE ZWEIG to JEANNE JIWAN JHOTI KAUR ZWEIG;

IT IS ORDERED that all persons interested in the above entitled matter appear before this Court at 9:00 A.M. on January 31, 1974, in the courtroom of Dept. 1 at the Courthouse at San Rafael, California, to show cause, if any, why the Petition for change of name should not be granted.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of this Order to Show Cause be published in the Independent-Journal, a newspaper of general readership printed in the County of Marin, State of California, once a week for four consecutive weeks prior to the date set for hearing on this Petition.

Novato Honors Citizen Of Year

John G. Stuber, 46-year-old engineer, was honored as Novato's citizen of the year for 1973 at the city's 14th birthday anniversary party last night.

Stuber, manager of Murray-McCormick Environmental Group was lauded for its community efforts and described as a man who does much for other, but remains in the background.

Stuber was cited as "a mover" in the successful Novato Flood Control District and North Marin County Water District bond measures last year.

As community services director of the Novato Rotary Club, he is chairman of the project to construct a senior citizen housing project. He is a director of the Novato Boys Club and was active in the club's building fund campaign.

Margaret A. Coady, Novato historian, was given a special award for her work, collecting items of Novato history and creating displays at city hall. City Mgr. Charles A. Brown was given an award from the Novato Human Needs Center for his help in establishing the center.

In a series of design awards selected by the Novato Plan Review Committee, the award for the best overall project was given to the city for Pioneer Memorial Park.

Winners in other categories were.

Commercial — The Neighborhood Grocery on Marin Valley Drive.

Renovations — The Standard Service station at Seventh Street and Grant Avenue.

Signs — The Hoytt Office Building's free standing sign on Novato Boulevard, near Seventh Street.

Public Projects — Pioneer Memorial Park Cemetery Improvements.

In a lighter vein, Independent-Journal reporter Frank Farrara was given a certificate of appreciation for his columns containing "goading jests" at governmental officials.

The dinner sponsored by the city and the Novato Chamber of Commerce was attended by about 300 persons. Chamber president Gordon Lee was master of ceremonies.

Solar Heating No Longer Just Idle Talk

By KRISTEN KELCH
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

BOSTON — As you sit huddled in your overcoat this winter, look up at the sun. One day, it could be a rich energy source for heating your home.

The competitive position of solar energy has been so drastically enhanced by energy demands that 40 large industries have banded together with a Cambridge-based research company, Arthur D. Little Inc., to study the business opportunities.

The companies represent public utility, copper, chemical and, in nine cases, Japanese and German interests, and collectively they have invested some $600,000 in the study project.

While big business in this country is just beginning to catch fire to the concept of sunpower, solar hot water heaters are already commercially produced in Australia, Japan, and Israel.

To spur government action, more than 100 congressmen endorsed legislation last October to begin a $50-million program to find practical ways of harnessing the sun's energy to heat and cool buildings.

"We've never had to consider conserving energy before. We thought we would never run out of it," said Dr. Peter Glazer, a vice-president of Arthur D. Little.

"But this isn't just a crisis that will be over in a few years; we're just seeing the beginning of an energy dilemma that's not going to subside until we begin to employ alternative sources of energy."

If the U.S. depended on the sun for even one percent of all its energy needs, for example, it would save the equivalent of 100-million barrels of oil a year. Or, if half our energy needs were maintained by solar power by the end of this decade, oil savings would equal the daily two million barrels projected to be delivered through the Alaskan pipeline.

Unfortunately solar climate control is more easily adapted to new homes, designed with solar heat in mind, than to old homes. In addition, sun power only carries part of the heating load.

For example, an office building was designed for the Massachusetts Audubon Society that will rely on solar energy for about 60 per cent of its energy requirements for heating and cooling. The rest will have to be supplied by auxiliary energy sources.

A conventional solar system consists of four basic parts: A collector, an auxiliary heating device, a heat storage system and heater elements, and a fan and air duct system.

The collector works on the greenhouse principle. Black metal under the glass roof allows the sun rays to enter through the glass, but deters heat rays from escaping. Water runs between the metal and the glass to transfer the collected heat. The heated water is stored in an insulated storage tank until needed.

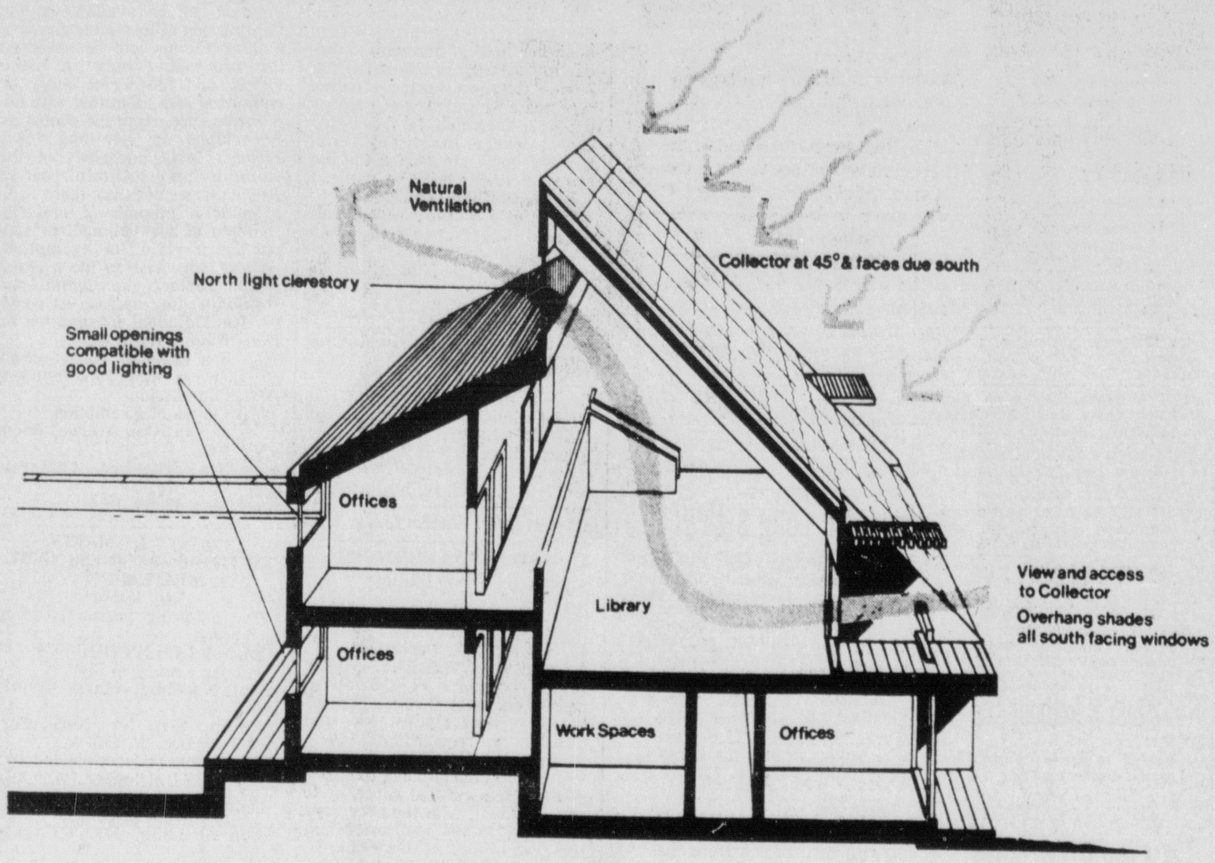

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology built a solar-heated house in 1955, operated it four years, pronounced it a successful experiment, and then abandoned the project. Fuel was cheap and plentiful in those days, Dr. Glazer said, and nobody wanted to bother with solar energy.

That is, not until now. Currently, the research firm is studying the installation of solar climate control devices in eleven types of buildings in various regional climates across the country. In five years, Dr. Glaser estimated, the cost of installing the equipment in a new, three-bedroom home will be between $3,000 and $5,000.

But if the cost of solar energy seems unreachable today, it must be compared with the higher fuel prices of tomorrow, Dr. Glazer said.

"And it's not just the higher cost of fuel," he added. "The real question is, in five years, how much fuel will be available."

Reagan Adviser Will Direct Health Agency

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday appointed James E. Jenkins, a retired career Navy officer and one of the governor's top advisers, as secretary of the state Health and Welfare Agency.

Jenkins, a 50-year-old Republican who has been assistant to the governor and director of public affairs since 1971, replaces Dr. Earl Brian, who resigned Thursday to make an expected bid for the GOP nomination for the U.S. Senate.

Jenkins, who retired from the Navy in 1966 as a captain, will receive an annual salary of $39,612. As the governor's assistant and public affairs chief he was paid $33,960 yearly. His new post also will make him a member of Reagan's cabinet.

"I am extremely pleased that Jim has agreed to take on this new responsibility," Reagan said, "because his background, training and familiarity with the complex problems facing the Health and Welfare Agency will be of inestimable value to the state."

Jenkins joined the Reagan administration in 1969 as deputy director of the state Department of Finance and directed the Washington, D.C., office of state government.

"Jim has a long record of administrative achievement that recommends him well for this important assignment," Reagan said. "I am confident that he will do an outstanding job."

Jenkins, a resident of Carmichael, obtained a bachelor's degree in marine engineering at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y., in 1944.

He was public affairs director for the 11th Naval District, and public affairs assistant to four U.S. secretaries of the Navy and has been assigned to various media relations assignments.

He is married and has three sons.

Opinion On Abortions Announced

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A minor girl can obtain an abortion in California without consent of her parents, Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger said yesterday.

But a girl under age 18 must have sufficient maturity to give "an informed consent" for the abortion before it may be performed, Younger said in an opinion written for Assemblyman William Lancaster, R-Covina.

Younger based his opinion on a 1971 California Supreme Court decision that a minor girl could obtain an abortion without parental consent on the basis that a therapeutic abortion is care related to pregnancy.

The request can be denied if the minor girl cannot convince medical authorities that she has the understanding and maturity to give an informed consent, Younger said.

Lancaster also asked Younger to discuss the authority of the legislature in controlling abortions in view of the 1973 U.S. Supreme Court decision on abortions.

Younger said the state has no power of regulation during the first 12 weeks of pregnancy except to require abortions be performed by licensed physicians. Between the 12th and 24th weeks, the state may legislate "to the extent that the regulations reasonably relate to the protection of maternal health," the opinion said.

During the final months of pregnancy, the state may prohibit an abortion unless it is necessary to protect the life or health of the mother, Younger added.

Gregg Smith Heads Union

Gregg A. Smith of San Rafael, audio visual technician at San Rafael High School, is the new president of San Rafael Chapter 341, California School Employees Association.

He succeeds Lowell Body of Petaluma, head custodian at Sun Valley School.

Other new officers are: Dee Serio, vice president; Gerry Ziegler, secretary; Alforetta Bottini, treasurer; and Sylvia Levine and Dee Wettstein, recorders.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Early 'Duck' Is Very Useful Bird For Maintaining Control

Customarily, you develop a suit by taking the high cards and then giving up low cards as needed. The reverse method is to give up a low card first and take the high cards later. This type of play, called a "duck," helps you keep control of the play.

HEART ACTION

East won the first trick with the king of hearts and returned a heart to South's queen. South led out the ace and king of diamonds, discovering the bad break.

There wasn't enough time to develop diamonds. West would win a diamond and knock out the ace of hearts. When West got in with his other diamond trick, he would cash the rest of the hearts, defeating the contract.

MUST HAVE BREAK

South had to rely on a 3-3 spade break to develop his ninth trick, and South went at it with all the delicacy of a bull in a ballet. He cashed dummy's top spades and led a third spade.

Now South had his ninth trick, but he had managed to lose the eighth trick. He never won a trick with dummy's ace of hearts. The opponents took a spade, a heart, and two diamonds, and then set to work on the clubs. South eventually lost a trick to East's queen of clubs.

SPADE DUCK WORKS

South can make the contract by ducking the first round of spades. That is, he gives up the low spade, allowing dummy's ace and king to stay in dummy.

Regardless of the return, declarer can cash dummy's top spades and ace of hearts. Then he can get to his own hand with a club in order to take the last spade.

Today is Saturday, Jan. 19, the 19th day of 1974 with 346 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase. Technically there is no morning star. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Saturn.

Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee was born Jan. 19, 1807.

On this day in history:

In 1861, Georgia seceded from the Union.

In 1969, two airliners were hijacked to Cuba, one with 171 persons aboard.

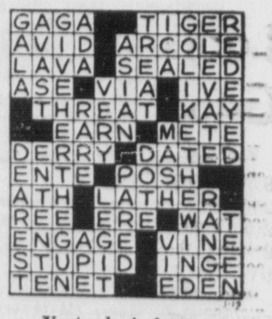

A thought for the day: Southern Gen. Robert E. Lee said, "Duty is the sublimest word in our language. Do your duty in all things. You cannot do more. You should never wish to do less."

WOVEN SCULPTURE — "Synaesthesia," a massive, winged form made of yarn, fiber, leather, and wood by Carole Yelland is included in her exhibit of ritualistic woven sculpture at Gallery Three in Larkspur.

ART REVIEW

A Sense Of Interaction Looms In Exhibit Of Woven Sculptures

By ADA GARFINKEL

A bullet-scarred metal duck, a rusty broiler grid and a volcano in Guatamala inspired three of Carole Yelland's woven sculptures included in her show at Gallery Three in Larkspur.

Her largest work, "Synaesthesia," is suspended from a huge wooden bow. This massive, winged form of many yarns and fibers with funny little wisps of reddish cornsilk looks like an awesome fetish. Actually is was inspired by a tamale-making experience.

Miss Yelland relates to her sculptures by interaction and as "a total expression of an intense flying time in my personal evolution."

Her ruggedly handsome three-dimensional works evoke visions of sorcery and ritual. They sport orifices, protrusions and surprising enclosures. "Synaesthesia," for instance, conceals a tamale husk and a bit of cornsilk in an inner crevice. And "Grateflight" provides a pouch for "filling with herbs to waft an appealing fragrance."

Function and craft crossbreed each other for the artist. She uses a circular loom and hand-dyes many of her yarns. Marigolds and onionskins produced the gold tones in "Melange" and a cactus plant the deep red.

In some sculptures the form is determined by clusters and strands. In several works both weaving and form are more controlled. The elliptically-shaped "Opening-Blue," the mask-like "Melange," and the totemic "Winged Face" are in the latter catagory. Their mysterious presence is accentuated by their shape, contour, color and mood.

"Bird Resurrection" is a sancturay for a duck-target resurrected from the old Playland-at-the-Beach shooting gallery in San Francisco. Its stage-like setting repeats the duck motif in a tapestry-woven backdrop. Thus seen, this piece enters the realm of memorabilia for nostalgia.

A rusty, manipulated broiler grid serving as an armature in the sensuous "Ode to Bolinas" is draped with braided and woven yarns, sisal, goats hair, and chenille. Its cascade of weathered beach stones, biomorphically shaped and pierced by the constant action of the waves, emphasizes the inherent "good-luck-charm" or fertility evocation.

This display will continue through Jan. 31. Viewing hours are from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Gallery Three is located at 1026 Magnolia Avenue in Larkspur.

Larkspur Students Get Good Reading Test Marks

Youngsters in the Larkspur School District performed exceptionally well on standardized reading tests last May and October, the district board has been told.

Supt. Milton S. Cohen said trustees were "extremely gratified" with the report Thursday of psychologist Joan Florian that first, second, third and sixth grade pupils scored "high in regard to state, Marin and all medians of ranking results."

Third-grade youngsters demonstrated abilities normally attributed to fourth grade pupils, and sixth grade youngsters demonstrated a seventh grade learning ability, he said.

"We had beefed up our reading program" before the testing, he explained.

Cohen estimated that district youngsters scored in the top 2 per cent of those taking the tests.

In other business, the board learned that youngsters are being taught about the energy crisis as part of the curriculum, and learned that a district audit showed bookkeeping to be in excellent shape.

The board also learned that Cohen was one of 20 superintendents in the country to be invited to a Columbia University seminar on school district administration. Cohen cannot attend the summer seminar, however, because of a previous commitment.

The board next meets at 8 p.m. at Feb. 7 in the administration building.

Three Are Chosen For Symphony Scholarships

Three students will split the $500 Marin Symphony Association Memorial Scholarship this year.

The top award of $200 and an opportunity to appear with the Marin Symphony Orchestra was given to 18-year-old violinist Dan Smiley, the son of Mrs. David Smiley of Mill Valley.

The Juilliard School of Music student will use his scholarship toward tuition. This summer he will play in the San Francisco Symphony Pops Orchestra.

The second place award of $150 was given to both 20-year-old pianist Julie Jordan and Rebecca Jones, a 20-year-old coloratura soprano.

Miss Jordan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Jordan of Martinez, studies piano at Dominican College on the Maurice Wilkes Scholarship.

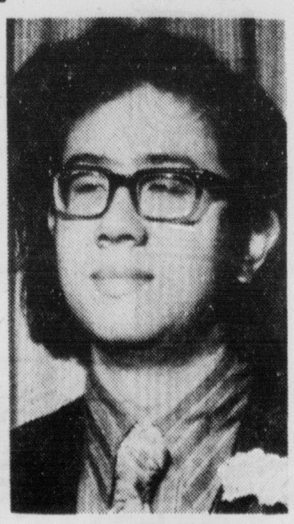

She was also recently named winner of the Maybelle Speckmann Scholarship. Miss Jordan has appeared as a soloist with the Contra Costa Youth Symphony and Berkeley Junior Bach Festival. She will appear as a soloist with the Orchestra Piccola in March.

Miss Jones is a voice major at Dominican College. She appeared in the leading role of Sonoma State College's production of "Street Scene" as well as in the San Francisco production of "Montgomery Street." She also appeared in the television program "The Golddiggers" for one season. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Jones of San Rafael.

Third place honorable mention was awarded to Patricia Mason, 24, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Mason of Mill Valley.

Miss Mason is a junior at the University of Michigan where she plays in the University Philharmonic Orchestra and wind ensemble. She has appeared with the Marin Symphony Orchestra, the College of Marin Community Orchestra and the Berkeley Free Orchestra.

A panel of four judges from the Scholarship committee awarded the scholarships after the Jan. 5 auditions.

Chief To Seek More Personnel

Fairfax Police Chief Charles A. Grasso will request three additional police officers during June budget hearings, he told the Independent-Journal.

Grasso said he now uses reserve officers because his department is currently understaffed.

There are 11 full-time officers, counting himself, the chief said, adding that only two of the department's 12 reserve officers are assigned vehicles for patrol beats.

Grasso's statement came in response to a column in Monday's I-J which called attention to the use of reserve officers in Fairfax.

Combination Courses To Be Offered

Indian Valley Colleges in Novato will offer coordinated courses, combining fields of study, during its spring semester starting Feb. 4, according to President Ernest H. Berg.

One of the courses will be "First Person Singular: an Exploration of Personal and Interpersonal Communication," which will combine English and psychology.

Another will be "The Romantic Strain," covering the Romantic period through coordination of art, music, literature and history.

Registration is open at Indian Valley Colleges, 720 Ignacio Boulevard, weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 6:30 to 9 p.m. until Feb. 4.

Individuals also may register at the College of Marin for Indian Valley courses from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. until next Thursday.

$3 Million Damage To Roads In Storm

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State highways have sustained more than $3 million in storm damages due to heavy flooding in Northern California, according to transportation officials.

Highways hardest hit by slides and washouts were in Mendocino County, where about $800,000 damage has occurred, and in Humboldt County, which sustained $850,000 highway damage.

New York Finally Gets Deputy Mayor

NEW YORK (UPI) — After two earlier nominees failed to prove their records were faultless, New York finally has its first black deputy mayor, Paul Gibson, currently a vice president at American Airlines.

Mayor Abe Beame's first choice was David Dinkins, who withdrew in December after disclosing he had failed to pay his taxes for the past four years. State Sen. Joseph Galiber, the second nominee, pulled out after questions were raised about how he financed his campaign for city comptroller last year.

Tale Of The Tapes: Too Little Candor

Call it double-talk, gobbledegook, the Madison Avenue syndrome, or whatever you will — too many of the statements we hear and read these days are phrased to conceal or obfuscate. There is a noticeable absence of frankness and candor.

Consider, for example, the case of the White House tapes.

JOHN DEAN, striving to clear himself of primary responsibility for assorted campaign atrocities, told the Ervin committee last spring of conversations he had with President Nixon. Since he obviously was a far-from-disinterested witness, what he said could not be accepted without corroboration.

But he dropped an interesting suggestion. He said he thought one of his conversations with President Nixon had been surreptitiously tape-recorded.

The Ervin committee did not follow up the hint. Instad, it called the president's two top aides, H. R. Haldeman and John B. Ehrlichman, to get their versions. And Haldeman and Ehrlichman, each in his own way, did a masterful job of obfuscation.

But along in July, a White House staff member named Alexander Butterfield disclosed to the committee that all the president's White House conversations had been tape-recorded.

HERE WAS presented an easy way to find out who was telling the truth, and how much of it: Simply listen to the tapes. So the committee requested tapes of conversations about which there was contradictory testimony. And Archibald Cox, then Watergate special prosecutor, did the same.

President Nixon had said he was eager to get to the bottom of Watergate. He wanted the whole truth to come out, he had told the American people.

But he refused to let either committee or prosecutor listen to the recordings. He argued executive privilege. He said to allow anyone outside the White House to hear the tapes would "destroy confidentiality." He would fight to prevent release of these tapes which could prove or disprove Dean's story — all the way to the Supreme Court, he said.

Cox and the Ervin committee went to court. Judge John J. Sirica ruled that the senators were not entitled to receive the tapes, but that the special prosecutor was.

The president then surprised everybody by announcing that he would turn over the tapes to Judge Sirica.

HERE APPEARED to be almost the first piece of candor in the whole affair. But it didn't last long. The president's lawyer informed the judge that some of the tapes were missing.

They were supposed to have been kept in strict security, according to the president himself. But it appeared that "security" was just a Madison Avenue word, just something to sound nice in an advertisement. Tapes had been taken out and returned with no check on whether what came back was what went out.

And then, when time came to deliver the remaining tapes, the president's new lawyer disclosed that 18 minutes of one of them was blank. And by what could only with greatest charity be called a remarkable coincidence, that 18 minutes covered the conversation which was in dispute — between Haldeman and the president three days after the Watergate break-in.

Rose Mary Woods, the president's secretary, testified that she thought she might have erased part of it inadvertently. Up to five minutes, she said. No more.

So Judge Sirica had the tape submitted to four experts — two chosen by Leon Jaworski, who succeeded Cox as special prosecutor after the president fired Cox for insisting on getting the tapes, and two by the president's attorney of the moment.

The four experts subjected the tape to a series of delicate tests. They returned with an unanimous finding: The 18 minutes had been erased by at least five separate operations. None of it could have been done as Miss Woods described it.

AT THAT POINT, it would seem that further double-talk, further obfuscation, was beyond even Madison Avenue. Somebody purposely erased the only part of the recording that was of value in arriving at the truth about Watergate. No other explanation is credible.

But does frankess and candor surface, even at this point? Hardly! Even members of the Ervin committeee, interviewed on the subject, dodged the obvious and resorted to double-talk.

And nobody, it seems, even suggested the simple solution: Ask President Nixon, flat out, whether he directed that the conversation be erased, and if so, whom he told to do it.

Of course, he might not answer, except with further obfuscation.

For Mustard-Lovers

Marin mustard-lovers, for whom a meal is not a meal without their favorite hot, brown paste, cannot be considered strange or unique. In European monastaries in the Middle Ages, an important post in connection with the gardens was that of "mustardarius." His sole pupose was to see that all the kitchens were supplied with this seasoning. The amount consumed was great because it was considered essential to eat mustard with all salted meat and fish. Today we know the hot stuff contains enzymes that aid the digestion of meat.

Charlemagne's Garden

Many Marin gardeners plan their gardens and gather their seeds for spring during the chill, wet days of winter. We just happened on a vegetable list that the Emperor Charlemagne had made for his royal gardener in 812. It included beets, cabbage, lettuce, celery, radishes, parsnips, parsley, onions, garlic, leeks, shallots, chevril, coriander, dill, poppy, savory and corncockles.

The emperor evidently did not like carrots. Yet, though more than a thousand years have passed, his garden list is not too different from our own. Except, we don't plan on planting any corncockles this year, unless they have another name.

"Concerning the energy situation, Mr. Simon, what would be your guess for today?"

"Another 20 feet and we'll have mined under."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Amendment Needed To Protect The Unborn

Any woman who asks for an abortion can get one up to the date of birth. In 90 per cent of the abortions the baby is killed by pulling the baby apart by suction, injecting salt solution, or by cutting the baby in pieces with a sharp knife. In the remaining 10 per cent the baby is born alive, sometimes cries, and is left to die.

Human life is becoming increasingly expendable in the "sweet land of liberty, the land of the free and home of the brave." The aborted child never knows liberty as it is denied the basic right to be born. This travesty of justice will continue until we are brave enough to restore this inalienable right.

No woman wants to kill her baby and no baby wants to die. Why then is this happening? Because in today's decadent society a woman and her child are of little value.

It has been a year now since the Supreme Court decided that unborn babies weren't worth saving. That infamous decision will toll the death knell for over 1,000,000 babies each year. Only you can reverse this decision. Write your congressman and senators and ask them to support a human life amendment to the constitution.

Power Surge Puts Appliances Out

On Nov. 30 we received a charming and totally unexpected gift from the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. It was a six hour-long surge of high voltage which did over $200 worth of damage. Several of our neighbors were also hit and a rough estimate of damages in our immediate area comes to well over $1,000.

Our furnace, refrigerator, electric toothbrush and eight light bulbs were burned out. A neighbor lost her refrigerator, stereo and TV for a total loss of $500. In answer to our claims PG&E sent us a "Dear John" letter disclaiming liability, citing their regulation 14 which claims non-responsibility for losses incurred by power "outages" due to acts of God such as storms.

This public be-damned policy from a public utility is to us, outrageous. It will be a David and Goliath scene but we intend to meet them in court.

Cermenho Landed Here When Ship Was Wrecked

The newest Drake dig needs all possible protection, and I agree with your editorial call for the county to guard it. But by pinpointing the site with that front-page photo, aren't you inviting the very vandalism you deplore? It wouldn't surprise me one bit if souvenir hunters arrived on the scene with waders and shovels the same day your paper came out with the story.

As for your editorial claim that Rodriguez Cermenho "never set foot" in Marin, the facts should have been checked. As every dutiful fourth grader learns, Cermenho lived here from Nov. 6 to Dec. 8, 1595, camped on Limantour Spit when his ship went down in Drakes Bay. But, after doing the research for my book, "Passage to Drakes Bay," I understand how tricky it is to keep Marin's historic events straight. Better luck next time.

JEAN MONTGOMERY

Mill Valley.

(We erred in our editorial of Jan. 10 in saying that Sebastian Rodriguez Cermenho did not set foot in Marin. His ship, the San Augustin, was wrecked in Drake's Bay, where artifacts established as from the wreckage were found in 1940 and 1941 by University of California archeological expeditions. Cermenho and his crew put together a viroco (a pre-fabricated boat which had been brought from the Philippines aboard the San Augustin), and in an epic adventure, most of them reached Mexico aboard this tiny vessel. The wreck occurred in 1595 — 16 years after Sir Francis Drake's landing — so does not affect the fact that Drake was the first European to set foot on these shores, as far as is known. Nor would any structure which may have been put up by Cermenho's men antedate one built by Drake's crew. —Editor)

Thinks Greenbrae Site More Likely Landing

Your coverage of the possible Drake Fort site in Bolinas Lagoon was dramatic and interesting. The actual landing site is an intriguing and ongoing mystery that deserves such coverage — especially to us history freaks!

But, please, will the venerable I-J get its historical head straight about some pertinent items? In his article, Greer included a mention of historians being puzzled because Drake's plate apparently traveled from the "landing site." This echoes two persistant I-J misconceptions; (1) Drake's fabulous "plate of brasse" was carried from somewhere else to be "rediscovered" in the Greenbrae site, and, (2) Drake did not land in the Greenbrae area. Neither of these inferences have any bases of fact. Indeed, if we don't know where Drake actually landed, how can we know where he didn't land? Also, since the brass plate is the only tangible proof of Drake's visit, its discovery in the Greenbrae site calls for a careful archeological exploration as part of any future development of the adjacent Point San Quentin area. Neasham's appeal for a $25,000 excavation of Bolinas Lagoon is based on far less preliminary evidence.

Another persistent bit of historical confusion has to do with Cermeno, a Portuguese navigator hired by the Spanish to explore California's wilderness coastline. Notwithstanding your laudable editorial of Jan. 10, Cermeno did land in Marin County. Not only that, he and his crew built fortifications on the shores of present day Drakes Bay, assembled a small sailing vessel, traveled throughout the countryside and engaged in what has to be the first battle with Marin's original citizens. Add to this the fact that his ship was probably the first to wreck on Marin's shores. Also, indirectly, Cermeno was responsible for naming the Bay of San Francisco and, hence, the city of. But that's another story!

Thanks again for any and all historical coverage.

Britain's Problems Far Worse Than Those Of United States

It is fortunate for the British people that they have been through many trying times in their long history and survived them all. This gives them and their good friends elsewhere comfort and confidence in their ability to weather their present ordeal. But it is quite an ordeal, and if Americans sometimes get anxious about their own present problems, they have just to glance across the Atlantic to notice how much more difficult are the problems of some others.

A year ago this month the British joined the European Common Market in high hopes which have not yet been fulfilled. They have been in increasing economic trouble ever since — not because they joined the market. But to someone who is living through worsening conditions, it must be difficult to avoid an assumption of a cause-and-effect relationship. The temptation is to assume that if things have grown worse since joining the market they could be remedied by getting out. Yet is that option really open?

Britain is too small an economic unit to be viable in today's world all by itself. Economic isolation is theoretically possible for countries as vast and as well supplied with raw materials as the United States or the Soviet Union. But they are the only two which really could pull up the draw-bridges and live within themselves on a semitolerable basis. Their living standards would go down, but they could manage.

OF THE ECONOMICALLY important countries in the world, Britain and Japan are the least equipped to do the same. Both must import not only much of their food but also most of their raw materials in order to keep afloat. They must trade — or export most of their population until the remainder is down to a subsistence farming level. They must be part of a trading community, or resign.

Japn has largely solved that problem in this generation by becoming the major supplier of high technology products around the fringe of Asia. Japan has a new trading empire in which its finished products are exchanged for food and raw materials.

Britain used to have the world's greatest colonial empire. It is gone. Once there was a theory that the advantages without the liabilities could be retained by calling the departed members of the old empire a commonwealth. It hasn't worked. Trade within the Commonwealth declines as British trade with Western Europe revives.

Another theoretical alternative once seemed to be a closer association with the U.S. and Canada. Whether that might have worked is one of those questions which history cannot answer. Perhaps it was possible right after World War II. Right now, there is no interest whatever in Washington in the subject. It is a politically nonexistent idea.

THUS BRITAIN'S only available choices are complete economic isolation or membership in the Common Market, and of the two membership in the Common Market offers by far the better life, even though it means painful problems of adjustment. Right now the big problem is how to keep the British rate of inflation down to European levels without paralyzing strikes and labor slowdowns at home. The British inflation rate is at present worse than the European average, meaning that the British economy is losing competitive ability. But if Prime Minister Edward Heath were to settle his issue with the coal miners by giving them the 20 per cent wage raise they demand, he would only make matters worse.

As for the United States, it has problems enough, with inflation running far ahead of any calculations or expectations of the government economists. But the dollar is again a desirable and sought-after item of currency. The economy is on a broad foundation. There is little wrong with it that a peace settlement in the Middle East wouldn't relieve. And that does seem to be coming along steadily.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Rockefeller, To Be Winner, Should Renounce Oil Profits

WASHINGTON — By running for president for the third (or maybe it's the fourth) time, Nelson Rockefeller is enlivening a dreary political scene. He finds himself the target of the professional rightists and the professional leftists, each side smiting him for its own reasons.

For the right, he is a big spender and a high taxer. He may claim to have cleaned up New York state's rivers and to have put through other major reforms during his four terms as governor, but he did it with the people's money and they would have been better off spending their own money. So goes the refrain on the conservative side.

The professional leftists slam Rockefeller as the archetype of the establishment. He is the sign and symbol of eastern seaboard wealth and quondam power. They ridicule his Commission on Critical Choices, caricaturing it as a sleazy device to escape exposing his own positions on critical issues. Granted that caricature is not too hard to arrive at.

LET ME STATE my own position. Of all the visible and half-visible candidates for 1976, Rockefeller is by both domestic and foreign experience the best equipped. He has proved himself as an administrator, and, beginning with his experience in World War II as coordinator for Latin-American affairs, he has demonstrated his understanding of the currents of foreign policy.

His handicap, in my opinion, is his identification with big oil, and oil is likely to be the leading issue of the campaign this fall and in 1976 as well. Gasoline prices, gasoline shortages, the shortfall of heating oil with cold homes — these add up to deep discontent and a profound distrust of the five or six major oil companies.

Nelson's grandfather, the first John D., put together Standard Oil, the cartel colossus that fixed production, prices and distribution. It was the basis of the huge Rockefeller fortune that has proliferated through three generations.

As proof of how tight the hold still is, a recent prediction by economist Walter W. Heller, who was chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, puts the rise in the profits of the oil company majors at $24 billion in 1974 over 1973. This is based on the assumption of a 50 per cent rise in retail prices of petroleum products over the levels of last summer. That is an educated guess.

If Congress gets off the dime and enacts the "windfall profits" tax, Heller estimates that about $8 million of this gain will be paid to foreign governments and $3 billion to the United States Treasury. This would leave a net after-tax profit of $13 billion. Outside the oil industry, profits, according to Heller, are expected to decline by 8 to 10 per cent compared to 1973 levels.

TO TAG NELSON with the rapacity and the power to crush all competitors of his grandfather may seem unjust. But the legacy of that era when Ida Tarbell and the other muckrakers exposed price fixing and the rigging of markets and rail rates cannot be simply sloughed off.

A spokesman for the Rockefeller family says the present generation has a comparatively small holding in the oil companies put together by the founding father. But comparatively small for a Rockefeller would be an awful lot for an ordinary citizen.

If he is a serious candidate, Rockefeller, in my opinion, has only one choice. That is to dissociate himself from big oil. He can do this by declaring for the excess profits tax on the huge increment that will come to the majors as the result of swiftly rising prices for gas and heating oil.

The field of 1976 is narrowing. Spiro Agnew, who as vice president was considered virtually the No. 1 prospect, sank without a trace in the mire of Maryland's corruption. And whatever happened to the big Texan, John Connally? He rated high when it appeared possible that the president would name him to the vacant office of vice president.

The man in the catbird's seat is Gerald R. Ford. So long as he keeps his counsel, looks strong and honest, he has the best chance of all. While not the helmsman, as the loyal first mate he is ready to take the wheel at a moment's notice and the hopes of outsiders would correspondingly diminish.

DISPOSABLE TRASH

Industry Faces New Order

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America's disposable society, which stacks trash heaps and drains energy wells at the same time, should be halted where it began — in industry — says President Nixon's top environmental adviser.

Russell W. Peterson, 57, a native of Portage, Wis., took over in December as Chairman of Nixon's Council on Environmental Quality. He is no stranger to industry. He is a former Dupont chemist who led the research that developed the "Dacron" fiber.

He also, as governor of Delaware, froze the industrial development of that state's shrinking shoreline to protect the remaining Atlantic dunes and beaches from the marching smokestacks of progress.

How much influence Peterson will wield within the administration remains to be seen, since the agency advises the White House on environmental issues but enforces no laws.

Asked in an interview about America's rapacity for non-returnable bottles, plastic containers and multi-wrapped paper products, Peterson said the disposable phenomenon "is kind of disgraceful in a way."

RUSSELL W. PETERSON
Environmental adviser

"By either a voluntary effort or a promotional effort or by some government regulation, we ought to change the trend," he said, adding:

"One of the things I believe merits serious consideration is requiring that every manufacturer be responsible for the ultimate collection, disposal and reclaiming of its products. For example, say an automobile company.

"If they had the responsibility to recover their automobile after it finished its service, you can bet that they would start designing automobiles to facilitate the recovery of the materials in them.

"They might even go so far as to say 'Well, we're going to get back all of our Chevrolets after four years.' Calculation might show that would be a good time to bring them all back and pay the owners X dollars and then proceed to recover the materials in them."

Asked how he would apply the concept to the countless consumer products on the market, Peterson said he had no "nice clear little formula."

"I picked the automobile because that would be an easier one. A refrigerator, an air conditioner, a radio, a television set might also be easy to handle. With some things like bottles and cans, maybe the way that could be handled would be if the manufacturer would initiate his own mechanism for collecting them — or maybe the community would do that and then charge the manufacturer the cost of collection and disposal.

"But it seems to me that when a person manufacturers and sells a product to the community, the operation ought to carry the expense of how we eventually dispose of the product," he added.

Peterson belives the energy crisis will have no long-term negative impact on efforts to clean up the air and water.

"In fact, I think the opposite will happen — that the energy crisis will force us to face up to some of the things we haven't been facing up to in the past," he said. Less demand for energy and less waste of it, he said, could ease the pollution problems that accompanied the time of high demand and liberal use.

Peterson believes wiser use of existing energy reserves — including coal — accompanied by a zero growth rate in the population, will permit America to solve it energy problems.

"I believe we can markedly reduce the demand curve for the next 20 to 30 years, and produce an amount of energy within our own shores and as a result stop usurping so much of the world's energy as we have been doing."

One benefit of the energy crisis, Peterson believes, will be a change in the way many Americans live.

"I see this as resulting in a marked acceleration in the movement to mass transit and that in turn would lead to making the central cities more viable, making them a more attractive place to shop, to go for entertainment, to live," he said. "It might well play a key role in helping to rejuvenate our central cities."

Two Nations Aiding Israel On Refugees

By DAVID WINDER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

UNITED NATIONS — Japan and The Netherlands, both badly hit by Arab oil embargoes, have suddenly taken an increased interest in Palestinian refugees — with money, to match.

Both countries are planning to raise their contributions to UNRWA (United Nations Relief and Works Agency), the institution set up in 1950 to help provide for Palestinians who fled or were expelled from the land that became Israel in 1948.

Of the estimated 2.7 million Palestinians throughout the world today, 1.51 million are registered as refugees with UNRWA, and 40 per cent of these are eking out a meager existence at settlements in various Arab "host" countries.

The program faces a substantial deficit in 1974 that could deprive the refugees of some essential services, including schooling.

This would be a serious blow to the Palestinians, who look upon education as an escape route from their desperate living conditions, which have spawned so much political terrorism. More upheavel is likely, unless the international community comes through quickly with hard cash.

Apparently, the pressure of Arab oil cutbacks has brought this fact home to Japan and the Netherlands.

Japan's contribution will jump from $1.1 million in 1973 to $5 million in 1974. This compares with Tokyo's 1972 aid commitment of $2.8 million for the entire Arab world.

It was learned here that Japan's Palestinian contribution, not yet publicly announced, will be made known at Friday's pledging conference of UNRWA.

The Dutch, hardest hit among Europe's victims of the oil cutback, are to double their contribution next year from 400,000 Dutch guilders ($144,000) in 1973. (The Dutch made additional contributions this year for Palestinian refugees directly, and through a Common Market pool).

UNRWA is in desperate financial straits largely because its contributions are voluntary, and its costs not transferred to the UN's regular budget.

"Every year we go through this awful business. A lot of energy and worry go into wondering if we can continue," said Sir John Rennie, commission-general of UNRWA, in an interview at UN headquarters.

Behind The News

SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, JANUARY 19, 1974 31

Next year, as a result of inflation and dollar devaluation, the UNRWA deficit will be about $6 million to $7 million. It would have been in the region of $10 million, had the Japanese not been so generous.

The last three years of schooling for Palestinian refugee children, who now receive nine years in the classroom, will be chopped, unless funds are immediately forthcoming. This cut would affect 56,000 children and mean the termination of the contracts of over 2,000 teachers.

In a little-publicized statement to the UN special political committee earlier this month, Sir John Rennie remarked soberly, "It may appear unthinkable that at this juncture in the Middle East, UNRWA should be allowed to disintegrate before the expiration of its current mandate at the end of June, 1975, but this may well be the result if reductions are forced on the agency."

A cutback in essential services is considered in sympathetic circles here a cruelly ironic blow, at a time when a Middle East settlement may be just around the corner and when Palestinians have increased political leverage.

Until fairly recently, the refugees were viewed almost exclusively within a humanitarian context. Now increasingly there is stress on their "national rights" and "self-determination."

Rations, supplementary feeding, health care, sanitation, welfare, schools, and vocational training are provided by UNRWA, which operated on a total budget of $63 million in 1973. The U.S., with a contribution of $23.2 million, is the largest contributor.

This Week In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

In the Egyptian desert, near the Suez Canal, military commanders from Israel and Egypt met this week to sign an agreement to separate their armies along the cease-fire lines, thereby ending a quarter of a century of conflict.

President Nixon called the pact, brought about by the diplomatic efforts of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, "the first significant step toward a permanent peace in the Mideast."

Official Egyptian sources said President Anwar Sadat was hopeful of reaching an overall peace settlement before the end of the year. The agreeement clears away the last major obstacle standing in the way of full-scale peace talks in Geneva.

Kissinger had spent a week traveling between Israel and Egypt to work out the accord, on disenagagement of troops, the last item not resolved in a cease-fire agreement signed in November.

Israeli sources said a U.N. peacekeeping force would occupy a corridor between the two armies. They also said Egypt was to remove all surface-to-air missiles from the Sinai.

Around The World, Around The Clock

WASHINGTON — Technical experts said the 18-minute buzz in one of the White House Watergate tapes was caused by a series of starts, stops and erasures. They were prevented by President Nixon's lawyers from saying whether they believed the gap was deliberate. U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica said he was considering recommending a grand jury probe of how the erasures happened. A spokesman for the FBI confirmed it was investigting the tape.

WASHINGTON — President Nixon returned to the White House after 18 days in California. The White House announced he would deliver his State of the Union adddress before a joint session of Congress Jan 29.

WASHINGTON —New regulations reducing heating oil supplies by 15 per cent went into effect. The government said homeowners would have enough fuel if they turned down thermostats by six degrees. Major oil firms began releasing figures on their inventories of oil. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administrationdropped by as much as 20 per cent in November in 16 states that had voluntarily cut speed limits.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — A three-judge panel recommended that former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew be disbarred. The panel cited "deceitful and dishonest" conduct in violating federal income tax laws.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — Gerald R. Ford returned home for the first time since becoming vice president on Dec. 6. Earlier, in a speech in Atlantic City, N.J., he criticized efforts of the AFL-CIO and Americans for Democratic Action to bring about President Nixon's impeachment.

LAGONEGRO, Italy — Three men were arrested and charged with the kidnaping of J. Paul Getty Jr., grandson of the U.S. oil billionaire. Money believed to be part of the $2.9 million ransom paid for his release was found in the Rome apartment of a man arrested for drug possession, police said.

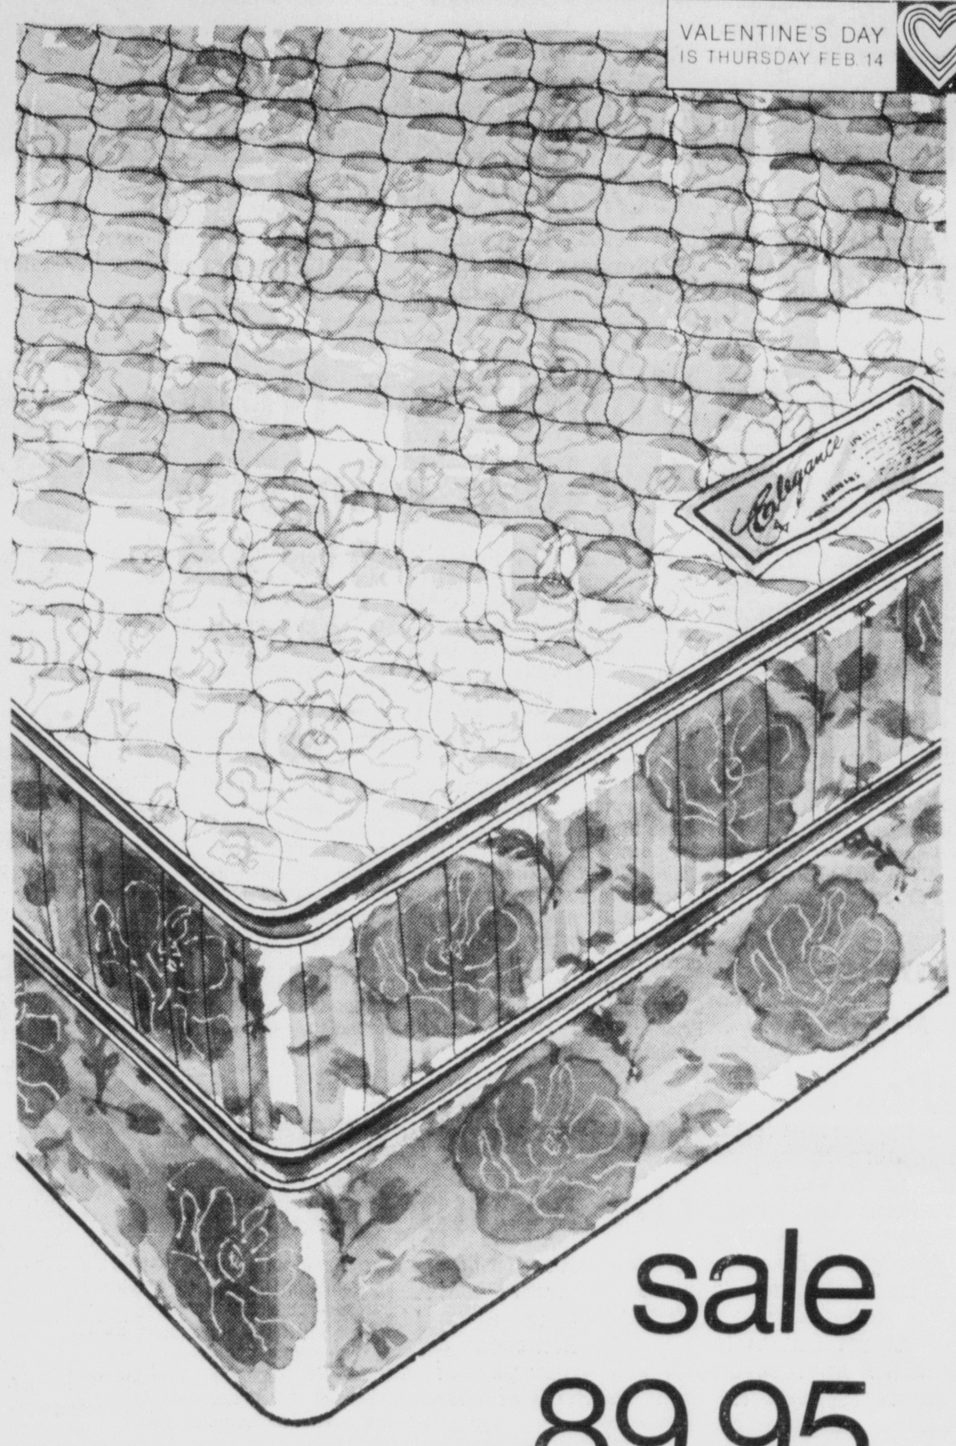

HOUSTON The Skylab 3 crew set a record for time spent in space, passing the mark of 59 days, 11 hours, 9 minutes and 4 seconds set by Skylab 2. Space officials gave them a go for another at least another week despite the erratic performance of a gyroscopic control device.

OF GOD AND MAN

We're Pikers At Giving

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

From a moral viewpoint, the most important thing to remember about the current "era of shortages" is that our deprivations are purely relative.

Americans are "short" of energy and other things only in the sense of having a bit less than they used to have or would like to get.

We still are, by a long margin, the warmest, best fed, most mobile people on the earth. Even if our standard of living should drop during the coming year to a far greater degree than economists now anticipate, we'd still be — compared to most of the rest of humanity — very fat cats indeed.

This point needs stressing at the start of a New Year because it may help forestall the kind of self-pity that would cause Americans to feel justified in being stingy toward other peoples of the world who are really poor.

The myth persists that Americans are generous givers to the needy of the world. But it just isn't so.

During the Marshall Plan years following World War II, we did give about 3 per cent of our national income to help other countries get back on their feet.

But our present "foreign aid" programs — although a constant target of taxpayer gripes — are on a pathetically small scale. They represent about one third of 1 per cent of our national income.

This means we are giving today only one-ninth as much as we gave two decades ago to relieve hunger and suffering in other countries.

Nearly every industrialized nation in Western Europe now gives a larger portion of its national income to overseas relief than America does. The only countries that give less than we, on a percentage-of-income basis, are Spain, Portugal and Italy.

It is not lack of need that has caused U.S. aid programs to dwindle. Two-thirds of the world's children still suffer malnutrition of sufficient severity to retard their mental and physical development. In Africa, south of the Sahara, creeping drought threatens more than 6 million people with starvation. In India, some 200 million people live on incomes of 10 cents a day or less. Nigeria's per capita income is even lower than India's.

One could go on indefinitely citing facts and figures to demonstrate that the poor and hungry of the world still need help from America as desperately as ever they did. The only change is that we've stopped sending them very much.

What can one individual do about it? Well, he might write to his congressman and say that he's for a substantial increase in foreign aid appropriations.

And he needn't wait for Congress to provide aid with tax funds. Private contributions can be channeled to the hungry abroad, efficiently and with low overhead, through such agencies as CARE, Church World Service, Catholic Relief Services and Lutheran World Relief.

All of these agencies conduct periodic campaigns for public contributions. But too many Americans shrug off the appeal. One survey indicates the average U.S. church member gives less than a penny per month to overseas relief organizations.

In a parable recorded in the 25th Chapter of Matthew's gospel, Jesus tells of the final judgment at which a key question God will ask of the condemned will be:

"Why didn't you feed me when I was hungry?"

And the condemned will reply in puzzlement, "When did we ever see YOU hungry?"

And God will say: "Whenever you closed your eyes or turned your back to a fellow human being in need."

It wouldn't be a very snappy answer to say at that point:

"Gee, Lord, did you really expect me to worry about a starving child in Bangladesh when I was having to pay $2 a pound for my own steak?"

Lecturer Will Speak On Rights

What right does an individual have to be himself and to be free?

"Right now," Aghamalian says, "you have the right to be yourself — the man God made, the man Christ Jesus exemplified. Right here you have the right to control your experience and be free. And, forevermore you have the right to fulfill your God-directed purpose."

Aghamalian will speak at the invitation of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Larkspur in the Corte Madera Recreation Center, Tamalpais and Eastman Aves. at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Child care will be provided at the Christian Science Church, 1 Magnolia Ave., Larkspur.

Aghamalian, a native of Brooklyn, New York, withdrew from business in 1951 to devote his full time to the healing ministry of Christian Science. In 1964 he became a teacher of Christian Science. He is currently on extensive tour as a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

Unitarians Name A New Minister

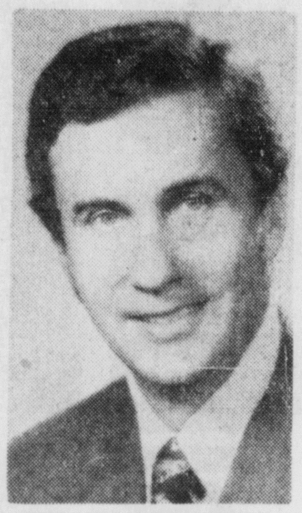

Rev. Sidney A. Peterman is the new minister of the Marin Fellowship of Unitarians at 240 Channing Way, San Rafael.

He joins Rev. Bettye Doty, who has served the Fellowship as associate minister since 1972. The former minister, Karel Botterman, retired last June and was granted the title of minister emeritus.

Peterman, a graduate of Starr King School for the Ministry, comes to Marin from the Palo Alto Unitarian Church, where he has served as interim minister. He has an interest in Eastern philosophy, heightened during his years in the East as Asia director for the Pacific Counseling Service in Tokyo. Prior to that he served as minister of Unitarian churches in Monterey, San Jose, Columbus, Ohio, and Eugene, Ore.

Peterman was born in Seattle, but grew up in California in the Santa Clara Valley. He graduated from San Jose State in 1946. His early interest in teaching and philosophy led him to teach philosophy there for a time before entering the ministry. Prominent in Peterman's philosophy is the belief that the church must be responsive to the needs of people trying to cope in the most rapidly changing societies in human history.

Peterman will give his first serman as minister of the Marin Fellowship tomorrow. A reception in his honor will be held immediately following the service.

REV. RODNEY ROMNEY
To speak in Fairfax

Broadcaster Will Speak In Fairfax

Radio broadcaster Rev. Rodney Romney will speak at the Fairfax Community Church on Friday, Jan. 25, at 8 p.m.

Reverend Romney's program, "Hour of Prayer" is on station KFAX five mornings of the week at 7:45 a.m. and widely heard over the Bay Area. He is pastor of the Lakeshore Avenue Baptist Church in Oakland, and has been minister since 1962. He is known as an excellent speaker at prayer retreats and at Camp Fartherest Out summer camps.

Reverend Romney will be introduced by Ray Pitsker, who is associated with the Family Church of Marin. Reverend Pitsker is a minister and counselor and is known as a leader of men's groups in self-realization.

The evening will start with a potluck dinner at the Fairfax Community Church at 6:30 p.m. Those attending should bring a hot dish, salad, or dessert sufficient to serve eight persons, and their own cups, silverware, and dishes. The church will serve coffee and tea.

Organist To Play At St. Paul's

Patricia Jennerjohn, organist of Trinity United Methodist Church in San Francisco, will present a recital on the Centennial Memorial Organ at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 1123 Court Street, San Rafael, at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

She was second place winner in the Berkeley Piano Club's 1970 Young Artist competition and a finalist in the 1972 Mu Phi Epsilon, Berkeley Chapter, scholarship competition. She has also appeared in numerous solo recitals and as an accompanist in Hayward, Berkeley, San Francisco and Lafayette.

Her program will consist of: Prelude and Fugue in C minor, S.546, Bach; Chromatic Fantasia, Sweelinck; Trio Sonata No. 4 in E minor, S.538, Bach; Pastorale, Franck; Sonata No. 2, Hindemith; Chorale No. 3 in A minor, Franck.

St. Luke Study Series Planned

St. Luke Presbyterian Church, Bayview Drive and South San Pedro Road, has announced a series of studies beginning tommorrow for youth and adults.

The first series is to be conducted by the Pastor, Rev. Ian Frazer Young, and is entitled: "The Stuff of the Faith."

Titles of the weekly discussions are, "I'll Believe What I Want To!", "On the One Hand, On the Other" (Who Am I? and the Nature of Conversion); "Give Me Good Old St. Janes"; "Teach Me to Pray"; "A Good Book by the Fire"; and "Who Can You Trust."

A second series will follow, concluding on Palm Sunday, and will be led by members of the congregation.

Panel Will Examine The Marin Person

The Marin Cluster for Education, a loose association of churches in Southern Marin, is sponsoring a night concerning the "Nature of the Marin County Person" at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo, Wednesday.

After a dinner beginning at 7 p.m. in Duncan Hall served by the Women's Association of the San Anselmo church, elders and other officers of the Presbyterian churches in southern Marin will have opportunity to hear various perspectives given by Bryce Anderson, associate editor of the Independent-Journal; Arnold Baptiste, former chairman of the board of supervisors; and Hugh Marchant, representing the Marin County Board of Realtors.

After the dinner remarks each speaker will lead a group discussion with the elders. The evening will conclude with a devotional by Ben Kinney, minister of the Sleepy Hollow Presbyterian Church.

Barton To Head Latin Program

DALLAS (UPI) — The Rev. Dr. Roy D. Barton has been appointed director of the Mexican-American program for Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University.

Dr. Barton has been director of the Council of Ministries for United Methodism's Rio Grande conference since 1968.

Dean Joseph D. Quillian of SMU's theology school said Dr. Barton also would serve as associate professor of paretical theology.

Annual Meeting Of Church Set

The annual meeting of the Church of St. Francis of Assisi in Novato will be held tomorrow after the 10 a.m. worship service. Other services will be cancelled so all may worship together and meet to review 1973 and plan for 1974.

Elections scheduled for the annual meeting are four vestrymen for three-year terms, one vestryman for a one-year term to fill the unexpired term of Tom Henderson, three delegates and three alternates to the Diocesan convention and the executive board of Episcopal Church Women.

Unity-In-Marin Slates Concert

Unity-in-Marin will present a concert at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 25, in the auditorium of the First Methodist Church, 9 Ross Valley Drive, San Rafael.

The concert will be excerpts from "Jesus Christ Superstar". Jim Mossbocher will portray the role of Jesus. He will sing Pilot's songs and will be accompanied on the piano by Janet Wolfe and Aron Gelf on the Guitar.

There will be refreshments following the performance. At that time there will be an informal discussion with the players regarding their roles and their interpretation of them.

A donation will be used to purchase an organ for the Unity Church.

Former Prisoner Special Speaker

The Bethel Baptist Church in Novato, 1929 Novato Blvd., will have as speaker tomorrow at 7 p.m. Luther Brown of M-2 Sponsors.

M-2 Sponsors is a volunteer organization of concerned people who agree to visit, write to, and befriend in various ways, prisoners in state penal institutions. Brown is a former prisoner himself. Nursery is provided.

Dr. Theodore A. Gill First Guest Speaker

Dr. Theodore A. Gill, president of San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo, from 1958 to 1966, will be the first speaker in the "Distinguished Pulpit Guests" series at Old First Church, Van Ness & Sacramento, San Francisco, tomorrow.

Dr. Gill will preach at the regular 9:30 and 11 a.m. services on "Pebbles and Peoples," and will participate in an informal dialogue with the public from 6 to 7 p.m. in the social room.

At 7:30 p.m. Dr. Gill will adress a special ecumenical service. His topic: "Scoring A Life."

The "Distinguished Pulpit Guests" series is one of the major programs of Old First Church's five-month (January through May) 125 anniversary celebration.

Another major program, the "Master Artists" series, gets under way on Sat., Jan. 26, at 8 p.m. with a concert by the Oakland Symphony Chamber Chorus, presented for the benefit of the Old First Center for the Arts.

Dr. Gill brings to his San Francisco appearance a worldwide reputation as a speaker, writer, editor, university and seminary teacher. A native of Minnesota, Dr. Gill was educated at the University of Wisconsin and Princeton Theological Seminary, and earned his doctorate at the University of Zurich, with Emil Brunner.

After two Eastern pastorates and a college chaplaincy, Dr. Gill became managing edit of the Christian Century, America's leading Protestant weekly.

Following his six-year presidency at San Francisco Theological Seminary, Dr. Gill served for two years as executive secretary of the World Council's Joint Study Commission on Education, in Geneva.

Since 1971, Dr. Gill has been chairman of the division of arts and languages at John Jay College, City University of New York.

Leader Of Church To Serve Parish

GREENVILLE, S.C. (UPI) — The Most Rev. Ralph S. Dean, archbishop of British Columbia and former executive officer of the worldwide Anglican Communion, has chosen to give up his prestigious position for the chance to serve again as a parish priest.

Dr. Dean has accepted the post of assistant to the rector of Christ Church of Greenville, an Episcopal parish with 3,900 members.

Religious Writers Choose Top Stories

NEW YORK (AP) — Symbolizing an apparent trend in U.S. religious life, a dramatic victory by conservatives in a major Protestant denomination was cited by the country's religion news writers as 1973's top story in their field.

That event, in which backers of a literalistic view of the Bible consolidated their dominance of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, still is producing repercussions in the ranks.

However, the tendency toward a more conservative approach to faith was not an isolated affair.

It also was reflected in the year's religious development rated in second place — the increased emphasis on personalized religion in contrast to a previous stress on social activism.

In this connection, the religion writers cited a growth of Bible study and prayer groups, more interest in evangelism instead of social causes, and more concern for congregational life than national denominational service projects.

Another clue to the conservative swing, rated as the third-place religion story, was the decision of the Episcopal Church to refuse ordination to women, turning down prolonged church ferment for such a change.

Still another sign of an old-style accent on the spiritual showed up in the fourth-rated development — a sharp upsurge in the charismatic or Pentecostal-type movement among both Protestants and Roman Catholics.

It was strongly Bible-centered and involved spiritual healing and praying in unknown tongues.

"Key '73," the yearlong, interdenominational Christian evangelistic crusade, was rated fifth, although some religion writers classed it a "bust." Others maintained it gave faith a new visibility in print and on the air.

Jewish leaders, who at first criticized the program as aimed at proseletyzing among Jews, said it actually had positive effects in stimulating dialogue that clarified ties of Christianity to Judaism.

Sixty-four religion writers on daily newspapers and other media took part in the poll, tabulated by Eileen C. Spraker, religion editor of the Wilmington, N.C., News-Journal papers.

Body Awareness Lectures Planned

The first in a new series of lectures on body awareness will be presented by Devta at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at 122 Ward Street, Larkspur.

Dr. James Carter will discuss and give a demonstration of iris radiology. The fireside evening teas will continue through March 31.

THE GROSSI DAIRY RANCH is nestled in the green hills just west of Novato, a modern, well-kept reminder that what was once Marin's foremost industry has not vanished from the county. Jim Grossi's father purchased the farm in 1919, and it has remained a family enterprise ever since. Now Jim is joined by two sons, Ralph and Ed, daughter Beverly and wife Rose in the operation of the 900-acre ranch and its herd of some 300 Holsteins. Elsewhere the Grossi family owns an oat hay farm and a beef cattle ranch.

Novato Dairy Has Its Roots In The Past, But Its Feet Very Much In The Future

For more than 50 years the Grossi family has been operating their dairy farm in the green rolling hills at the west end of Novato. And with lots of work and some luck, the upcoming third generation will see it through another 50.

"Daily farming is more interesting now than it was 10 or 20 years ago," says Jim Grossi, now 61, who has been seeing to the smooth running of this 900-acre ranch all his life. "It used to follow a set pattern of operation, but now there are more challenges."

Jim Grossi's father purchased the farm in 1919, after settling in the area from Switzerland after the turn-of-the-century.

THE OPERATION has grown under Jim Grossi's management. The number of milk cows has steadily increased, and now totals 300 Holsteins.

Two of Jim's sons — one not long back from college, the other scheduled to graduate soon — are going to try not only to increase the herd, but also to improve it by applying thorougly modern scientific breeding techniques.

Ralph Grossi, 24, is a good example of a modern young dairyman.

He has a degree in dairy science from California Polytechnic College in San Luis Obispo. He readily admits he enjoys more than just the day-to-day challenge of running a dairy farm at a profit, which, as his father says, is a considerable enough challenge.

IN RALPH GROSSI'S case, this "something more" lies in developing a purebred herd — pedigreed cows registered with the Holstein Association. He plans to develop a brood heard then sell breeding cows to others.

"It used to follow a set pattern of operation, but now there are more challenges," says Jim Grossi of Novato, who at 61 finds his life and work as a dairy rancher more interesting and satisfying than ever.

In the past couple of years alone he has increased the number of purebreds in the herd to 20 per cent.

Ralph will be joined later by his younger brother, Ed, who is graduating at mid-year from Cal Poly. Ed will work on both the dairy farm and the family's hay farm.

Outside the family members, there are four men hired to work on the farm.

THE GROSSI FAMILY is different from most dairy farmers in the state in several ways. Their 900-acre dairy farm near Novato is not large for the Marin-Sonoma area, but it is very large when compared with other areas — particularly in the southern part of the state, where 20 acres is substantial. They are also different in that they have interests outside dairying. The family manages a 1,500-acre oat hay farm in Rohnert Park, and own and operate a 100-head, 160-acre beef ranch in Sonoma.

But even with such broad-based interests, economic pressures have hit the Grossis hard in recent years, much as they have hit most dairymen. For one thing, feed costs have increased 80 to 100 per cent in the past year. Alfalfa hay, $40 per ton in the summer of 1972, shot up to around $80 per ton this past summer.

And since oat hay makes up only a very small percentage of the herd's diet, the Grossis use very little of their own crops.

"IN A SENSE, we're penalized for being efficient," Ralph says. "The milk pricing system is regulated, based on our costs. When we become more efficient, we hold our costs down, and the price of milk to the public is also held down. But it costs us to maintain this efficiency, and we aren't getting a return on that investment."

Recent price increases have not kept up with increased costs to the dairyman, he claims.

Stricter pollution requirements have also raised the Grossi's operating costs.

Run-off ponds have been built to protect the streams and lakes. Now they are building the first of several "free-stall barns" which will control run-off even more effectively. By keeping the cows indoors in separate stalls most of the time, the waste can be better controlled than if they are outside.

THE NEW BARNS will also be more efficient and are actually expected to increase milk production.

The Grossis have viewed their efforts in safeguarding the environment as a basic responsibility, and have moved quickly to meet the necessary requirements. Jim Grossi, in fact, feels particularly grateful to the environmentalists in Marin county.

"The environmentalists have helped us dairymen here. They like to keep the land open, and they like to see the dairies continue," he says, adding that he is fortunate because his ranch is in an area that falls under the protection of the Land Preserve Act. Unlike many other parts of the state, spreading suburbanization and high taxes won't force him out.

THE GROSSI FARM, about four miles from the city of Novato, is one of the dairy farms in Marin closest to San Francisco. Marin still counts dairying as a major if declining industry, with about 70 farms located throughout the county.

But Jim Grossi can remember when there were dairy farms located throughout Marin from the Golden Gate Bridge north, but no more. There are only a few left now between the bridge and the Grossi farm.

By DON KEOWN

As a youth in Germany, Henry Zimmerman decided to abandon his studies at the famed Leipzig Conservatory and his plans for a career as a concert violinist, in favor of the profession of piano-tuner.

"I just found piano-tuning more interesting," he says today.

And, he adds, some 45 years later, after practicing the profession of piano-tuner in four lands, it is a decision that has caused him not the slightest twinge of regret.

As the Zimmerman Piano Service, he repairs and tunes the instruments today, working out of his home at 29 Porto Bello Drive, San Rafael. And no Heifetz or Stern ever displayed more dedication to or enthusiasm for his profession than does Henry Zimmerman.

"After all," he asks, "where would the concert artist or the symphony be without the piano-tuner?"

ZIMMERMAN WAS born in Wiesbaden, Germany, in May, 1911, the third son in a family in which the father was a plumber.

True to the old country tradition, the oldest brother was trained for his father's profession. "There was no question, no doubt about it," Henry Zimmerman says. "My oldest brother was to become a plumber and that was that."

And for the second son, the career of electrician was chosen, so that he could work along side his brother.

But that, apparently, fulfilled the family responsibilities in the trades.

AND MUSIC WAS important in the Zimmerman home. Both parents sang in choirs and elsewhere. And there were musical instruments, including piano and violin, in the home.

So young Henry was encouraged in his natural gift for music. While other brothers also played music, it was the third son who showed the greatest talent. At age 7 he began lessons on the piano and violin.

"Just as it was for my brothers who were to become a plumber and an electrician, it was a parental decision that I was to become a musician." Zimmerman says. "That was the way it was done over there."

THIS LED YOUNG Henry to the Leipzig Conservatory and serious study of the violin.

The curriculum, however, called for one elective course outside the immediate scope of the student's field of study.

"Rather than choose science or medicine, I chose piano-tuning," Zimmerman says.

It was a fateful decision, leading to instruction inside the famous Bluthner Co. factory from the firm's professional piano-tuners. And soon to the abandonment of Henry Zimmerman's conservatory studies.

"I FOUND THAT I had a natural gift for piano-tuning," he says. And in Germany, in particular, piano-tuning was a highly regarded, prestigious profession "rather like the doctor or the lawyer."

There followed three years of apprenticeship for Henry Zimmerman at virtually no pay. "My training was my pay," he says.

He found, he says, that his years of study of the violin and piano had provided him with the training of the ears for pitch or tone that was vital to the successful piano-tuner.

His apprenticeship completed, Zimmerman practiced as a journeyman piano-tuner for various firms in several cities in Germany, advancing to piano-tuner technician.

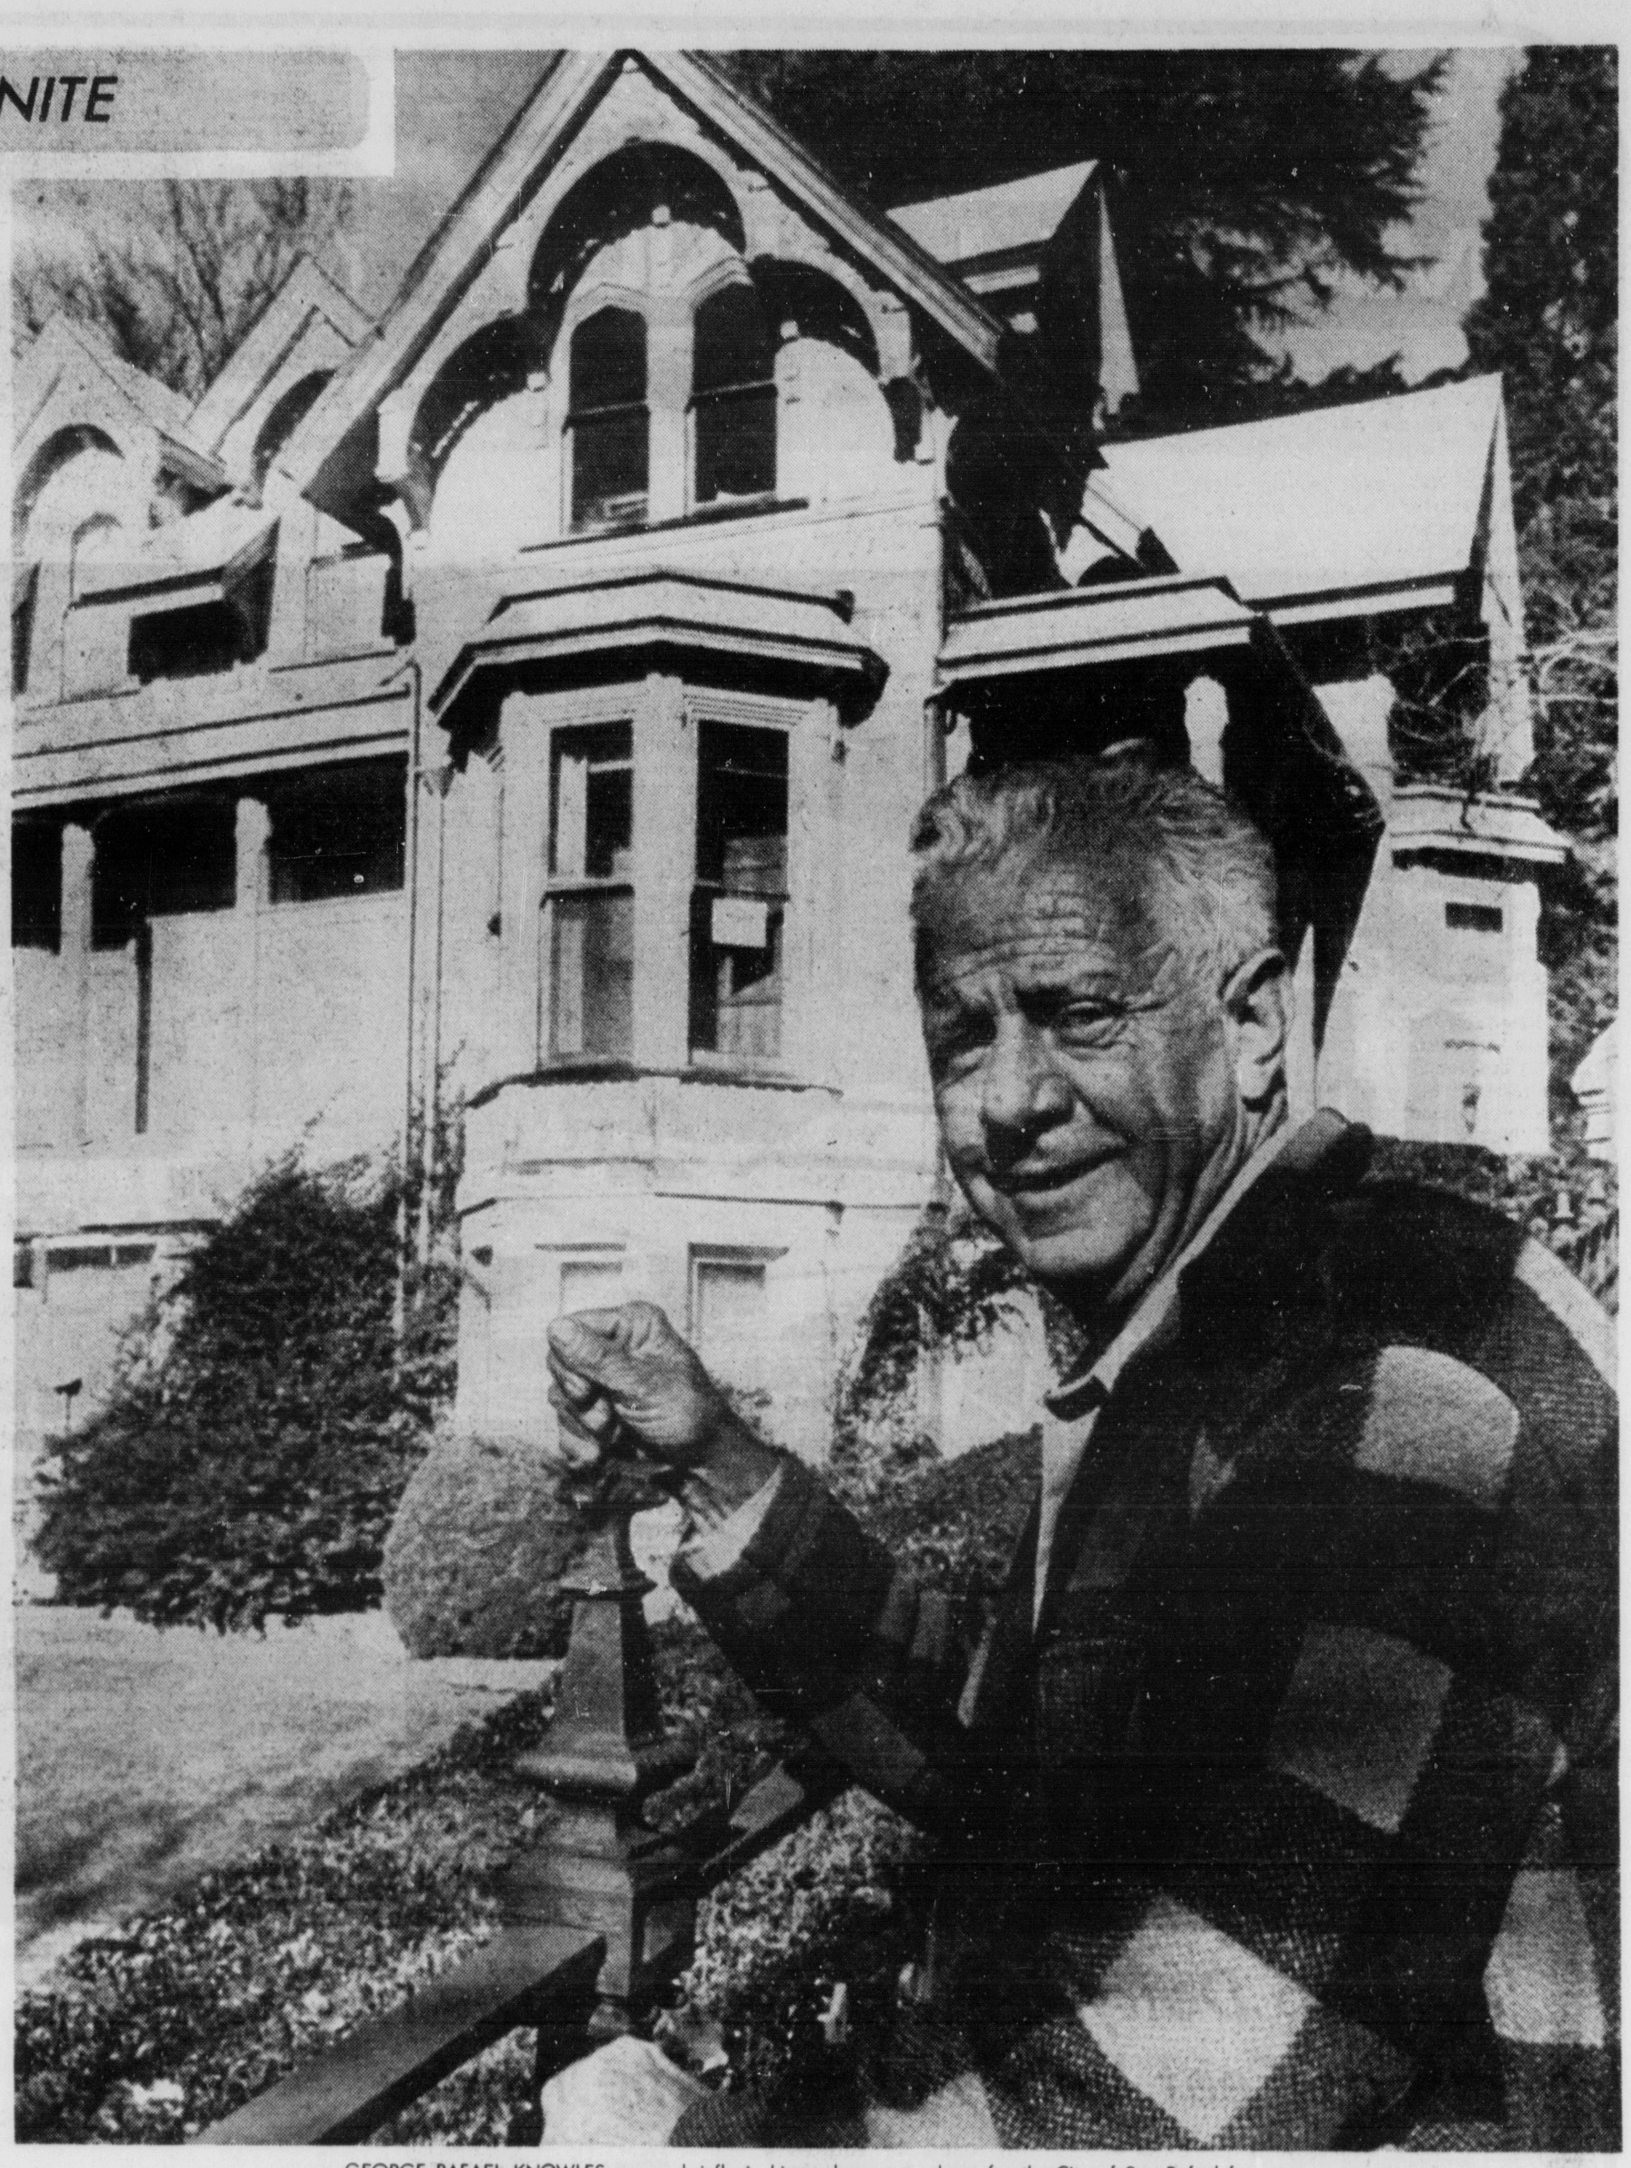

EVERY WELL-furbished German home had its piano, and there was a great demand for the services of tuners for new pianos emerging from factories or instruments already in use in the homes.

But Nazism had cast its ugly, menac-

PROFILE OF A MARINITE

"I'd be out of my bloody mind if I went back overseas. It's more of a challenge working here," says George R. Knowles, who has built roads in Saudi Arabia and shipped to China and Japan, but who now gardens for the City of San Rafael.

GEORGE RAFAEL KNOWLES pauses briefly in his work as a gardener for the City of San Rafael for a thoughtful moment before the historic Victorian home in which he was born. The house was once known as the Boyd Mansion, and now houses the Marin County Historical Society Museum in the city's Boyd Park. Knowles left his native city as a young man for a series of adventurous careers that took him around the world. But in 1965 he returned to San Rafael to make his home, and now he says of his city job: "Nothing could take me from it."

Native Son George Knowles Is Happy To Be Back At Home In San Rafael After Seeing The World

By NELS JOHNSON

George Rafael Knowles cruised the Orient as an apprentice seaman, headed a road crew that built the first asphalt highway in Saudi Arabia, and captained a commercial fishing boat out of the Golden Gate.

But he wants people to remember him as a gardener for the City of San Rafael.

"I want people to remember me cleaning those bloody traffic islands," the 60-year-old Knowles said.

"There's seven miles of traffic islands in this city, and I'm one of those in charge of maintaining them," he said proudly.

KNOWLES, MEMBER of a pioneer San Rafael family, has lead a long and active life, "a fulfilling and happy life all the way through."

Knowles, son of a gardener, was born in the Boyd mansion, which now serves as the Marin County Historical Society Museum in Boyd Park in San Rafael. His father was named city caretaker of the estate after it was given to San Rfael at the turn of the century, and the Knowles family used the mansion as a residence.

He attended San Rafael High School for a time and became a star swimmer, but quit in his freshmen year because he disliked academic routine. "I didn't like school . . . it was interfering with my hunting and fishing," he said.

HE SERVED AS an apprentice gardener with his father for several years, then in 1930 signed aboard the President Madison as a seaman cadet. He returned to San Rafael the next year, after seeing Honolulu, the Philippines, Japan and China.

He landed a job with a local construction firm, and worked with the road crew that paved Highway 101 from Terra Linda to Petaluma, when the thoroughfare was widened from two to four lanes in the 1930s.

In 1942, Knowles joined the Navy as a seaman and cruised the South Pacific aboard the carrier Louisville. He saw offshore action at Okinawa and the Solomon Islands.

IN 1947 KNOWLES signed up with Standard Oil Co. as a construction worker, and was promptly sent by the firm to Saudi Arabia, where he spent the next 18 years.

"I helped build the first paved highway in Saudi Arabia . . . built well sites and three airports," he said.

Eventually, Knowles headed a 700-man crew and learned to speak fluent Arabic. "I still speak the language," he said.

The most memorable experience logged during his long tenure overseas was helping douse a mammoth oil well fire that raged for three weeks in 1949 near the town of Abqaiq, Knowles said.

"THE FLAMES shot 200 feet, straight up. It was amazing. Finally it went out when a professional crew poured liquid nitrogen on it."

Knowles estimated that he supervised the paving of more than 700 miles of roadway in Saudi Arabia during his tenure there, and said that his Standard Oil crew was largely responsible for spurring the industrial revolution in the oil-rich nation.

In 1965, Knowles retired and returned to San Rafael.

"I wanted to retire in Ceylon — things were so beautiful and so cheap — but the schools were no good, and I had two kids to think about," he said.

"BESIDES, I wanted to show the children some of our own country," said Knowles.

On his return to San Rafael, Knowles became captain of a commercial trawler and sought salmon beyond the Golden Gate for a year.

In 1966, he joined the San Rafael city family as a gardener, a post he has held since.

Knowles said he has become so fond of his gardening job that "nothing could take me from it." Three months ago, Standard Oil asked him to take a construction post in Indonesia, but he refused.

"I'D BE OUT of my bloody mind if I went back overseas," he said. "It's more of a challenge working here, on these islands, anyway."

Knowles lives with his wife, Harriet, at 4 Louisa Court, San Rafael. The couple has a son and a daughter.

HENRY ZIMMERMAN

The Man Who Chose Piano-Tuning Over A Career With The Violin

ing pall over Germany, and from near Wiesbaden.

In the years between 1936 and 1956 Zimmerman worked as a musician and a piano-tuner in Palestine, now Israel, and in London.

IN LONDON HE worked first for the famous piano-maker Challen, and then for Steinway and Sons.

He discovered that the piano-tuner in London was afforded little independence, but instead was expected to follow rigidly the conservative practices and routines the craft had known for decades.

That, and the London climate, created a dissatisfaction in Zimmerman.

"So one day I said I would like to transfer to New York City with Steinway," he recalls. "They took me seriously. The transfer went through with rather surprising speed, and we found ourselves on the boat coming to the United States."

ZIMMERMAN HAD no regrets at leaving Britain behind. In London then, he says, a piano-tuner received 15 shillings or about $3 in American money per instrument tuned. And working at his capacity, he could tune about four pianos a day.

Living in Queens, he was to work for seven years for Steinway in New York, advancing to inspector for action and tone regulating, and working at both the factory and at Steinway Hall, the big company headquarters with its huge concert hall on the fourth floor.

In Steinway Hall he also instructed the company's piano technicians in tone and action regulation.

A VACATION TRIP to the West Coast had exposed Henry and Gertrude Zimmerman to California and its sunshine. "We liked what we saw," he says. And so in 1963 he left Steinway to come West "chasing the sun."

They landed in the Bay Area, making their home first in San Francisco, and then moving to San Rafael four years ago. And for the first time, upon arriving in San Francisco, Henry Zimmerman became an independent, self-employed piano-tuner.

MARIN LIVING

A major step was his authorization by the Baldwin Company to do its concert piano-tuning in Marin County.

As such he has tuned the instruments for such major artists as Andre Watts, Farrante and Teicher, Gold and Fitzdale, Milton and Peggy Salkind, the Alma Trio and David Bar-Ilan.

HE TUNES, TOO, for the San Francisco Symphony for its Marin appearances, and for the Marin Symphony.

But most of his work is done in private homes for private owners of pianos.

The impression of some that the piano is almost obsolete, having given way to the organ, or to the stereo and television, is incorrect, he says. "There are many, many pianos in the homes of Marin and America," he says. Their popularity is undiminished.

And wherever there are pianos, there is a need for the services of a piano-tuner. For, says Zimmerman, climate and use make certain that the instrument will gradually lose its perfect pitch, unless adjustments are made.

"If there is any one point I would like to make," Henry Zimmerman says, "it is that piano-tuning is a rewarding and important profession that any young man would do well to consider. The piano is going to be with us always."

THE CONCERT piano, he says, must, of necessity, be tuned for each appearance. It is the tuner's responsibility to do his work so that the instrument will stay in tune throughout the concert. But if there is another concert, even the next night, it must be tuned again.

The piano in the home should be tuned every six to nine months, he adds, to keep it in good condition and to give it long life.

Otherwise, he advises the piano-owner, just follow the manufacturer's instructions in such commonsense matters as not placing your piano over a heater or in a window with strong sunshine, or not exposing it to the damp.

THE WORST ENEMY of the piano: weather.

The next-worst enemy: the user who abuses the piano.

But the most frequent kind of abuse is the failure to have the piano tuned regularly, Zimmerman asserts. He knows that hundreds of fine pianos are sitting in Marin homes today, sadly out of tune and deteriorating.

Zimmerman works in an area from Petaluma on the north to San Francisco on the south and Berkeley in the east, although most of his calls are made in Marin. And he has no difficulty keeping busy.

WHEREAS HE formerly tuned four of five pianos a day, he now does three a day. "I'm getting older," he smiles.

And Henry Zimmerman is troubled by the absence of young men in the profession, to succeed the veterans like himself.

"If there is any one point I would like to make," he says, "it is that piano-tuning is a rewarding and important profession that any young man would do well to consider. The piano is going to be with us always. And thus there will always be a demand for the tuner's services."

The big problem, as Zimmerman sees it, is the American system which fails to turn out trained piano tuners.

INSTEAD, THE factories develop technicians whose instruction and experience are restricted to only one or two steps in the manufacture or repair of pianos.

WITH ONE OF THE special wrenches of his trade, Henry Zimmerman proceeds with the tuning of a piano. It is the profession he learned in his native Germany and first practiced there. He was then a piano-tuner and technician in Palestine and London before coming to the United States. He now operates his own Zimmerman Piano Service in San Rafael, and strongly recommends piano-tuning and repair to young men looking for a rewarding career in an uncrowded field.

Thus we get specialists, not qualified, all-around tuners.

"The factories say they cannot afford to train true piano-tuners because, after they invest the time and money, the young men would then leave them to go into business for themselves," Zimmerman says. "There is no apprentice program in the United States to speak of."

So his best advice to a young man planning a career as a piano-tuner: "Go to Germany or England or elsewhere in Europe for your training, then return here."

THE EUROPEAN piano factories still turn out fully qualified piano-tuners, Zimmerman says.

And a factory, he adds, is the only place to learn, since there the student has the advantage of rows of piano harps or soundboards that he can pluck ("chipping, we call this process') and otherwise acquaint himself with their sounds and actions, all under the supervision of expert instructors.

Zimmerman is quite skeptical of the ability of correspondence schools to teach the skill.

But, he claims, it is well worth the special effort required to learn piano-tuning.

"WHEREVER I go," he says, "I try to talk to young people about the advantages of my profession. I try to interest them in it."

What does it require to become a skilled piano-tuner?

"An inclination for music, an ability to work with the hands, patience and an appreciation of what the piano has meant to mankind for generations," Zimmerman answers.

Zimmerman works with his tuning fork, his hammer, his wrenches and his keen hearing and sense of pitch. There are piano tuning machines, but Zimmerman does not use them.

"A for 40" is the proper pitch, Zimmerman says. And if your piano is off a half tone or more, "you had better do something about it."

THE BANE OF the professional piano tuner, it seems, is the piano owner who calls upon his services only when a string has snapped or a key gone.

To indicate the tension to which the piano strings are subjected, Zimmerman points out that an instrument tuned to the proper "A for 40" pitch is under an overall pressure of approximately 80 tons.

Small wonder then, he adds, that the most minute stretching or shrinking of the strings by weather changes throws a piano out of tune.

The grand piano, according to the veteran tuner, falls out of tune less frequently than the spinet. "It's the same difference as the Cadillac and the compact car."

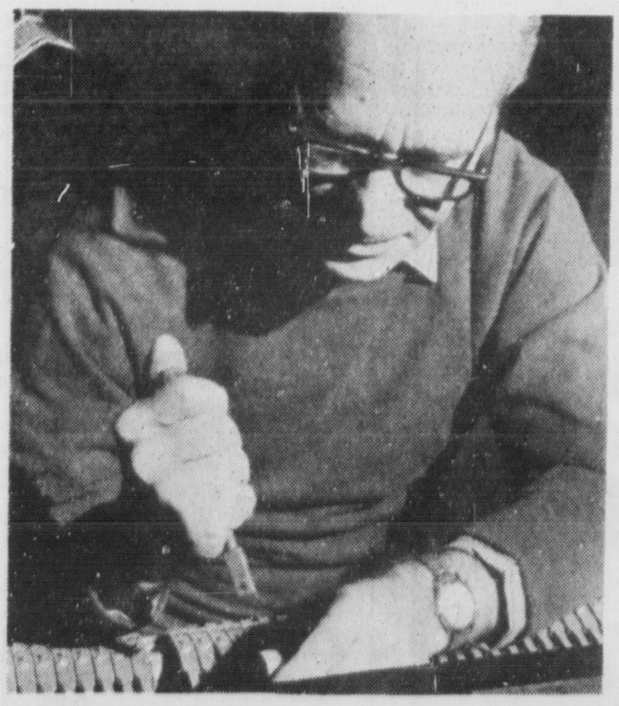

THE ZIMMERMANS at present have no piano in their home. But they have owned "grands." And Zimmerman says: "I'll get another when I see one I especially like."

But in any conversation, Zimmerman gets back eventually to the major point he wants to make: "For the young man looking for a good career, piano-tuning deserves the most serious consideration."

It has, says the man who has tuned and repaired pianos in four countries, done very well by him.

THE TUNING FORK is indispensible to piano-tuner Henry Zimmerman and his hearing so keenly trained to detect the slightest deviations in pitch and tone. Watching Zimmerman, left, work here is Jack Owens, manager of the Marin Piano and Organ Store and local sales manager for Baldwin Piano and Organ Co. Zimmerman is authorized to do the concert piano tuning for Baldwin in Marin.

A CONTINENT'S width and 12 years in time separate these two photographs, but they both show the same man — Henry Zimmerman — at the same job — piano-tuning. At right, as he looked in 1962 in New York City working for Steinway and Sons, piano-makers, where he advanced to inspector for action and tone regulating. Above, as he looks today, a busy self-employed piano-tuner.

DAIRYMAN JIM GROSSI is confronted with one of the problems of the "trade" — the corral turned to a quagmire by the rains. It has been particularly acute this winter. But the Grossis are in the process of building "free-stall barns" that will enable them to keep their cows inside during bad weather, and which will also contribute to the solution of the pollution problem by permitting a more effective control of the wastes. Other progressive dairymen have also built or are planning such barns.

Two decades ago there were about 20,000 dairy farms in California. This figure dropped to 4,050 in 1971, and 3,830 in 1972.

DESPITE HIS widespread duties overseeing the various family operations, Jim Grossi still finds time for community and business activities. He is a director of the Novato Hospital, and president of the Western Dairyman's Co-operative, as well as a director for another half-dozen industry organizations. He's a member of the California Milk Advisory Board and serves on its merchandising committee.

It's a schedule that keeps him busy and often on the move. Fortunately he has his family to take care of the "home front" when he must travel or be occupied elsewhere.

In addition to his sons, Ralph and Ed, Jim and his wife, Rose, have an older son, Jim Jr., 27, who is a civil engineer, married and living in Petaluma, and a daughter, Beverly, 21, who works in Novato but lives at home and takes an active interest and part in the operation of the dairy ranch. There are two Rossi grandchildren, James III and Dana, the son and daughter of the James Grossi Jr.s., and they delight in their visits to the ranch.

"In a sense, we're penalized for being efficient," points out young dairyman Ralph Grossi. "The milk pricing system is regulated, based on our costs. When we become more efficient, we hold our costs down, and the price of milk to the public is also held down. But it costs us to maintain this efficiency. . ."

RALPH GROSSI, 24, and typical of the modern young dairymen, pitches feed to some of the Holsteins in the Grossi Dairy Ranch herd, inside one of the barns. While the Grossis own their own oat hay farm, the more nutritious alfalfa hay is fed for the most part to the cows. This must be purchased. And the price has soared, catching dairymen in a cost squeeze. Nevertheless, Ralph, and his brother, Ed, decided to follow their father and their grandfather into the dairying profession, and view the future with confidence.

THE FENCE OF one of the corrals serves as a meeting place for some of the members of the Jim Grossi family as they discuss the problems and satisfactions of running a dairy ranch today. Left to right are James Grossi Jr., a civil engineer living in Petaluma; his young son, James Grossi III; their father and grandfather, Jim Grossi, who has spent his life running the dairy; and another of his sons, Ralph Grossi, a Cal Poly graduate in dairy science. For the Grossis, the dairy ranch is truly a family enterprise. Jim's wife Rose is very much a partner in its operation. Son Ed will join them as soon as he finishes his studies at Cal Poly in San Luis Obispo. And daughter Beverly lives on the ranch and takes an active interest and part in its operation. And it all began with Jim Grossi's father who acquired the land back in 1919, after coming to this country from Switzerland.

About Carpets

by Doug Emerson

PUZZLED ABOUT CARPETING? It's no wonder, with so many fine new materials available to you, offered in such a dazzling range of colors and textures.

Here are a few brief pointers to help you choose. Wool is the most luxurious of all carpeting — and the best wool broadloom is also the most expensive. It is highly crush resistant and you can choose from deep plush piles and handsome sculptured patterns.

Among the modern man-made fibers, the acrylics are especially rugged and easy to clean, and they don't mat. The nylons, which are a current favorite, especially the long fiber continuous filament nylons, are very long wearing and easy to clean, with no shedding or piling. These take to vibrant colors beautifully.

Where economy and service are the most important considerations, there are fine cotton carpetings to choose from, the lowest-priced carpets for comparable quality.

So the choice is wide and colorful . . . just as the selection of fine home furnishings and accessories is colorful and complete in our showroom. Stop in — for the answers to all your decorating problems!

SVETI STEFAN or Sveti Stefan is Yugoslavia's posh and popular resort where the rich and powerful, and as many common folk as can get reservations, stay. It's found in the federal republic of Montenegro, and was once a simple fishing village. Today it is one of the beauty and fun spots of Europe.

Helsinki Has Europe's Richest Architecture

By MURRAY J. BROWN

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — Helsinki may be over 400 years old but it sure doesn't show its age.

It's no wonder since most of the old buildings were burned down in the early 1800s when the Russians captured Finland from the Swedes.

That does not mean Helsinki lacks historical interest for the visitor. It also has other attractions.

My guidebook, for instance, describes Helsinki as "possibly the most offbeat, architecture-rich capital of Europe." Certainly noteworthy are the graceful neoclassical buildings dating back to 1812 when Czar Alexander I decided to move Finland's capital from Turku to Helsinki.

THERE ARE THE President's Palace, Town Hall and Swedish Embassy overlooking the waterfront Market Square and, a short walk away, fronting on Senate Square, the Government Palace, University and the great domed and columned Lutheran Cathedral.

Of interest also is the nearby Orthodox Upenski Cathedral with the traditional onion-shaped tower, built in 1917 by White Russian refugees.

There also are more modern architectural masterpieces by many of Finland's world-famed architects, including the Finlandia House convention — congress center by Alvar Aalto, the Olympic stadium by Yrjo Lindegren and Tovio Jantti, and the railway station by Eliel Saarinen, father of the noted American architect Eero.

OUTSTANDING ALSO is the Taivallahti Lutheran Church, blasted out of solid rock in a large open square in one of the older residential districts.

Built just below street level, and occupying almost an entire city block, all that is visible of the exterior is a low stone wall blending with rocks out of which the church was hewn and the round copper dome, about 70 feet in diameter, which forms part of the roof.

Designed by brothers Timo and Tuomo Soumalaine, the interior of the Rock Church — as it is familiarly known —is equally striking for its stark simplicity. Drilling holes are visible on the bare walls as are the stains of water seepage. The pews are simple and made of woods with seats covered in warm purple and blue fabrics.

PLAIN AND SIMPLE also is the wooden altar, distinguished by an unadorned small crucifix, spotlighted by natural light filtering down through strips of frosted glass in the ceiling.

More than two million persons have visited the church since it was built four years ago.

Popular also with Finns and tourists is the colorful open air market on the waterfront, open daily except Sunday from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. The lines of stalls, stretching for several blocks, offer virtually everything made by man and nature, from fresh flowers and fish (a main staple here) to pantyhose and paintings.

WE STOPPED FOR a cup of kahvi and a lihapi rakka (coffee and meat-and-rice pie) at an open-sided stand our guide said was called the LBJ Cafe. The late Lyndon B. Johnson was said to have snacked here during a visit as vice president.

After the market closes —and an army of men and machines scrub the area clean within minutes — the square is a popular promenade. There's an excellent view of the port hustling with ships of all nations and the ferry for the 18th Century Suomenlinna fortress on an island in the harbor leaves from here.

I made my first visit to Finland with other U.S. travel writers as guests of the Finnish Tourist Board in conjunction with the 50th anniversary of the national airlines Finnair. Finnair offers direct flights from New York to Helsinki in DC8 stretch jets via Amsterdam and/or Copenhagen. Other international airlines, including SAS, also provide regular service.

Americans need only a valid passport for entry.

ONE OF THE showplaces of Helsinki is the House of Nobility, a formal concert hall notable for its elegance as well as its cultural activities. A distinguished collection of colorful coats of arms of Finland's aristocratic families graces one wall.

The Grizzlies Have A Friend In Researcher

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — A noted American wildlife biologist claims the bear management program at Yellowstone National Park has cut the grizzly population about in half.

It's the latest charge from Dr. Frank Craighead, who along with his twin brother, John, has a long-standing feud with the National Park Service over the program started in 1969.

Craighead says their latest report to the park service shows during the years 1970, 1971, and 1972 the population was just about cut in half. "We believe there are somewhere in the neighborhood of 100 grizzlies left," he said.

The latest study, submitted in July, has not been made public by the park service, and is another example of what Craighead calls "harassment" by federal agency of independent research, "unless it agrees with existing policy."

Craighead, who lives at nearby Moose, Wyo., said he and his brother were not invited to a recent discussion of the program at the park attended by Assistant Interior Secretary Nathaniel Reed. This despite over a dozen years of field research by the two brothers on the grizzlies in the Yellowstone ecosystem.

The management program was designed to return the black and grizzly bears to their natural habitat and reduce human conflict. The bears had grown dependent on garbage dumps and "handouts" from tourists.

Bears were trapped and drugged by rangers who transported them, sometimes by helicopter, to the remote parts of the 3,400-square-mile park.

"The deaths were due to poor management. The dumps were rapidly closed, and it put the whole population under a stressful situation," Craighead says.

"Our information and computer data indicates that the program is rapidly diminishing the grizzly population," says the biologist who recommended a slower, more controlled program to return the bears to their environment.

Those Curious London Shops

American visitors to London have discovered a curious new shop to join the city's other eccentric bargain centers.

The Reject Shop on Brompton Road, is owned by a London couple, Anthony and Anna Hawser, who spent a year writing and visiting manufacturers asking for damaged and imperfect goods.

The results astounded even them, including a huge stock of everything from glasses and cutlery to continental pots and pans, acrylic goods and lighting equipment.

The Reject Shop joins such odd and fascinating stores as Anything Left-Handed at 65 Beak Street in Soho, Weinthrop in Berwick Street, which sells off-size shoes (starting at size 1) or John Lewis in Oxford Street, which carries probably the largest selection of paper-dress patterns in the world, all sizes.

East Europe's 'Shining Jewel'

By ROBIN WRIGHT

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Once upon a time, on the other side of the world, there were six republics, five nations, four languages, three religions, two alphabets . . . and one desire for freedom.

Now, what reads like a recipe and sounds like a song has united into a single nation: Yugoslavia.

Although it struggled through a not-so-fairytale interim, the largely Balkan territory has since developed into the most shining jewel of East Europe:

Politically dynamic under the independent leadership of President Tito who has cleansed the country of the Iron Curtain stigma.

More culturally unique than its neighbors due to its mix of East and West, and the multi-national influences on art, language, architecture, and religion.

Although theoretically united, the country has not yet homogenized, and traces of the different cultures are still evident. To come within reach of them all, several background factors must be remembered.

For example, it is important to know that the original six republics remain autonomous federal republics, each now with a similar political structure, but some with different languages and customs:

BOSNIA-HERZEGOVINA: Located in the west central district of Yugoslavia, this region is truly typical of where East meets West. Turkish mosques, minarets, and bazaars color the remote mountain region where men still wear the traditional fez. The Bosnian hinterland is a wild plateau of mountain wild flowers, waterfalls, and Moslem villages.

Its capital of Sarajevo is where Archduke Francis Ferdinand was assassinated, precipitating World War I.

CROATIA: The most popular among tourists, this west coastal region hardly seems changed since the Middle Ages. Wild meadows and forests are often broken only with medieval fortresses and the shells of castles, many of which are still inhabited. Even Zagreb, the capital, grew out of a medieval shell, which is still the major part of the central city. Of a Western orientation, Croatia is dotted with peasant villages where inhabitants often still wear their colorful native garb.

There are 16 altogether. But what makes them more than just 16 ordinarily beautiful lakes is that they form a descending staircase, each at a different level cascading into the next. Almost as if the valley's resident giant had walked off leaving his upstairs tap to overflow.

The entire effect of this northern Yugoslavian national park is that of a monumental tribute to nature, flawless, alluring, even poetic.

Cradled between the mountain chains of Mala Kapela and the Pljesivica, the water valley is also full of enchanted nooks and crannies.

It all begins high above the valley at Proscansko Jezero, more than 4,000 feet above sea level, and descends step by lake-step to Novakovic Brod, at about 1,300 feet, which eventually becomes the source of the Korana River. The Lakes are divided into 12 upper and 4 lower lakes and are fed by the Crna, Bijela, and Rejecica Rivers, their tributaries, and a series of subterranean springs.

Limestone (tufa) barriers jealously guard each lake within its bounds, releasing only enough water to overflow gently into the next lower lake.

Within those barriers are bouquets of colors and plant life, in reflective blue, lush green, and mercuric silver. The vegetation is always visible from whatever depth due to the water's constant clarity, like a looking glass.

Plitvice's beauty lasts the full year long too, with each season offering a specialty. The scents are in spring, full show in summer, color in fall, and frosting in winter.

Located about 50 miles from the Adriatic coast and near the Croatian capital of Zagreb, it has mild alpine weather. The climate has a sporting character, swimming — although in just one of the lakes — to skiing.

MACEDONIA: The southernmost region, this is a vast and sometimes seemingly abandoned region of craggy mountain ranges. Over its famed history it has accumulated a patchwork of influences: Christian, Moslem, Jew, Serb, Bulgar, Greek, and Turk, all of which have left traces of their physical trademarks.

MONTENEGRO: An agricultural land of meadows and mountains, this southwest region is the most remote. The fabled former kingdom is tinted with Eastern influences, although it remains a largely rural region.

Kotor is the jumping-off point and Titograd the capital. Saint Stephen is a jewel off the littoral coastline, and Cetinje is the site of the former king's comic-opera palace where before World War I he sold his country's postage stamps — in person — from a box-office window of the palace.

Sveti Stefan, the popular and posh resort of Montenegro and eastern Europe, is the vogue vacation spot of wealth and power and royalty — and as many common folk as can get reservations. Where the Richard Burtons used to drop in for weekends. Where the Rothschilds relax and get away from it all.

Sveti Stefan — as Saint Stephen — wasn't always that way. Five hundred years ago it was a humble fishermen's village of simple stone, fortified to resist threatening Turks and pirates and set off on a small island for further protection.

After a period of abandonment, Yugoslav architects and designers took over the island during 1950s and refitted the ancient exterior with a modern interior. Tastefully native and country-style, but conveniently modern.

Each stone cottage has been transformed into an individual living unit. Each common area has been turned into a service space, a lounge or hairdressers' salon, gift shop, or travel agency.

Of course not all the modern touches have been installed. Sveti Stefan is only open between May 1 and mid-October due to the absence of a central heating system. Nor is there any central air-conditioning.

But the limitations don't inhibit the hordes who travel from all corners to stay here on the Dalmatian coast, at the simple mound of earth that rates as the most striking spot in Montenegro.

SERBIA: Of the greatest interest to students of history, art, and folklore, this east-central region is in the heart of the Balkans. Belgrade, the capital of this region as well as all of Yugoslavia, is as cosmopolitan in flavor and appearance as any European capital. The only difference is the frequently used Cyrillac alphabet, which reveals Belgrade's strong Eastern influence.

Much of Belgrade was destroyed during the world wars, although the city has retained some of its historic and native color.

SLOVENIA: This northwest region bordering Italy and Austria is the most European in flavor of the six republics with its chalet-colored alpine mountains and an Adriatic tempered climate. Lying at the crossroads of three civilizations, German, Slav, and Latin — Slovenia shows the influence of all three.

Ljubljana is the sparkling little capital city going back to ancient times as evidenced in its Stone Age and Roman ruins. The mountain lake beside Bled reflects the glaciers of the Julian Alps.

THE LANGUAGE of the different republics presents the most difficult part of traveling in Yugoslavia since there are four. Serbo-Croatian is the national tongue, but even it qualified as two since it uses two different alphabets. Serbian is written in Cyrillac, and Croatian uses the Latin letters. Macedonian and Slovenian are the country's minority tongues.

Ironically, English is the most popular foreign tongue, followed by German and French. Russian is fourth on the list, mainly due to another irony. Although closer to the USSR ideologically and geographically, Yugoslavia hosts four times as many Americans as Russians.

OTHER TRAVEL tips: Yugoslavia is still one of the best-buy bargains, and costs are much lower than in any other part of Europe for room, food, and transportation. A good hotel with three meals will run no more than $10 per day.

About transportation, it's best to fly within the country if time is a factor as there are less than 100 miles of highways. The driving is pleasant as the views are startlingly dramatic. But the time consumed by mountain travel and narrow roads is usually too demanding.

How Well Can We 'Know' Another?

One of the great conceits of the human animal is the oft-held belief that he truly "knows" a fellow man or woman.

When one can at best only imperfectly understand himself, how can he expect to comprehend the depths, the complexities, the mysteries of another's psyche or soul?

It is with a man suddenly brought face to face with this reality that Europe's master storyteller, Georges Simenon, is concerned in his brilliantly executed "The Innocents," one of the more unforgettable short novels of recent years.

In his distinctively spare, almost frugal literary style, admirably translated by Eileen Ellenbogen, Simenon tells the story of Georges Celerin, successful Parisian goldsmith, supremely happy in his marriage, his work and his life. And then his world comes crashing down when Annette, his wife of 20 years, is taken from him suddenly, victim of a truck-pedestrian accident.

In his grief, Celerin finds himself thinking about questions that had never occurred to him while Annette lived.

First and foremost, was Annette as happy in their marriage as he? If so, why didn't she share his compulsion to express that pleasure? Why did she show so little animation in their domestic or their sex life? Why did she persist on her career as a social worker with the poor, even though her husband was doing well financially? Why did she seem to abdicate a mother's responsibilities for their two children to the family's faithful housekeeper Nathalie?

Finally, why, at the time of her death, was Annette in a section of Paris to which her work normally would not take her?

But it is the fear that he failed to share with his marriage partner the contentment that he derived from their union that most troubles Georges. Had he failed Annette as a husband, and been too immersed in his own happiness to realize this?

His doubts and questions begin to have their effects upon Celerin the widower, including his relationships with the children, with his work and his subordinates, and with his partner and friend, the smooth Brassier.

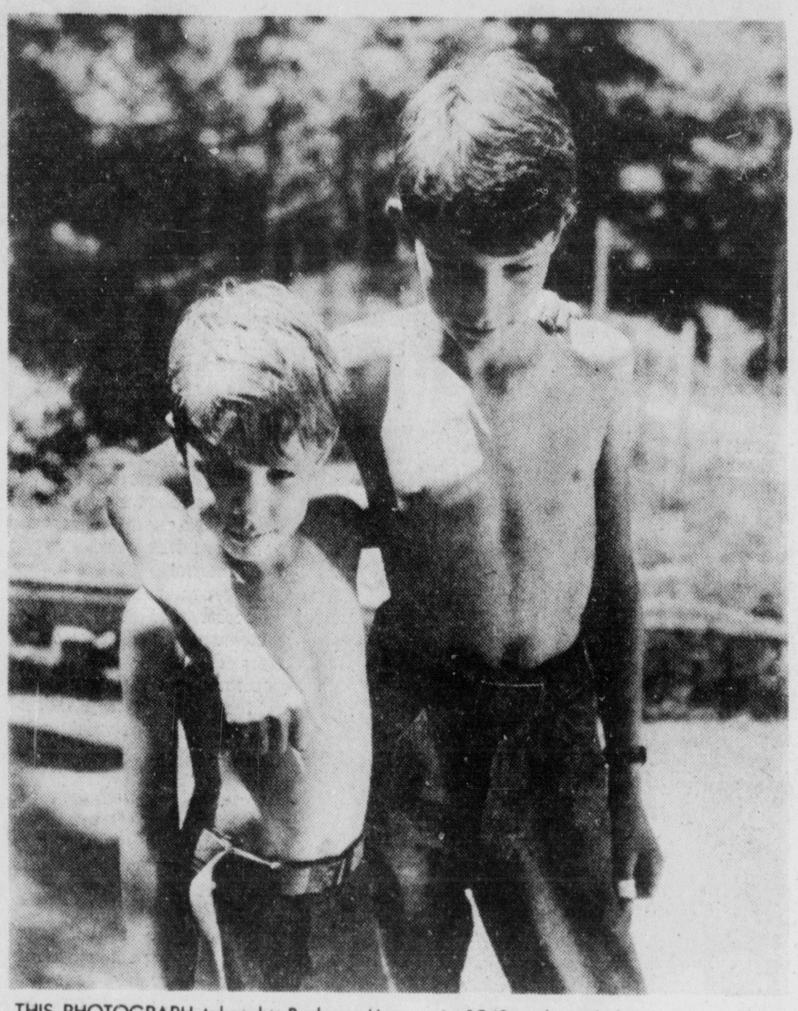

Finally, Celerin is driven actively to seek the answers, even though this involves plumbing the painful past.

What he discovers shows Celerin that not only had he no concept of the real Annette, but that he had misjudged the essential being of others as well — including himself.

Celerin does not in the end achieve the impossible of omnipotent understanding. But he does attain clarity and honesty to a degree. And therein, Simenon has another lesson for us: While we cannot dissect with certainty the diverse elements that give a human being his individuality, we should not let that dissuade us from giving others —and ourselves — the attention and respect that will enable us to make at least some progress in that direction. Some understanding is better than no understanding. And the latter is too often what we acquire when we grope our way blindly through life, unresponsive to the drives and needs of those around us.

We have always admired Simenon's masterful detective novels. But "The Innocents" for the first time enlists us solidly among the admirers of his psychological novels as well. You share, sometimes with an almost unbearable intensity, Georges Celerin's experiences and growth through every page of this remarkable book.

NOTES FROM A BROWSING BOOKMAN

For those who enjoy Californiana and historical nostalgia, there's a new little book published by the Butte County Branch of the National League of American Pen Women called "Butte Remembers."

Reminiscent glances into the past of the Chico area and other parts of the county include descriptions of such diverse subjects as mining days, the role of the Chinese in Northern California, early-day medical care, the county's first welfare director and historical houses.

The book is attractively illustrated with sketches and early photos, and, while it is the effort of primarily amateurs, would be a nice addition to a historical collection.

Copies ($5 plus sales tax and 50 cents for handling) may be obtained by writing the Butte County Branch NLAPW, 1505 Citrus Avenue, Chico, 95926.

WARD RITCHIE Press, Los Angeles, has issued updated, $1.95 paperback editions of three guidebooks of regional interest:

"Great Bike Rides in Northern California" is the work of Oakland Tribune bicycling columnists Carol and Tom Ross, and includes three recommended rides in Marin County, as well as directions for outings for the two-wheeler enthusiasts elsewhere in the Bay Area.

"Exploring Big Sur-Monterey-Carmel" is the collaborative work of two Monterey women, Maxine Knox and Mary Rodriguez, and a good, well-illustrated introduction to a fascinating area.

"Backyard Treasure Hunting" by Lucie Lowery, a Southern Californian, entices you into the world of auctions, garage sales, rummage shops, junkyards, swap meets, etc., and tells you how to get the best out of your investments.

CELESTIAL ARTS, Millbrae, has published in softcover "Wild Birds and Others," the poems of Wendy Long.

Elliott Baker Takes An Understanding And Funny Look At Unfulfilled People

The comedian Woody Allen has said that he believes only in sex and death because they happen just once in a lifetime. And so it seems to the young, whose self-dramatized yearnings are such an ungainly blend of chivalry and rapacity.

This bittersweet juxtaposition is the core of Elliott Baker's fine new novel, really a series of connective short stories, entitled "Unrequited Loves."

Baker is a very good writer with some outstanding books, such as "A Fine Madness," to his credit. His comic gift combines the fresh wit of Dan Wakefield with the reflective irony of J. P. Donleavy, a mixture especially to be valued as most books about young manhood wallow and stagger through a toxic mush of joviality and guilt.

These stories, told in the first person, are apparently autobiographical to a great extent, and whether or not our hero's high school date really was painted by Wyndham Lewis is immaterial as Baker has a quite uncanny way of focusing something personal into an archetypal form that keeps the reader's interest and attention peaking.

This passage picturing a grossly overweight woman is representative of this capability: "Describing a fat person is like drawing a snowman. Few lines are needed. Obesity is bland. The fatter the person, the less expression in the face, and, consequently, the less awareness we have of feelings underneath. So we can stand and blatantly gawk at the exceptionally fat, the sideshow variety."

Baker's analytic eye possesses an autumnal ripeness akin to the observation that an old man who cannot laugh is a fool, while a young one who cannot weep is a barbarian. The avoidance of both self-pity and cruelty is remarkably entwined with Baker's ability to introduce extraordinary incongruities into his narrative in ways which seem perfectly natural, giving his work that same outrageous believability by means of which real life in its twisting and turnings manages to outperform the imagination of the most inventive satirist.

These "Unrequited Loves" take an understanding and very funny look at the unfulfilled people, ambitions and institutions affecting anyone's early life. Almost everyone survives them, perhaps to be consoled by Oscar Wilde's cynical quip that the only thing worse than not getting what you want is to achieve your heart's desire.

A Thorn In The Side Of The British

The American Revolution was fought chiefly (to the annoyance of George Washington and other generals) by militia who regarded the fight for independence as part-time employment that should interfere as little as possible with planting and harvesting.

For those attempting to mount major engagements, this uncertainty of personnel was a near-insuperable handicap. But to some assigned to guerrilla activities, it proved highly useful. Best known, and one of the best, of these was the colorful Francis Marion.

The number of men in Marion's command varied from fewer than 100 to sometimes 500 to 600. As his fame grew, he could generally get as many as he needed by sending out a call. When forced to temporary inactivity, he could simply let the men go home.

The British commanders in South Carolina, which was Marion's field of operations, could never understand what was going on. They consistently either overestimated or under-estimated both his strength and his mobility. It was this that called from Lt. Col. Banastre Tarleton of the Redcoats the complaint, "As for this damned old fox, the devil himself could not catch him" —which gave Marion his nickname of "Swamp Fox."

Despite a paucity of contemporary materials from which to work, Hugh F. Rankin has fleshed out a pretty detailed and very readable account of the field activities of Colonel Marion.

It is a fine war book. But it is scarcely a biography; if Marion had any life outside of his military role, it does not emerge from "Francis Marion, the Swamp Fox." That has been left for other biographers to plumb.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

If Ariane Quatsous doesn't love her well-to-do and much older American husband, she is nonetheless grateful to him for his thoughtfulness, and because he has enabled her to escape the drab life of a Parisian typist.

George has put up the money to purchase an abandoned monastery in Brittany, and to convert it to a comfortable inn and restaurant. But it is the skill of Leonie, otherwise a rather grim person but a marvelous cook, that is largely responsible for the success of the venture.

Then the gluttonous George dies suddenly. There's the suspicion of foul play. And piece by piece, George's mysterious past begins to reveal itself, shattering Ariane's illusions.

There remains the increasingly temperamental Leonie to deal with as well.

There's something of the feeling of one of Georges Simenon's continental stories in this excellent novel by the much-traveled Alexandra Roudybush, who now lives in France. And as a bonus for her readers, she appends a few of Leonie's gourmet recipes from the Auberge des Rochers.

GIDEON'S PRESS by J. J. Marric; Harper and Row, 181 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

What might be the last of the Cmdr. George Gideon of Scotland Yard tales by the late J. J. Marric (John Creasey) is, alas, not one of his best.

This time out Gideon is primarily concerned with violence on the London docks, where war threatens between striking stevedores and hooligan followers of a rightwing fanatic. In striving to avoid open conflict, Gideon makes use of the London press. And a missing reporter becomes a cause of special concern.

But the dialogue, never Creasey's strong point, is sticky, and the supporting cast tends to fawn a bit too much upon our hero Gideon. Furthermore, the author shows that he really knows very little about how journalists and journalism function.

And the publisher holds forth the happy prospect that there just might be another Gideon manuscript around and forthcoming, completed by Creasey before his death so much lamented by mystery fans.

More Than You'll Care To Know About Mean Old Grandpa Burton

Alan Sillitoe has written in his "Raw Material" a book that is part novel and part autobiography, going back to his childhood in Nottingham, England.

Much of the book dwells on the author's Grandfather Burton, a blacksmith.

After reading page after page about Grandpa Burton, one wonders why the very able author would want to go into so much detail about an ancestor who obviously was emotionally unstable, unkind, cruel and violent.

Grandpa Burton hated dogs. He even despised people who loved them. He showed no love or kindness to his wife, children or grandchildren. He was referred to by his family as "a rotten old swine."

The last part of the book describes the author's father and uncles, who naturally picked up some peculiar characteristics from Grandpa Burton.

Alan Sillitoe is an excellent storyteller with great talent. But one wonders why he would want to reveal to the world his mixed-up background.

If Grandpa Burton had lived in America, and had carried on with his nasty disposition, I am sure he would not have lived to an old age. Either his wife or children, or the dogs, would have laid him to rest in short order. As it is, he makes for "raw material" that also grates and irritates.

The Era Of The Anti-Red Hysteria

Some seem to think the Watergate mess marks the first time Washington, D.C. has been the stage for national disgrace. And even those better grounded in American history reach back to the Harding and Grant administrations for their parallels.

But there have been periods of shameful behavior of other kinds in the capital city, one of them as recently as the late 1940s and early 1950s.

This was the era of anti-red hysteria when men and women were persecuted for their political and social beliefs — and sometimes for the mere suspicion that they might once have held such beliefs, or associated with those who did. The witchhunt that ensued was to become known as McCarthyism, although it preceded Sen. Joseph McCarthy's seizure of the "cause" as his own, and outlasted briefly his political downfall.

Stefan Kanfer, a Time Magazine associate editor, has written about one of the uglier aspects of the period, the blacklist, by which men and women were denied employment because of their beliefs, past and present, proven or suspected, particularly in the entertainment industry. He subtitled his book: "A Devastating Chronicle of the Era of the Blacklist," which it is.

Kanfer includes the minor as well as major figures from this disgraceful and bitter drama, and thus provides episodes and names unfamiliar or forgotten. He strives hard and honestly for objectivity, although he has difficulty controlling his scorn for the oppressors and his sympathy for some of their victims.

They are all here — the politicans and their hirelings who seized upon the opportunity for power and publicity afforded by their roles of inquisitors ("pea-brained," Kanfer calls them at one point, and indeed the lowest level in Congress did seem to gravitate to the national security committees); their rightist allies in Hollywood who urged them on —the Samuel G. Woods, the Hedda Hoppers, Adolphe Mejous, the Robert Taylors, the Ward Bonds, et al — ; the cheering section of ultra-conservative journalists such as Victor Reisel, Ayn Rand, George Sokolsky, Fulton Lewis Jr.; the hypocritical studio executives and broadcasting officials; liberals who, generally, watched from the sidelines in fearful silence or reacted sporadically, erratically and ineffectively; and the blacklisters themselves, little, almost anonymous men drunk with power and self-righteousness.

And, of course, there were the accused. They, too, fell into several categories.

There were those who felt the full brunt of society's angers and fears — the Lillian Hellmans, the John Garfields, the Alvah Bessies, the Lionel Standers, the Canada Lees, the Jean Muirs, the Howard Da Silvas, the Will Geers, the John H. Faulks, the Zero Mostels, and remained defiant; there were those who cracked under the intense pressure and talked, naming names and pulling others, often their friends, into the maelstrom — the Elia Kazans, the Lee J. Cobbs, the Larry Parks, the Sterling Haydens, the Edward Dmytryks, etc.; and there were those who escaped the full force of the whirlwind and were only tarnished with passing mention, then left in limbo to wonder when the real blow might fall that would destroy their employability in Hollywood or in broadcasting.

Kanfer makes it clear that the "hunters" included the genuinely dedicated and sincerely motivated, sometimes to a fanatical degree, as well as the cynical opportunists. And that the "hunted" included along with the innocent those who had, indeed, embraced the Party line, but whose influence in the making of motion pictures was wildly exaggerated.

The tactics of the Unfriendly Ten before the House Committee he regards as "morally repugnant and self-defeating." But the "friendly" witnesses who preceded them, Walt Disney, Leo McCarey, Lela Rogers, Taylor, Rand, Menjou, et al, were more worthy of epithets, he holds, terming them: "Contemptuous in the deepest sense, they pandered to the centripetal tendencies in government and helped accelerate the coming hysteria."

Of the "old leftists" who came under fire, Kanfer writes: "At their worst, they were blind visionaries who believed that by walking forward they ascended into the air. They were furtive when they should have been open, romantic in an era that needed social realism, molten when they should have been crystalline. But at their meanest, they did subscribe to a faith in, and not against, the human potential. They did attempt an elevation of the poor, enfranchisement of the damaged and despairing, an awakening of conscience in a world they saw narcotized.

"If they were strident or philistine, they have paid their dues, paid them at usurious rates."

And there were those like novelist Eliot Asinov who were blacklisted for no more reason that he had once signed a petition at Yankee Stadium asking that Negroes be admitted to major league baseball, and perhaps because he was married to actress Jocelyn Brando.

Finally, the flames of hysteria died down. But Kanfer does not suggest that balance was restored and justice done. "The blacklisted for the most part escaped with dollars and reputations intact. As for those who gave names and references, who helped the inquisition continue —they had only the sentence of that most overrated court, the personal conscience."

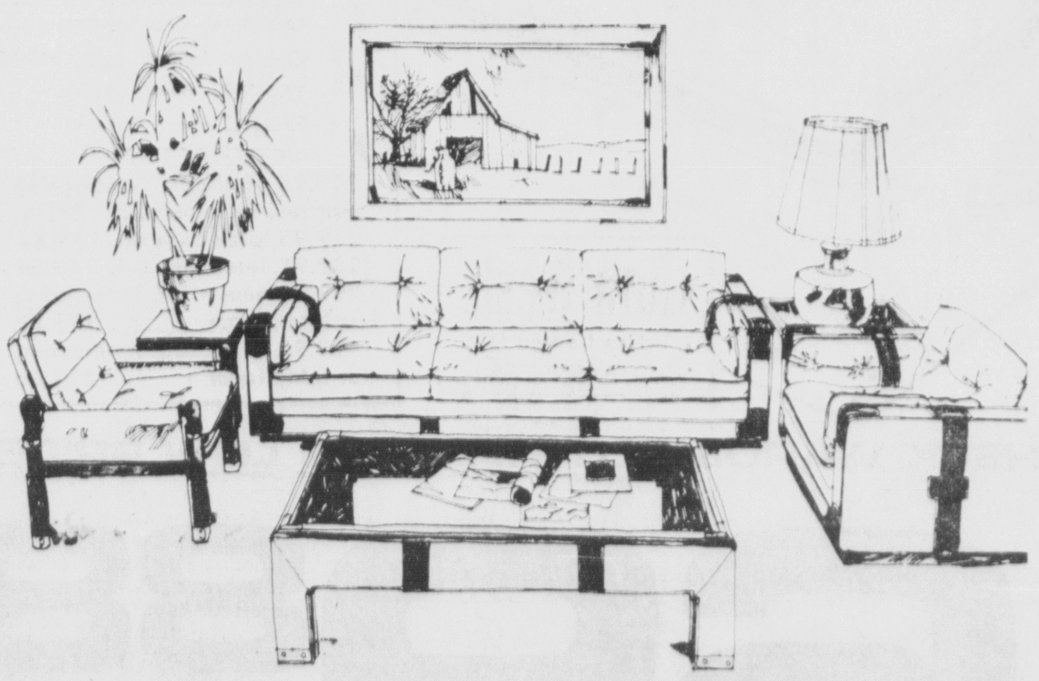

He suggests, too, that if the flames of the anti-subversive witchhunt have vanished, the embers still glow, ready to burst forth again if civil libertarians grow too complacent. Perhaps we had one short burst of blaze during the Vietnam affair when critics of the wisdom or morality of that bloody adventure were denounced as unpatriotic.

There are a myriad of colors and flower forms available, and you can find them blooming in nurseries right now.

Camellias bloom through the fall and winter, beginning in September and ending in April. Many of the Camellias which began blooming in fall are blooming yet — these are called the early Camellias and they include such outstanding varieties as Alba Plena, a large, formal white, and Chandleri Elegans, which is rose-pink and white with peony-like blossoms.

A COUPLE OF early blooming pink Camellias are Daikagura, a rose pink splotched white, and Debutante, light pink with a large, full, peony-type bloom.

The California Association of Nurserymen recommedns that Camellias be planted where they will have protection from extreme summer sun and prevailing winds. Camellias will get by in any soil in California. However, much of California has quite alkaline soil. In some areas it is advisale to modify the soil, to make it moderately acid. This holds true of much of Marin.

TO PREPARE the planting hole mix plenty of humus and then make the hole large enough sot the roots will spread out in a natural position. Plant the Camellia at the same depth it was in the container.

Water Camellias regularly from April to November until the rains begin again. A surface mulch will help hold the moisture in but be sure to avoid building up on the stem.

Feeding with an acid type fertilizer should be done when new plant growth starts at the end of the blooming season — March or April. Check with your local nurseryman for the correct types and amount to apply.

And when the time rolls around, don't forget the important process of debudding. For Camellias, as with many shrubs, fewer blooms generally men better blooms. So if the buds are too profuse, sacrifice a few by pinching. You'll have a better Camellia in the long run.

A YEAR-AROUND GARDEN ON THE PORCH

THE PORCH GARDEN of Mrs. W. A. Lambeth of Winston-Salem, N.C., was awarded a "1974 Burlington House Award for American Gardens," in recognition of its ingenious planning. Because of plastic side covers on the porch in winter, the garden is constantly in bloom. Fiberglass roofing allows maximum light. Potted specimens are planted in sterilized soil with good drainage. Everything is planned to bloom in harmony at different times of the year "because those who share this special little garden are constantly revitalized by intimacy with living plants." Burlington House Awards program has included recognition for outstanding gardens for the first time this year.

There's Nothing Nicer Than Fresh Fruit From Your Own Orchard

Any garden, large or small, can accommodate a fruit tree or trees. Even a rooftop apartment or patio can handle dwarf trees in tubs, especially the genetic dwarf peaches and nectarines. And the smallest garden is large enough to grow one, two or even three dwarf trees.

Your nurseryman will tell you that a narrow strip of garden, hemmed in by a wall or fence, is perfect for espaliered fruit trees. Apples, pears and many citrus lend themselves to espalier treatment, taking up a minimum of room and yielding a surprisingly large crop in the bargain.

Your nurseryman will show you how to train these trees so that they may be grown in a flat espalier against the garden wall.

DWARF FRUIT trees are also a small garden solution, since one of them will usually fit the space that three normal size trees require. How about trying the dwarf peaches, dwarf apricots, and apples? By the way, dwarf fruit trees produce normal size fruit, so have no fears in that respect.

The pears, plums, peaches, apples and others that are furnished in combination form, in dwarf form or on espaliers, give top quality crops. A combination form means different types of the same fruit on one tree — such as three varieties of plums, three varieties of peaches.

The fruit is large and healthy and the crops is heavier in proportion to the tree's size and shape than it normally might be in a commercial orchard.

THERE ARE various things which the home gardener should consider when setting out to grow his own fruit: First, he must consider the adaptability of the particular fruit to his area.

Oranges do best in the central and southern areas of our state, but in many parts of northern California, including Marin, certain varieties of citrus do very well.

Certain peaches do well in one area and not so well in others. The only sure way is to check with your nurseryman.

Most fruit and nut trees are available bareroot this time of year and are easily transplanted into the garden.

THEY ARE all more productive in a good soil, which most gardens have anyway. Add humus and soil conditioner before planting. Soak the bareroot tree roots in vitamin B1 before and after planting to encourage new feeder roots and eliminate transplant shock.

Wherever you plant the tree or trees, make sure the drainage is good. Many orchardists and home gardeners claim the best fruit is that which grows in the relatively meager soil of a hillside. The crop may be smaller and the fruit likewise, but the flavor is bigger and better in every way.

Green Flowers Are Rare, But There Are Some

It is often claimed that blue among flowers is the least common color because it is the color of the sky against which most flowers must contrast in order to attract insects for pollination.

Blue flowers are mostly low growing (forget-me-nots, ageratum and pansies) in order to contrast with foliage. In actual fact, however, green flowers are much less common than blue flowers and black flowers are almost non-existent — although some pansies are almost black.

Among the most widely grown green flowers are Bells of Ireland and Envy Zinnia. The seeds of both these varieties are available from most seed displays and catalogs, and they are easy to handle, requiring similar conditions for successful results. Sow them directly into the garden where you want them to bloom after the last frost date. Both varieties are excellent as cut flowers.

THE WEEKLY CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

✓Heather in containers can be taken home now, enjoyed indoors, and then transplanted outdoors in the spring.

✓Many choice Camellias are in bloom; browse the nurseries for your favorites. They make nice companions for Azaleas in late winter. Set out Rhododendrons for a really big show later on. Give them all filtered shade and rich, peaty soil.

✓This is an important time for dormant spraying of fruit trees. Ask your nurseryman what to use and the easiest way to apply it.

✓Looking for fragrance? You'll find it this month with Daphne or Sweet Olive. Both can and should be planted now.

SAW OUT A SEWING CENTER

THERE'S NO question about it — sewing has staged a comeback. More and more women are taking up the thread and needle to turn out their own clothing or some other useful article. And if "hubby" is on the ball, he'll do everything he can to encourage the trend. With prices what they are, it's certain to save him big money. At left, actress Karen Huston displays one very practical project by which the man in the house can encourage his lady fair to do at least some of her own sewing. It's a sewing center cabinet, built by a home handyman with the help of a Steve Ellingson pattern. Send $1.50 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for Sewing Cabinet Pattern 454. It is attractive, easy to build, efficient and mobile (on casters). It will hold all the 101 notions and implements the seamstress needs. Roomy drawers are ideal for fabrics, trim and miscellaneous items. On the inside of each door are places for scissors, thread, patterns, etc. The top of the compact unit folds out to give you a large cutting and work surface. The cabinet shown was made of birch plywood, but you, of course, can use the plywood that strikes your fancy. Directions are easily understood, and photos also show the various steps of construction. Also from Ellingson: Sewing Machine Cabinet Pattern 272, for $1.

An Expert Tells How To Go About The Remodeling Of Your Kitchen

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

The experts will tell you kitchen remodeling is the most worthwhile of all home improvement projects. Rare is the woman who would not agree with them.

The full-time homemaker may spend almost as much time in her kitchen as her husband spends on his job. It has been estimated she walks 120 miles a year just in the preparation of two meals — breakfast and dinner!

Dull, drab surroundings, inadquate work space or storage, inefficient appliances, poor lighting, awkward layout make every minute in the kitchen a chore. It's wearying and nerve-wracking for the woman who spends her days at home; even worse for the one who juggles an outside job along with her domestic talks.

KLAUS PARADIES, long-time kitchen designer, founder of the American Institute of Kitchen Dealers and now a management consultant, in his new "Kitchen Book" (Peter H. Wyden $10.95) says some kitchens can be improved for under $100. Even a $2 investment in a "deluxe warm white" bulb for your fluorescent kitchen fixture, if you've been using daylight or cool white, can do wonders.

Paradies says more than two and a half million families will spend an average $2,200 this year to modernize their kitchens and his 400-page book is an expert guide on "how to get exactly the kitchen you want and can afford."

Living up to its billing, the Kitchen Book is an instruction manual, an encyclopedia, a source directory, a financial adviser and a do-it-yourself guide.

"ONLY YOU CAN make a good analysis of what role the kitchen plays or the role you would like it to play in the life of your family." He suggests, as a beginning, you run down the following questions:

Do you enjoy spending time in the kitchen; Do you envision it as a kind of family gathering place? Do you like the idea of using it as a place where the children can do their homework? Where you and the neighbors can chat over coffee?

Will it also be a laundry center, with space set aside for washing machine, dryer, ironing board? Would you like a corner for sewing, plus storage for sewing equipment? Should you have a desk for telephoning, making out shopping lists, and writing letters?

Will most of your meals be taken in the kitchen? Or only breakfast and snacks? Or do you prefer a streamlined, ultra-efficient kitchen — a kind of laboratory to be used exclusively for meal preparation?

HE RECOMMENDS: "Dream a little bit. "Just for a little while, don't consider costs at all. Don't make any decisions about what's possible and what's not; they may be premature. Don't be concerned about whether a sink can be moved, a wall broken through, a door closed off. You're not at the floor plan stage yet. You're simply trying to decide how things can be made simpler, more convenient, less time-consuming."

Most important, Paradies says, "Keep a list of all these ideas. Have a sheet of paper and pencil handy and jot down anything that comes to mind when it comes to mind. Don't give yourself a chance to forget!

INTO THIS FOLDER go all your thoughts, plus a "shopping list." Prepare it as you would a grocery list. In one itemize the things you feel you really need; in the other the nice-to-have things — items you can do without, at least in the immediate future.

Just get it all down on paper. What's wanted is a complete overview. Priorities can be established later.

All the while you're making up these lists, Paradies recommends, you can be digging for fresh facts and searching out new ideas. Study the magazines which deal with house and home. Clip ideas you like — a method for storage; a decorative idea; equipment you'd like to investigate.

NEXT ON THE agenda is shopping, or rather, shopping around looking at actual products, still gathering information, still finding out what's available, what may be right for you.

By this time you should have a pretty good idea of what you want in your kitchen, and be prepared either to consult a professional, or to go to work yourself with floor plan and budget.

CABINETS WITH SHELVES added along the wall of a living or family room, a large dining area, or the master bedroom add storage and display space while brightening the decor. The framing here is two-by-four-inch western wood. The sides, shelves and doors are fir, pine or hemlock boards.

Built-Ins Can Add Looks As Well As Utility To Almost Any Room

A good built-in not only is the least expensive way of storing or displaying a wide variety of possessions but a well-designed unit also does wonders for the decor of any room in the house.

While a well-built built-in may look formidable to the beginning do-it-yourself- er with only a few tools, it does not take a lot of time, money, tools or skill to put together a useful and handsome installation.

MOST BUILT-INS are made up of a group of basic boxes or box-like components and can be framed with two-by-four-inch western wood and finished with boards.

One simple but highly versatile built-in provides a wealth of storage or display for living or family room, large dining room or a master bedroom.

Storage for dishes and silver, games and entertaining supplies, or bedding and linens is provided by the cabinets across the lower one third of the unit.

The inner shelves are adjustable to suit varying needs, and the hardware on the doors is chosen to complement the room furnishings.

The long shelves of the top portion lend a strong horizontal character to the unit and soften its floor-to-ceiling height. Shelves of strong one-by-10 or one-by-12-inch fir, pine or hemlock hold books, glassware, art objects or other items, depending on the room.

Basic tools needed to construct such a versatile built-in include saw, hammer, screwdriver and level. A power sander will lessen the work, and this often can be rented.

The western woods, in standard sizes, along with paint or stain are available at lumber yards or building centers.

Wrapping Center Will Be Used The Year Around

Holiday gift wrapping experiences convince many families of the need for a wrapping and mailing center tucked into a small closet to keep supplies grouped and handy the year around.

A pull-out or fold-down shelf serves as a work surface. Gift and brown wrapping paper rolls are stored on end along one wall. Folded paper and large envelopes go in a rack of wood strips or dowels on the back of the door. Ribbon spools, balls of string, rolls of tape and other supplies can be stored on dowels drilled and glued into fir or pine two-by-fours attached to the wall or set on a shelf.

HOMES PAGE

By ANDY LANG

Even if you have never made a single repair around the house, there's one project you can tackle with confidence — the replacement of the outside pushbutton that sets off the bell or chimes on the inside.

For one thing, it's an electrical job you can handle without turning off the electricity. That's because the bell and chimes operate on a low-voltage current, supplied either by the regular power supply, reduced by a transformer, or batteries, still in use in many older houses.

THE PUSHBUTTON is held in place by two screws.

Remove those two secrews and you will discover two wires connected to two terminal screws inside the button cover. That is, the two wires should be connected. If one of them isn't, you have located the trouble already, and reconnecting it should solve the problem.

If both wires are properly wound around the two terminal screws, place the blade of your screwdriver across the two screws. If the bell rings or the chimes sound, you know the wiring and the power supply are okay and that, therefore, the troublemaker is the button equipment.

Before deciding to replace the button, do two things. Clean the contacts around the button with sandpaper or emery and do the same with the ends of the two wires, since either or both may be dirty or corroded. With the wire reconnected, push the button and see what happens. If the bell does not sound, bridge the gap between the two terminal screws once again. If it rings, then you know for certain that a new pushbutton is needed.

If you get a smaller one, it will leave uncovered part of the area where the old one was —and you'll have to do a retouching job to make everything match. If you get one too large, it may not fit the panel to which it is to be attached.

But that is something you'll have to decide for yourself. There actually might be enough room to buy a much larger and different type replacement should you so desire.

Fortunately, when a bell fails to ring, the trouble nearly always is in the pushbutton, which means a simple repair is possible. Should the bell or chimes not work when a screwdriver blade is placed across the terminal screws, as previously explained, the fault could be with the bell itself, the chimes, the wiring or the power supply.

TAKE THE COVER off the bell and clean the contact points. Be sure, when the button is pushed, that the hammer on the bell is striking the gong. If not, it can be adjusted by bending it slightly and carefully.

If the wiring is connected to batteries, they can be checked by touching the screwdriver blade across the terminals. A blue spark means the batteries are okay.

Transformer trouble is rare, but if it must be replaced, tackle it only if you know something about electricity.

If there is a break in the wire, trace it to determine where the break is. When the wiring is not sufficiently exposed to make a visible checkup, you'll have to replace it by attaching the new wire to the end of the old one and then pulling it through. Should that be impossible, you'll simply have to restring the new wiring as best you can.

Entry Closet Is Bonanza For A Busy Family

For families on the go, simple construction will add or reorganize a closet in the entryway to smooth and speed leavetakings or arrivals.

Many entries will accommodate a shallow, two-section closet and will neatly group and expand present storage facilities and provide space for family and guests.

Framed in western wood, the closet can be built into or out from the wall. One side holds coats, with shelves for hats and other apparel. The other has a mirror and a set of drawers, flanked by floor to seiling shelves for purses, hats and other outdoor gear.

Plans for an entry closet that can be a minimum of 18 inches deep and of variable widths are in a booklet that also contains plans for three other closets and between-studs magazine rack.

The booklet is available for 15 cents in coin from Western Wood Products Association, Department 532-P, Yeon Building, Portland, Ore., 97204.

HERE'S THE ANSWER

By ANDY LANG

Q — I'll soon be putting down vinyl asbestos tiles in our dining room. There is a radiator in the room. Do I have to remove it before installing the tiles?

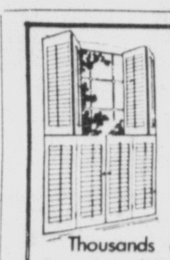

A — Removing the radiator is one way of dealing with the situation. Most persons, however, prefer to leave the radiator in place and fit the tiles around the legs. The way to do this is by carefully measuring exactly how the tile will fit around each leg. Using a piece of paper, mark the location of the leg. With that as a pattern, cut a hole in the tile where the leg will fit. Then cut a slit in the tile from the hole to the appropriate edge. Carefully fit the tile around the leg, using the slit to position the tile properly. The slit will not show when the job is completed.

Q — I expect to put up new gutters around the house in the next few weeks. How much of a pitch should there be so that the rain water will flow into the downspouts?

Q — An old bureau has been in the family for many years. We recently took it down from the attic and intend to use it. The finish appears to be in good condition, but is a very dark brown, almost black, as though covered with years of dirt. I'd like to clean it, but don't want to put anything on it that will hurt the finish. What do you suggest?

A — First, clean it with mild soap and lukewarm water, rubbing with a clean, lintless cloth. Most of the time this will be sufficient. If it seems not to have worked, go over it again, this time with a cloth dampened with turpentine. The third step — only if it seems necessary — is to clean the surface with a cloth dampened with denatured alcohol. Rub lightly, since the alcohol may affect the finish if it happens to be shellac. If nothing seems to work, then the only solution is to use a varnish remover and refinish the bureau. If any of the methods produces the desired result — that is, removes the dirt — but leaves the finish without a lustre, rub the finish vigorously with a 50-50 mixture of boiled linseed oil and turpentine. Complete the job with a coat of wax.

NEW ON THE STEREO SCENE —

Todd Rundgren Is A Rock Pioneer Several Years Ahead Of The Public Taste

By BRUCE MEYER

Todd Rundgren is one of the very few real innovators in pop music.

This is both a blessing and a curse, since he manages to stay from two to five years ahead of the public taste. Within that small segment of the record-buying public whose heads are capable of staying with him, Todd's popularity is intense.

The out-front position of his work is exemplified by the current surge of interest in a year-and-a-half-old album, "Something, Anything?" (Bearsville SBX-2066), and the single newly plucked from it, "Hello, It's Me."

At this rate, Todd's last album, "A Wizard, a True Star," should start selling big around next August and the new one, "Todd," will hit the charts some time in 1975.

TODD IS AT his most creative in the recording studio. He turns the studio into an asset, rather than approaching it as an obstacle between the music and the audience.

"Since most musicians aren't used to working in a studio, since they are performance oriented . . . they just try to get their performance down on record," he says. "But since I left the Nazz . . . I have become more oriented toward what appears on the plastic."

On stage, his affinity for the studio is particularly apparent.

The entire first half of his long set consists of Todd alone, singing to the backing tracks from his albums. Few performers could pull this off without making it look like a hackneyed copy of "American Bandstand." But Todd's stage presence and confident ease with the material inject spontaneity into the show.

TODD'S MUSIC is more for the head than the body, although he is capable of playing fine rock 'n' roll if he wants to.

The new album, "Todd," is a double LP which Rundgren believes will be "more accessible" than other recent work, although "in certain ways it requires more concentration, or that someone would have learned something from the previous albums."

He calls "Todd" the "first in a series of spiritual, cosmic-type records."

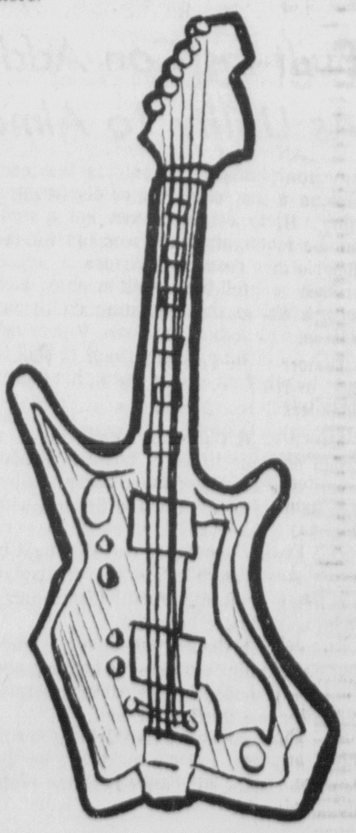

Todd says things like that.

In an interview he sits, like some slightly looney electric guru, cross-legged on a plaid hotel couch, eyes and cheeks fashionably sunken under an unkempt mop of green hair, on stage he adds much make-up and glitter. But though he loves to expound on "the cosmic consciousness trip" and defines his music as "a communication of energy" shared with an audience, he is not distant, but rather a likable, unaffected sort.

ALTHOUGH TODD has met with limited success in the commercial music market, he has no difficulty making a living. Using his talent in the studio he has developed into a fine producer. His most recent, and most successful effort was the recent debut album from the New York Dolls.

Asked how he related his own ethereal-philosophy of music to an ultra-commercial rock 'n' roll band like the Dolls, he says, "I always try to relate it, but most of the people I work with have their own intentions . . .

"My only job as producer is to make what they're doing successful at whatever level it exists now. That's one reason why I never do more than one album with an act. I can validate what they do up to a certain point. But if they suddenly realize, "this is commercially successful' that's when I'm not interested any more."

Richter Gives His Personal Touch To Basic Bach Work

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

When a great pianist records one of the fundamental works for the keyboard, he must be heard with care and respect. With curiosity, too, because great pianists are individualistic.

This is especially true when the work is Johann Sebastian Bach's "The Well-Tempered Clavier" and the pianist is the Russian artist Sviatoslav Richter.

What can be said immediately of Richter's recording of Book I of "The Well-Tempered Clavier" (Angel-Melodiya SRC-4119) is that its phrasing and tempi make us hear the work in a far different way than some of the other recorded versions.

Bach is always there, the themes of his fugues emerge and recede, but with different emphasis and texture than that of Glen Gould. For example, whose "Well-tempered Clavier" was released last year by Columbia.

The difference becomes more marked when listened to besides the "Clavier" which the late Wanda Landowska recorded on the harpsichord, which is probably the instrument Bach wrote it for, for RCA.

I can only repeat that Richter's individualistic "Clavier" must be listened to with care and respect. It will lack neither admirers nor detractors.

Bach noted that his set of 24 preludes and fugues, one pair for each of 24 major and minor keys of well-tempered system of tuning was for "the Use and Profit of the Musical Youth Desirous of Learning as well as for the Pastime of Those Already Skilled in this Study."

It was also written to demonstrate the efficiency of the Well-Tempered System (hence the title), new in Bach's time, of dividing the octave into 12 equal semitones instead of following the acoustically exact system inherited from Pythogoras which made it impossible to play.

Book I was compiled in 1722, Book II, which Richter will presumably issue later, in 1744. Together they are known as "48." While Bach used them as teaching material, they are also one of the glories of Baroque music, and a cornerstone of keyboard literature.

The controversy over whether they should properly be played only on the clavichord or harpsichord, or can be played on the piano or even organ is almost meaningless.

SOME OTHER recent piano releases:

Beethoven's "Moonlight" Sonata and four Schubert Impromptus played by Vladimir Horowitz. (Columbia M 32342) — The now almost legendary Horowitz is heard so seldom that these beautifully played pieces are doubly welcome.

Mozart's piano concertos No. 21 and 25 in C Major played by Stephen Bishop with the London Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Colin Davis (6500 431) — I have an incurable weakness for Mozart's concertos. These two late ones are wonderful. The performance is flawless.

Schubert's Sonata in C Minor and four impromptus played by Alfred Brendel (Philips 6500 415). Also excellent.

The Man Called Gorky, And His Classic—'Enemies'

To the left of the house, which belongs to landed gentry, is a grass terrace, above which rests an arched, airy porch.

It is an intensely hot, but very beautiful summer. An elegance graces the grounds — one that could seemingly fade, but never disappear. All appears secure and tranquil, the stillness interrupted only by the distant hum from the unseen factory at the foot of the estate.

SO BEGINS A classic of theater.

Maxim Gorky's "Enemies," starring Peter Donat, Carrie Nye, Frances Sternhagen, Kate Reid and Ellis Rabb in a WNET/13 "Theater in America" production, a major new weekly drama series, funded by Exxon Corp. and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, will be aired nationally Wednesday over the Public Broadcasting Service, including San Francisco's Channel 9.

Performed for "Theater in America" by the Repertory Theater of Lincoln Center, "Enemies" was completed by Gorky in 1906, and was suppressed by Russian censors with the following comment:

"These scenes present a clear picture of the irreconcilable enmity between workers and employers, with the former portrayed as resolute fighters advancing clear-sightedly towards their declared aim of the overthrow of capital, and the latter shown as narrowminded egotists. Furthermore, it is immaterial what kind of a man the boss is, it is enough that he is 'the boss' for him to be the enemy of the workers. The author. . . forecasts victory for the workers. These scenes are an outright provocation against the ruling classes and therefore cannot be authorized for performance."

BORN ALEXEY Maximovich Peshkov in 1868, Gorky was orphaned at the age of 10 and never received a formal education. But his unyielding determination to write led him to educate himself well enough to secure a position on a newspaper in Tiflis.

His first major success, "Stories and Sketches" (1898), sold over 100,000 copies and made Gorky instantly famous.

Self-exiled for his part in the abortive 1905 uprisings, he did not return permanently to Russia until 1932, when he became head of the Writers' Union. He was refused a passport in 1934, after his son was threatened with liquidation. A second application was also refused and Gorky knew that his time had run out.

THROUGHOUT HIS life Gorky was preoccupied with the inevitable collapse of Russian society, and wrote several plays devoted to this theme.

In the early years of the Soviet period the Moscow Art Theater was not alone in neglecting all his works except "The Lower Depths." The opinion that his writing was outmoded and untheatrical persisted until Gorky's final return to Russia in 1932.

The Soviet theater began its reappraisal of Gorky the dramatist in 1932, stimulated by the appearance of a trilogy of plays set against the background of events from 1917 up to 1930. Finally, in 1933, within a single month, there were productions of "Enemies" at the Pushkin Theater in Leningrad and at the Maly and the Trade Union Theaters in Moscow.

Gorky's position in the Soviet repertoire was confirmed finally in October, 1935, by the production of "Enemies" at the Moscow Art Theater. It was performed 275 times and was taken to the Paris International Exhibition in 1937.

GORKY DIED in June, 1936.

The man who had suffered beatings, exile, attempted suicide and the death of his son, never gave up the fight for freedom of speech and the rights of the individual.

TUNING IN ON TV

By JACK GAVER

Actress Greer Garson, seldom seen in any of the entertainment media in recent years, will be back next April 3 on NBC in a Hallmark Hall of Fame video version of the stage play "Crown Matrimonial." The Royce Ryton drama of the abdication of England's Edward VIII for love of Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson had a brief ecareer on the New York stage late in 1973. Miss Garson will portray Queen Mary, Edward's mother.

ABC is preparing for the first quarter of 1974 an investigative news program examining the oil and energy crisis in the United States. The subject will be covered in three broadcast segments.

"Another World," NBC daily serial, has resurrected the character Liz Matthews, which it dropped several years ago while Audra Linsley was playing it, and the role is now in the hands of Irene Dailey, sister of star Dan Dailey, and herself a prominent actress on Broadway and other stages.

ABC has acquired television rights to college football games of the NCAA for another two season,s through 1975. The network has aired these contests for the past eight seasons. The 1974 season begins next Sept. 7.

ELLIS RABB directs and co-stars in Maxim Gorky's classic tragedy, "Enemies," the "Theater in America" presentation to be shown Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. on Channel 9. The performance is by the Repertory Theater of the Lincoln Center, and inaugurates a new weekly series of fine dramatic presentations.

The Energetic Ellis Rabb Holds Two Roles In A Series Debut

Tall, lithe and possessing an abundance of energy, award-winning actor and director Ellis Rabb co-directs and co-stars in Maxim Gorky's "Enemies," for "Theater in America," WNET/13's new weekly drama series funded by Exxon Corp. and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

"Enemies" will be nationally televised over the Public Broadcasting Service, and will be seen in the Bay Area on Channel 9, Wednesday at 8:15 p.m.

Attacking both roles with creative gusto, Rabb appeared to be simultaneously in more places than all the extras combined. An observer could see him conversing animatedly with his co-director, Kirk Browning, one moment, and in the next see him stretched on a divan in his acting role.

RABB'S AGILITY could be due to the fact that he was a trophy-winning horseman in hunting and jumping until he gave up the sport to enter Carnegie Tech's Drama Department, graduating with honors in 1953.

Arriving in New York, Rabb performed on Broadway, off-Broadway, on television and with the American Shakespeare Festival. He spent six summers as an actor and director with the Antioch Shakespeare Festival which, he says "gave me experience with virtually the entire Shakespearean repertoire."

While working with the Group 20 Players in Wellesley, Mass., in 1959, Rabb met, worked with and married Rosemary Harris. During the nine years of their marriage, Miss Harris lent her acting talents to the APA Repertory Company, founded by Rabb in 1960.

HAVING GAINED a substantial national reputation in just four years, the APA joined forces with the Phoenix Theater in New York. Then, as APA-Phoenix, the company moved to Broadway's Lyceum Theater.

Among the productions Mr. Rabb staged for his company were "School for Scandal," "Pantagleize," "You Can't Take It With You," "The Tavern," "Judith" and "War and Peace."

In addition to his three honorary degrees, Rabb has won most major theater awards as an actor and director: the Outer Critics' Circle, the Lola D'Annunzio, an Obie, the Clarence Derwent, a Vernon Rice and a special Tony for APA.

RECENTLY, RABB spent three years with the American Conservatory Theater in in San Francisco. For ACT he directed a highly successful and controversial production of "The Merchant of Venice," ACT's first original musical, "The Selling of the President," and a new staging of "Sleuth."

As an opera regisseur, Rabb has created new productions of "Aida," "Dido and Aeneas," "Orpheus in the Underworld," "La Cambialle De Matrimonio," in addition to an original ballet, "Love In."

Lincoln In Conflict Is Subject Of Special

Amidst an atmosphere of hate and distrust, Abraham Lincoln was elected 16th President of the United States.

The problems he faced seemed insurmountable. Most staggering, of course, was the growing conflict of the Civil War. Hardly a hero figure himself, Lincoln desperately needed a man with charisma to lead the Army of the Potomac — his choice was Gen. George Brinton McClellan.

"Lincoln: Trial by Fire," the second in a series of dramatic specials entitled "The American Heritage," which airs on the ABC Television Network, Sunday at 7:30 p.m., centers on the President's conflict with this vain, obstinate young general who held back from attacking the enemy, while Lincoln, assailed from all sides, needed a victory to hold the Union together.

John Anderson portrays Lincoln, with Lary Lewman as General McClellan. The special was filmed entirely on location at historical sites in and around Alexandria, Va., and Washington, D.C., and features regiments of the North-South Skirmish Association.

"The American Heritage" is produced by the Wolper Organization and David Wolper. The script was written by Theodore Strauss. Historical consultant for the special is Pulitzer Prize-winner Bruce Catton.

The first special in this series of bi-centennial anniversary celebrations — "The World Turned Upside Down" — aired on the ABC Television Network, Nov. 27, 1973. It focused on the problems and complex nature of George Washington.

Sunday Treat For Jazz Buffs From The Winery

The film cameras of "About Time," Channel 7's cross-cultural program, will offer a celebration of great jazz when they travel to the Paul Masson Winery to hear the sounds of Jon Hendricks and George Shearing Sunday at 7 p.m. on Channel 7.

The half-hour telecast, hosted by Gerri Lange, will give viewers the treat of hearing these two diverse jazz masters performing in the beautiful setting of the winery. Jon Hendricks will offer a presentation titled "The Evolution of the Blues" which is a unique musical history of the blues from their beginning in the late 19th Century to the present day more sophisticated sounds.

The blues, from which jazz is an offshoot, came from the blacks in the deep South just after the Civil War. Born out of the misery of poverty, the music through history evolved through ragtime, honkytonk, sophisticated blues of the great bands and the rock blues of today. Hendricks expresses this evolution by combining the basic blues style with his own unique jazz style.

George Shearing, who first came to prominence in the early 1950s, has been one of the most durable and classic jazz artists. His music is characterized by a soft swing with his piano matching almost note for note, harmony for harmony, his vibraphone player in his group.

JAMES FRANCISCUS is the series star, Dr. Ben Elliott, in the "Doc Elliot" series that debuts Wednesday at 10 p.m. with an episode about the young medic's collision with a woman faith healer. It will be seen Wednesday at 10 p.m. on Channels 7 and 11.

'Doc Elliot' Premieres As A Weekly Series

"Doc Elliot," medical drama series starring James Franciscus as a modern-day country doctor who "rides circuit" over a sparsely settled area of the Colorado Rockies, premieres as a weekly series on the ABC Television Network, Wednesday at 10 p.m., with the episode, "The Touch of God," a story in which medicine is challenged by faith healing.

Neva Patterson also stars in the series as Mags Brimble, Noah Beery as Barney Weeks and Bo Hopkins as Eldred McCoy.

DR. BEN ELLIOT is a young surgeon, born and educated in New York, who has chosen to practice, not where the fees are highest, but where he feels his services are needed most. He settles in Gideon, Colo., as a general practitioner serving a 600-square-mile area of rugged Colorado mountain country.

In "The Touch of God," Jed Karnes, returning home for a visit, finds his mother gravely ill and seeks help from Doc Elliot. Jed's stepfather, however, believes strongly that faith healer Beth Ann Blackner can cure his wife, and protests "interference" by the doctor. The conflict is heightened when Beth Ann is able to help Jess Poulsen, suffering from paralysis of the legs, after Doc Elliot has been unsuccessful.

Elliot's problems are further complicated when he realizes that Beth Ann may, herself, be suffering from epilepsy.

Tyne Daly guest stars as Beth Ann Blackner, Royal Dano as Jesse Poulsen and Ford Rainey as Abel Blackner. Jessica Myerson co-stars as Cora Poulsen, E. A. Sirianni as Dr. Boadman, Tom Waters as Amos Karnes and Gene Massey, Jr., as Jed Karnes.

ROBERT TOTTEN directed the teleplay by Anthony Lawrence.

"Doc Elliot" is produced by Lorimar Productions Inc. It was created by Allen Epstein and Lewis John Carlino developed the series for television. Lee Rich is executive producer and Sandor Stern is the producer.

Burl Ives Signs New TV Contract

With movie and television stars turning more to video commercials, Burl Ives signed a four-year contract with a life insurance firm for television, radio and print media appearances.

Jack Benny Clowns With Audience Before The Show

And there are lots of laughs that never get on the air.

These are the laughs that occurred between star and audience during a taping session of "Jack Benny's Second Farewell Special," to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Thursday at 8 p.m.

First announcer Bill Baldwin introduced Benny to the audience and then informed the star that there was a lady in the audience celebrating her 84th birthday.

SINCE HE HAD a few more minutes before taping the first number, Benny discussed his stinginess.

"I'm supposed to be stingy but, honestly, I'm not," he told the audience. "I really tip very big, especially cab drivers and waiters."

He proceeded to discuss an incident recently in Las Vegas to make the point.

"I hate to take a cab in Vegas and go just a short distance," he said. "When I do, I usually tip very big. Well, I took a cab from the Sahara to the Riviera. Now, when I do that, I get embarrassed. The fair was $1.10 so I gave the driver $3 and told him to keep the change."

The cabbie thanked the star but, as Benny tells it, said, "I wish you hadn't done that."

"Why?" asked Benny.

"Because," said the cabbie, "I wanted to go home and tell my wife what a cheapskate you are."

"YOU CAN STILL do that," said Benny. "Give me back my tip."

The audience wanted to know about Jack's violin playing.

"I get $100 a ticket for concerts because I play lousy," Benny explained. "If I played well, I couldn't get $2."

Benny indicated that he does not collect a dime from these concerts — they are all benefits.

WHAT ABOUT his wife Mary?

"In January (Jan. 14) we will have been married 47 years," said Benny. "That just shows you it can happen even in Hollywood. If I told you we never had an argument, I would be lying. But we never had an argument where the word 'divorce' was used. 'Murder' yes!"

"ONE MINUTE to show time," the stage manager announced.

"This is the moment that scares the hell out of me," said Benny.

"Five-four-three-two-," came the countdown.

"May we start once again," the director interrupts. "The lights weren't on."

Benny's look breaks up the audience.

"Can you imagine a mistake happening that soon?" he asks.

"I didn't even start the show. For goodness sake, when we have to do things over, just remember where you laughed!"

Telly Savalas Enjoys His Unplanned Life

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Telly Savalas is a larger-than-life man who is squeezing his massive vitality and huge size onto the television tube in the new "Kojak" series.

Savalas is expansive, brash and speaks his mind in a rumbling baritone. He cannot easily be pigeonholed.

The top of his head is shaved more closely than his jaw. He is barrel-chested. His body is powerful and his movements quick and graceful. Most of all, he is Greek and extraordinarily proud of it.

TELLY SAVALAS
Greek and proud of it

"TELLY" IS THE diminutive of his real name, Aristotle. Two of his four brothers are named Demosthenes and Socrates, but they also have changed their given names.

Brother Constantine is attached to the American Embassy in Athens. Another, Theodore, teaches at the University of Athens. Brother George is an associate producer of "Kojak."

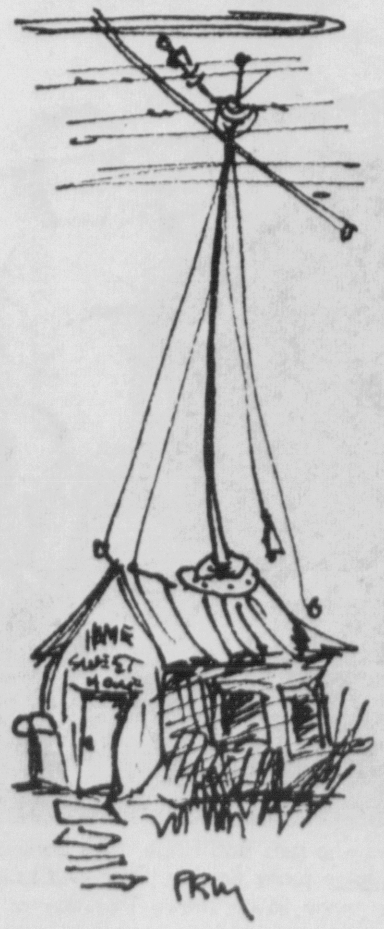

Telly and his wife, Lynn, have been married 13 years. They live in a Georgian colonial mansion in Beverly Hills. The grounds abound with flowers and the backyard patio surrounds a luxurious swimming pool.

THE COUPLE HAS three daughters: Christina, 22; Penelope, 12; and Candace, 10.

Savalas is the sort of man who has no idea how many rooms there are in his house. He's never counted them. Never intends to.

Neither does he pay much attention to the decor of the house. There are servants to do the cooking and cleaning and gardening. To Telly a chair is a functional object in which to sit, not an objet d'art.

Until the CBS-TV series presented itself Savalas was content with occasional guest shots on the tube. He preferred motion pictures, traveling all over the world to make them.

SINCE SIGNING for the show the actor has spent more time in a single place — Hollywood — than he has in many years.

Because he was once a school teacher he managed to keep the two younger girls abreast of their school work. Now that they are older he can't quite cope with the situation.

Not too many years ago Penelope and Candace approached their father asking for an autograph. They had only just discovered he was a celebrity.

NOW IN HIS new role as a compassionate New York policeman, the girls affectionately call him "Pop the Cop."

He reports to Universal Studios at 6 a.m. each day. And there are days when he doesn't leave until after midnight. He can never be certain when the director will call a halt.

The cook keeps something warm in the oven for the man of the house, but after 10 o'clock or so Lynn and the rest of the family go to bed.

NOT INFREQUENTLY Telly finds himself too tired to make the half hour trip home. When that happens he spends the night in his commodious dressing room on the studio lot. He gets more sleep that way.

The character he plays in the weekly series has a flair for clothes. Not Telly. He prefers casual, informal shirts and trousers.

He likes to entertain casually, too. And not very often. To break away from the pressures of work Savalas enjoys a different sort of pleasure — gambling for high stakes in Las Vegas. Sometimes Lynn accompanies him to the gambling spa, sometimes not.

Telly loves Greek food and the art of conversation. He avoids all exercise and lives, as he puts it, "ad lib."

"I live a hit-and-run life," Savalas says. 'My life is full of surprises. It's unplanned — and that's why I enjoy it so much."

Thin Man Returns

MGM and Robert Wagner are creating a new TV version of "The Thin Man," Wagner to play the Nick Charles role. Series of The Thin Man movies with William Powell and Myrna Loy started in 1934. The TV series starred Peter Lawford and Phyllis Kirk and aired in 1958-60.

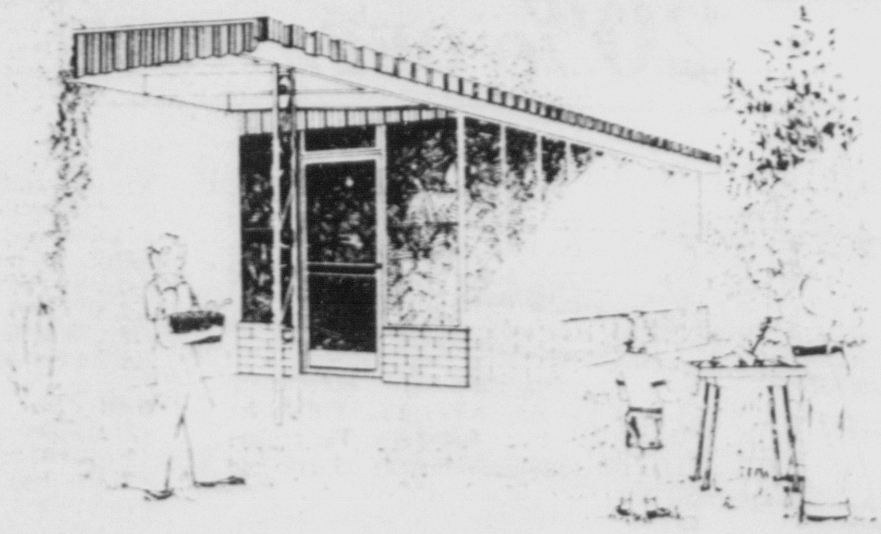

MUHAMMAD ALI takes a vicious left to the jaw from Joe Frazier that sends him to the canvas in their 15-round "Battle of the Century" in which Frazier dethroned Ali as heavyweight champion. The fight will be shown on home television for the first time next Saturday on "ABC's Wide World of Sports," with the two fighters on hand to help Howard Cosell analyze the replay.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR MRS. PAT NIXON (answered through Helen McLain Smith, Mrs. Nixon's Press Secretary)

Why don't you and your husband attend public church services as other Presidents and their wives have?—Robert Barney, San Antonio, Texas

● My husband is the first President to have worship services in the White House, but these are not the only times we attend church. The main reason for services in the White House is security. But we do attend a nearby Presbyterian church when we are in Key Biscayne, and we also attend other churches in San Clemente and when we are traveling around the country. But security problems are a concern, so that is one of the reasons we have White House worship services.

FOR SALLY STRUTHERS of "All in the Family"

Why have you never married?—Maria Lipzig, Nyack, N.Y.

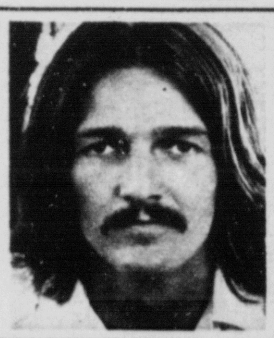

● I've come close a couple of times. But I tend to adapt to whatever the fellow does. For example, one boy was on the track team. So I went out for track, too, and was in the Junior Olympics. Another was a wrestler, so I created a cheerleading team for wrestlers. No one had ever heard of that before, but I did it. I was also engaged to a dress designer, but he made me look like a sofa.

FOR RON SANTO, Chicago Cubs' baseball star

Why did you keep secret the fact that you're a diabetic?—Robert J. Keen, Potomac, Ill.

● My diabetes was detected when I was 18. I kept it a secret for many years because I didn't want any special treatment. Once I had established myself as a regular player, I felt there was no need to keep it a secret any longer. In fact, I felt the knowledge of my condition would encourage other diabetics to lead more normal lives.

FOR TED NEELEY,
who portrays Jesus in "Jesus Christ Superstar"

Has religion affected you deeply?—J. Brennan, Buffalo, N.Y.

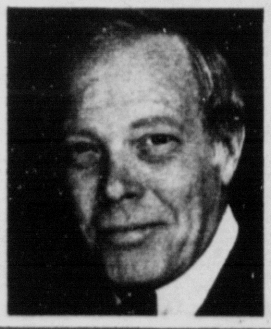

● I was born in Texas and raised a Southern Baptist . My earliest desire was to become a minister. But I outgrew this ambition and was dismissed from church at 13 for playing rock and roll at a local nightspot. I think the rock musical "Hair" was the turning point in my life. I had been very closed-minded about a lot of things. I got into "Hair" and I found myself doing things I never would have done before.

FOR MRS. GERALD FORD

Is your daughter Susan as accomplished a housekeeper as I hear she is?—Mrs. Laurene Mills, Hobart, Ind.

● Susan's a very efficient housekeeper. She not only cooks very well, but sews and needlepoints, too. Whenever her father wants his favorite dinner—pot roast with all the trimmings—Susan's always our chef. Besides cooking and sewing, she loves plants and flowers and has the greenest thumb you've ever seen.

FOR DICK HAYMES

I understand you had a drinking problem. How were you suddenly able to stop?—Phil Swanne, Los Angeles, Calif.

● I asked for God's help and got it. Actually, I didn't give it up—it gave me up. I consider myself blessed. I am very much involved with God. This is not a new involvement, but there were times I turned my back on what I knew was right and hurried toward self-destruction.

FOR JOHN WAYNE

You're so masculine. Do you believe in Women's Lib?—Seane Gilbert, Pocatello, Idaho

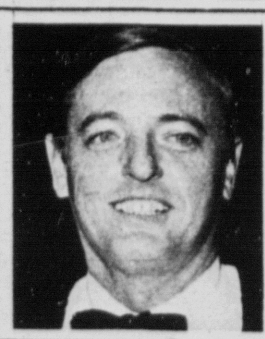

● I have been trying to figure out what Women's Lib means. Its leaders seem to be in active frustration. I have never thought of equality when I thought of women. I have always put them on a pedestal; but maybe the Women's Lib girls are right and men should consider them equals.

FOR ROSE MARIE, TV star

You always act as though you're looking for a man. What is your family status?—Robert R. Reinsmith, McAllen, Texas

● I am single, (widowed by the death of NBC trumpet player Bobby Guy), the mother of a grown daughter—and I am a horse fancier as well as a man fancier!

FOR WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

I understand that you made a statement on TV several years ago that the newly elected President Nixon was owned by the Chase Manhattan Bank. Why did you say that?—Mrs. Edwin Powers, Austin, Texas

● I never said any such thing. And anyway I regret it isn't true, because I have a couple of shares in the Chase Manhattan Bank.

FOR ADM. THOMAS H. MOORER,
chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff

Why don't we get our troops out of Europe? It might contribute to peace—and save us money, too.—W. Coates, Anchorage, Alaska

● Since 1961, the U.S. has reduced its troop level in Europe by 35 percent. The Soviets, on the other hand, have increased theirs by 20 percent in the last five years. Is it wise to believe that unilateral U.S. withdrawals would be greeted by reciprocal action on the part of the Soviets? I think not. Any change should be mutual, not unilateral.

When it's raining outside and the kids are running around inside, it's a big help to have some small surprise stashed away. And when the surprise you bring out is a Fisher-Price toy, you know your children will be amused for hours on end.

There are lots of colorful new Basic Hardboard Puzzles. Challenging and fun. But not frustrating. There's a new Play Family Animal Circus to perform with under the piano. A new Bouncing Buggy to toddle around the porch. And our big Play Family Village or Farm can keep a whole crowd busy.

Then there's a Movie Viewer with Walt Disney or Sesame Street cartridges to pass around from child to child. And no batteries to give out in the middle of the afternoon.

Because Fisher-Price toys run on imagination. And imagination is what children never run out of. Not even on a rainy day.

A million jobs have disappeared since 1960

Will Your Job be Next to Go?

Shouldn't you start your own business NOW ...while still employed?

Before more jobs disappear through mergers, automation, and mechanization, shouldn't you at least investigate the way so many men have become owners of profitable businesses —starting spare time and now are independent of bosses, strikes, layoffs and automation? All that's needed is your name on the coupon. Facts mailed free. No salesman will call.

Here are facts: With some ambition and little over a thousand dollars, you start your own Duraclean business in spare time, without risking your job or paycheck!

It's a nationally advertised, worldwide business. It does not require skill, more than an average education, or traits except the willingness to work to start grossing $12, $19, or $26 profit per hour. By return mail, we will explain how.

You build by adding servicemen and/or servicewomen . . . and we pay for their equipment so you can expand rapidly.

This is a service to homeowners as well as offices and stores and institutions—a sensationally improved method of cleaning carpets and upholstered furniture right on the customer's premises—the EXCLUSIVE DURACLEAN SYSTEM!

When you have had your own carpet and furniture cleaned, you know that ordinary methods grind fibers with harsh scrubbing, leaving carpet soggy for days.

This exclusive ABSORPTION METHOD lifts out dirt and greasy soil with a gentle, almost dry foam. Do-it-yourself "so-called" cleaning methods and scrubbing drive soil deeper. You TAKE IT OUT. Carpets and furniture can be used again in a few hours! This is vital to stores, offices, motels.

You operate under a nationally known name—use an exclusive process recommended by the nation's leading carpet mills and in the editorial pages by House & Garden, McCalls, Parents, and House Beautiful. You receive our step by step guidance and help.

Your training shows you how to perform your 7 superior "on location" services . . . how to get customers, how to control your expenses, how to make the maximum profit. You become an expert in the care of furnishings. It is an interesting, exciting career.

Although in time you will wish to buy one or more trucks from your profits, no truck or office is needed to start. You can carry all equipment in your car trunk. Your phone calls can be received at home.

As a Duraclean Dealer you are the sole owner of an independent business and are your own boss. You keep all the net profits.

This business can pay you far more than most men earn—with only the talent and ambition you now possess, and you can operate in any one of three ways.

Many let servicemen do the work while they make a substantial profit on each.

Some men operate permanently in spare time for the extra money they need. Some start in spare time and quit their jobs only after they see they can make a lot more money as a full time Duraclean Specialist.

Even small one-man businesses with one or two helpers can and do bring in $30,000 and more annually. A very high percent is clear profit to you.

The Duraclean Business can be as small as you want or it can be expanded to the level your ambition dictates. There is no limit on income for an ambitious man.

We are about to appoint a limited number of men who are truly ambitious, and anxious to do something about their futures. We want men who will follow our proven plans for success and who want—with our help—their own successful businesses.

If this opportunity interests you, please send your name, on the coupon at the right, for a FREE 24-page booklet which gives complete details on the Duraclean Business. No salesman will call on you. After you've read the facts, decide in the privacy of your home if you wish to take the next step toward starting a business.

WE SWITCHED!

"For the first time in 20 years I've got security —without fear of losing my factory job." H. E., Ohio

"I took in $2880 in April. I worked from my home. My wife handles all telephone calls. We both enjoy our new-found independence and the compliments we get from satisfied customers." J.F.A., Texas

"When I was 40 I decided to retire before I was 50 years old. With Duraclean I gained financial security in only 8 years—then sold my business at a big profit." J.H., Ill.

"Duraclean brought security and an education for my daughters. We've done as much as $3000 on a single job." Mrs. B.B., Mass.

"Life is happier and more prosperous for my family and me. Without Duraclean I'd still be going from layoff to layoff. Now moving to new 5-bedroom home." R.J.B., Mich.

THESE ARE JUST A FEW OF THE LETTERS IN OUR FILES FROM MEN AND WOMEN WHO HAVE FOUND SUCCESS AS DURACLEAN DEALERS. (IN ANOTHER YEAR YOUR STATEMENT COULD BE HERE, TOO.)

Our First Ladies, as We Never Knew Them, By a Man Who Served Them All

Pictorial Parade

"Mrs. Truman . . . had a bit of an inferiority complex. She was bright and politically experienced, but she considered herself a housewife and lived that way in the White House."

"Mrs. Eisenhower used to sit in bed and read newspapers, looking for food specials. She'd send out for special buys if they were cheaper than she was getting them wholesale."

"Mrs. Kennedy was forever giving me notes on yellow paper. It got so I had to carry my own pad. She had a mastery of detail, even to where to place ashtrays on the tables."

"Mrs. Johnson . . . lived in the shadow of Lyndon Johnson. Then she found out he was so busy he didn't have time to direct her, and she became herself."

"Mrs. Nixon . . . liked Mrs. Johnson's bedroom for herself because she said her husband woke up during the night to read and record and it was impossible to sleep with him."

In 1941, J. Bernard West was assigned to the White House as Assistant to the Chief Usher. Eleanor Roosevelt was then First Lady. In 1959 he became Chief Usher, an archaic title meaning he was responsible for everything concerning the domestic life of the First Family. He was in charge of the household's physical and fiscal running; oversaw the upkeep and renovation of the White House and its 16 acres of ground; supervised all personnel; catered to the whims of the First Ladies and made sure that both private and official life in the 132-room mansion ran smoothly. In short, he was indispensable to Eleanor Roosevelt, Bess Truman, Mamie Eisenhower, Jacqueline Kennedy and Lady Bird Johnson. He also introduced the intricacies of White House living to Pat Nixon.

J. Bernard West

During his 28 years of service, he discreetly refused to say a word about his life with this country's First Families. Now retired, he has written a book called "Upstairs at the White House" (Coward, McCann & Geoghegan, $8.95). Recently he chatted freely with FAMILY WEEKLY.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Did any of the First Ladies during the many years you served in the White House ever seem to object to their role?

WEST: At first Mrs. Kennedy objected to being called the First Lady and suggested she be called Mrs. Kennedy. Gradually, however, she came to see there was a difference and accepted the title. As for having to live in the White House, it was my distinct impression that Mrs. Nixon was unhappy about that. She seemed most reluctant.

FW: Did any First Lady ever ask you to do something you couldn't do?

WEST: Not really. The White House is operated on the theory that there is always a way to do everything. Of course, there was Johnson's shower....

WEST: He wanted a certain kind. After several months' work and five different installations costing thousands of dollars, the experts came up with quite an invention. It had six different nozzles so that water hit every part of his body at a terrific force!

FW: Was he happy with it?

WEST: I think maybe he was satisfied in the end. At least he was proud enough of it to show it to Mr. Nixon when he came to look over the White House before moving in.

FW: What was Mr. Nixon's reaction to the contraption?

WEST: It was the first thing he took out. The second was the clutter of wiring for recording and phone equipment that Mr. Johnson had stuffed under the bed.

FW: Did Mrs. Nixon make any changes?

WEST: I was in the White House only for the first six weeks of the Nixons' residency. During that time Mrs. Nixon wanted the big canopied bed exchanged for a simple double bed for her husband, and she liked Mrs. Johnson's bedroom for herself because she said her husband woke up during the night to read and record and it was impossible to sleep with him.

WEST: Yes—Mrs. Roosevelt popped in and out of the office at a running rate to hand over appointment lists and tell us what to do. She never walked, she ran. Mrs. Truman met with me at nine each morning in her office. She had a bit of an inferiority complex. She was bright and politically experienced, but she considered herself a housewife and lived that way in the White House.

I went to Mrs. Eisenhower's bedroom when the butler took her breakfast tray up anywhere between eight and ten. Like her mother, she adhered to the belief that a woman over 50 should never get out of bed until noon. She was always propped up in her pink bed with lots of pink pillows, and had a pink bow in her hair. She was very feminine and loved ruffles.

Mrs. Kennedy was forever giving me notes on yellow paper. It got so I had to carry my own pad. She had a mastery of detail, even to where to place ashtrays on the tables. Even when she was under great stress, when her husband's body reposed in the White House, she asked to have her Cezanne paintings replaced by American art so that when President De Gaulle came to pay his respects he'd "be aware of the heritage of the United States."

FW: Who enjoyed being First Lady most?

WEST: Mrs. Eisenhower. She liked parading around all dressed up. When Mrs. Kennedy came in, she had round tables put in the dining room for State dinners, to promote conversation. But Mrs. Eisenhower liked a banquet table. She and her husband sat at the table side by side in the center, like a king and queen.

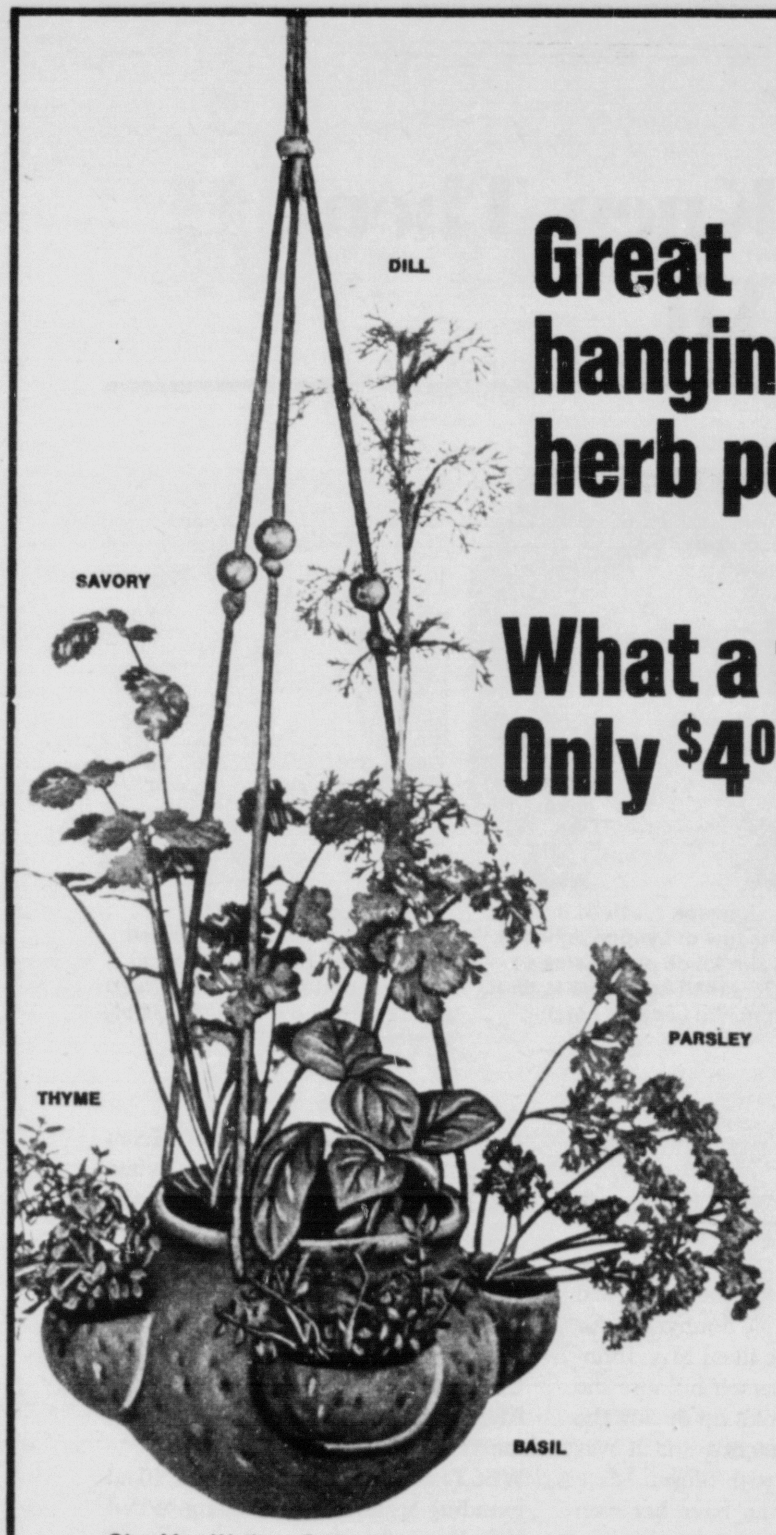

FW: Was there any truth to the rumor that Mamie Eisenhower had a drinking problem?

WEST: She had no drinking problem during my time in the White House. It's possible that because she spent so much time in bed, she was unsteady on her feet sometimes. Her only exercise was a massage three times a week before breakfast.

FW: Who changed most during the time they lived in the White House?

WEST: Mrs. Johnson. Until she came to the White House, she lived in the shadow of Lyndon Johnson. Then she found out he was so busy he didn't have time to direct her, and she became herself. She became extremely interested in the beautification of

What a find! Only $4.00

About 6" across—made of clay pot terra cotta stuff. Designed the way the old fashioned strawberry pot was—with a place here—in the center for the stand-up herbs—and four places on the side for the hanging herbs.

Herbs you can pluck and use in your cooking. A hanging garden that adds so much to your kitchen. Absolutely wild crazy gift for someone with a kitchen. (Who doesn't have a kitchen?) Money back if not happy—even if you've started it growing—$4.00 complete with seeds. Two for $7.50.

Our First Ladies

America. But she wasn't too interested in the running of the White House. She was basically a businesswoman.

FW: Did any of the Presidents get involved in White House changes, aside from Johnson's shower?

WEST: Mr. Kennedy was very concerned about the grounds. And Mr. Nixon did away with the swimming pool.

FW: Why was that?

WEST: The press used to sit in the entrance to the President's office and had constant access to the Press Secretary's office. Mr. Nixon didn't like the way they treated him, so he covered the pool and put the press down there. They didn't like that. Now he probably wishes the pool had a trapdoor so he could drop some of the press through it.

FW: Did any of the First Families have any fights?

WEST: They may have had knock-down-drag-out fights upstairs, but I never heard them. The only one I ever heard was President Johnson cussing out his personal staff. Then he'd make up for it with something nice the next day.

FW: In your book, you say that the President can sleep in the White House free of charge, but that he has to pay for all the food. Which wives were most frugal?

WEST: Mrs. Eisenhower and Mrs. Truman. Mrs. Eisenhower used to sit in bed and read newspapers, looking for food specials. She'd send out for special buys if they were cheaper than she was getting them wholesale. And every morning she had the butler give her a list of leftovers so she could tell him what to do with them.

FW: Who was the most colorful houseguest while you were in the White House?

WEST: Winston Churchill—he liked to run around nude—and Madam Chiang Kai-shek, who brought along her own silk sheets and had them changed whenever her body touched them.

FW: You were in the White House when Roosevelt died. Pearl Harbor was attacked, an attempt was made on Truman's life, Hiroshima was bombed and President Kennedy was assassinated. Which First Lady bore up best in time of crisis?

WEST: Mrs. Kennedy went through the worst and seemed extremely calm and aware of others' feelings. I remember after the private Mass for the late President in the White House, she saw me standing in my office doorway. She came over and put her arms around me. "Poor Mr. West," she said. And then she wanted me to take her to see her husband's office that she was meticulously redecorating for him. But she never got to see how it would look. It was already being dismantled for President Johnson.

The Family Weekly Foodshelf

CONFETTI HASH

In medium skillet, bring ½ cup water, ¼ teaspoon salt, and 1 tablespoon margarine to boiling. Add 1 pkg. (9 ozs.) frozen cut green beans or Italian green beans. Cook, breaking up beans with fork; cover and cook 5 minutes. Add 1 can (15½ ozs.) corned beef hash, 2 tablespoons dry bacon-onion seasoning or 1 tablespoon instant minced onion, dash pepper, 1 jar (4 ozs.) coarsely chopped, drained pimientos or pickles. Stir with large spoon to mix; heat to boiling. Sprinkle surface with ½ cup grated cheese or diced cream cheese. Cover and heat 1-2 minutes, until cheese melts.

1. Nope. He's Húgo Slavia, impoverished secret agent. Gimmick: Sells "hot" watches as a sideline. His cigarettes smoke even hotter. 2. Mike L. Angelow. Gimmick: Artist who draws everything but attention. At last sidewalk exhibition he got a ticket for littering. Smokes decorator pack cigarettes. 3. No. Ralph Knoshow (not pictured). Transistor radio salesman. Resigned when given new territory... Japan. His cigarette's taste is missing too. 4. Right. Wherever he goes, he leaves the far-out gimmicks to others. Likes his cigarette no-nonsense too. Camel Filters. Honest. Good tasting. 5. Charles Chizlar. Gimmicks: 5 overcoats, 4 sweaters, 3 pairs of pants. Saves on overweight luggage. Drains tap in men's room for his water-filtered cigarettes. 6. He's Vaseli Overaidt, wrestler. Gimmick: Demonstrating arm wrestling techniques to strangers. 7. Helen Back, stranger. Our Special NFL Draft Preview

An Insider's Report on the College Stars Pro Football Scouts Rate Highest

By Larry Bortstein, with "Harry Cartwright"

On January 28-29, the heads of the 26 National Football League teams will be meeting in New York to select the cream of the 1973 crop of senior college players in the annual professional football draft. The stakes are high and mistakes can be costly; a good or bad draft round can affect teams for years to come.

What will the teams be looking for this year? What players will be the most sought after? To find the answers, FAMILY WEEKLY went to the same kind of expert the coaches and general managers will be depending on — the professional football scout. We've called our expert "Harry Cartwright," but that is not his real name. For reasons of his own, he has chosen to remain anonymous. But he has long been recognized as one of the nation's best judges of potential football talent.

- Running backs, linebackers and tight ends are unusually abundant.
- Quarterbacks are hard to come by. Most teams seeking young passers will do well to wait until next year.
- There are several outstanding linemen available, but the outlook is not too bright for blue-chip secondary defenders.

"Of course, a lot depends," says Cartwright. "A team may overlook a great player if they already have an established player at that position. They may go for a man who can fit into a spot where they feel they need help."

Cartwright feels John Cappelletti of Penn State and Jim McAlister of UCLA will be the first running backs selected by the pros. Other backs will also be snatched up quickly. "Charlie Davis of Colorado, Woody Green of Arizona State, Kermit Johnson of UCLA, Wilbur Jackson of Alabama—they're all good halfback types," says Cartwright. "Among fullbacks, Billy Ray Pritchett of West Texas State, Bo Matthews of Colorado, Reggie Harrison of Cincinnati, and Ed Shuttlesworth of Michigan will be the top choices."

Though UCLA was beaten by Southern Cal last season, three Bruins rated as first-round selections by Cartwright. Besides McAlister, UCLA offers place-kicker Efren Herrera and linebacker Fred McNeill.

Nor does Cartwright overlook the small colleges. He feels almost certain that first-round slots will go to wide receiver Roger Carr of Louisiana Tech (Terry Bradshaw's alma mater) and two defensive stars from Tennessee State, tight end Ed Jones and linebacker Waymond Bryant. (Tennessee State in recent years has sent more players to the professional ranks than any other university, except Notre Dame and Southern California.)

OFFENSE

QUARTERBACK

Mike Boryla, Stanford (6-4, 200)

Completed 55 percent of his passes in 1973, for 1,629 yards and 17 touchdowns. Son of Vince Boryla, former pro basketball player and now general manager of the Utah Stars basketball team.

SCOUTING REPORT:

"Has best arm of any college quarterback. Throws well short and long. Has a good head and good experience, since he started at Stanford for three years. Tall and strong, has the physical equipment the pros like. Some question about his quickness in setting up to throw. Doesn't run well but is tough to knock off his feet."

Cappelletti

McAlister

RUNNING BACK

John Cappelletti, Penn State (6-2, 210)

Heisman winner. Ran for 1,522 yards and 17 touchdowns in 1973. His per-carry average was 5.3 yards.

SCOUTING REPORT:

"Extremely durable and strong runner. Can carry the ball again and again without seeming to feel the effect. Wasn't asked to do much blocking in college, so it remains to be seen how well he'll handle his blocking assignments in the pros. But seems to be the sort who can adjust easily."

RUNNING BACK

Jim McAlister, UCLA (6-1, 202)

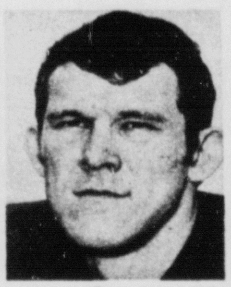

Played in shadow of Kermit Johnson, but is considered the better pro prospect of the two. Hampered by injuries in 1973, but averaged 6.16 yards per try. Also one of the world's great long jumpers.

SCOUTING REPORT:

"Has everything a runner needs, exceptional speed and quickness. Played fullback at college, but will probably play tailback or halfback in the pros. His long-jump records (over 27 feet) indicate great body control and spring."

WIDE RECEIVER

Lynn Swann, Southern Cal (6 feet, 180)

Averaged 13.7 yards per play. Fine punt returner as well as receiver. Caught 36 passes for 661 yards and six touchdowns in 1973. Also returned 18 punts for 189 yards and one TD.

SCOUTING REPORT:

"Outstanding speed, timed in 4.5 seconds for 40 yards. Runs good pass routes. Knows how to catch the ball in all kinds of unusual traffic and crowd situations. That's going to help him in the pros. A great all-round athlete."

WIDE RECEIVER

Roger Carr, Louisiana Tech (6-3, 205)

SCOUTING REPORT:

"Has great speed, though maybe not as great as Swann's. Has a great knack for being where the ball is thrown. He just knows how to play the position. Can jump high over defenders to catch the ball, which makes him even taller than he already is."

TIGHT END

Keith Fahnhorst, Minnesota (6-6, 245)

Named to the Big Ten All-Star squad for 1973. His specialty: blocking.

SCOUTING REPORT:

"He can catch the ball when necessary, but is coming into the league at a time when a tight end who can block well has become very important in helping beat zone defenses and running games. Great blocker. Big enough to play tackle in the pros, though he could stand a little more bulk in his upper body."

CENTER

Bill Wyman, Texas (6-2, 235)

SCOUTING REPORT:

"Good solid football player. Comes off the line very quickly. Fits well into running game. His ability to block on pass plays remains to be seen, but he's very good in blocking for the run."

TACKLE

Scott Anderson, Missouri (6-4, 235)

Was All-Big Eight selection at center for 1973. Projected as either center or tackle for the pros.

SCOUTING REPORT:

"Very strong for his size. Needs to gain weight to be effective in the pros, but has great speed and movement. Has 'quick feet.' A kid who doesn't get bowled over easily, a kid who can adjust to different situations."

TACKLE

Dave Lapham, Syracuse (6-5, 260)

SCOUTING REPORT:

"You can spot a good prospect even when he's playing for a poor team, and this kid is one. Has very quick feet, good mobility and a very strong body. Does everything you could ask from an offensive lineman."

GUARD

John Hicks, Ohio State (6-3, 258)

Woody Hayes rates him the finest offensive lineman ever produced at OSU. First interior offensive lineman ever to be a serious candidate for Heisman Trophy (was runner-up). Played tackle in college, could play tackle or guard in pros.

SCOUTING REPORT:

"What can you say about this guy? May be the best player in the country—should be first player picked in the entire draft. You want blocking? He sometimes takes out two or three guys in one play. Has great speed, faster than many backs."

GUARD

Booker Brown, Southern Cal (6-3, 260)

John McKay calls him the finest offensive lineman he's seen. Named on most All-America teams.

SCOUTING REPORT:

"Extremely strong upper body is his main asset. Doesn't just block guys, really raps them. Can make it either at guard or tackle. Probably hasn't reached his peak in physical size yet. He's one of those guys who may play at 275 pounds or more in the pros."

PLACE-KICKER

Efren Herrera, UCLA (5-10, 185)

A soccer-style kicking specialist who led major colleges most of the 1973 season in scoring. Hit eight field goals in 11 attempts.

SCOUTING REPORT:

"A strong leg on kickoffs and field goals. More teams are realizing how important the kicker is and kicking specialists are becoming high draft choices by many clubs. This guy has been one of the better ones in the last couple of years."

DEFENSE

END

Dave Gallagher, Michigan (6-4, 245)

An All-America choice who played mostly tackle for undefeated Michigan.

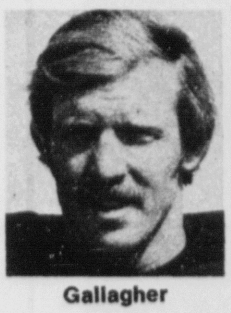

SCOUTING REPORT:

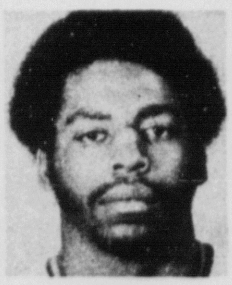

"Doesn't rate tops in any single category, but is a solid, hard-nosed kid who likes to play aggressively and always tries to improve himself. He's the type who could end up making it really big in a few years."

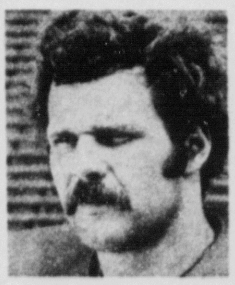

END

Ed Jones, Tennessee State (6-9, 264)

Considered Tennessee State's greatest-ever defensive-line prospect. Has great strength and speed, awesome size. Helped lead team to undefeated season and top ranking among the nation's college-division teams. Coach John Merritt calls Jones "quick as a hiccup."

Gallagher

Jones

Barzilauskas

Dutton

SCOUTING REPORT:

"Possible first pick in the draft. You have to love his size and what he can do with it. Great natural talent, but also takes coaching well. He's going to give offensive linemen plenty to worry about in the pros. Most have never had to block anybody so tall."

TACKLE

Carl Barzilauskas, Indiana (6-6, 270)

Led the pass-rush for a team that ranked sixth in the country in pass defense. Received several All-America mentions.

SCOUTING REPORT:

"A standout senior. We all knew he had great size and a lot of ability, but he didn't produce as well as he should have in his sophomore and junior years. He's ready now, though. He took off a little weight and that helped his speed without cutting down his strength."

TACKLE

John Dutton, Nebraska (6-7, 248)

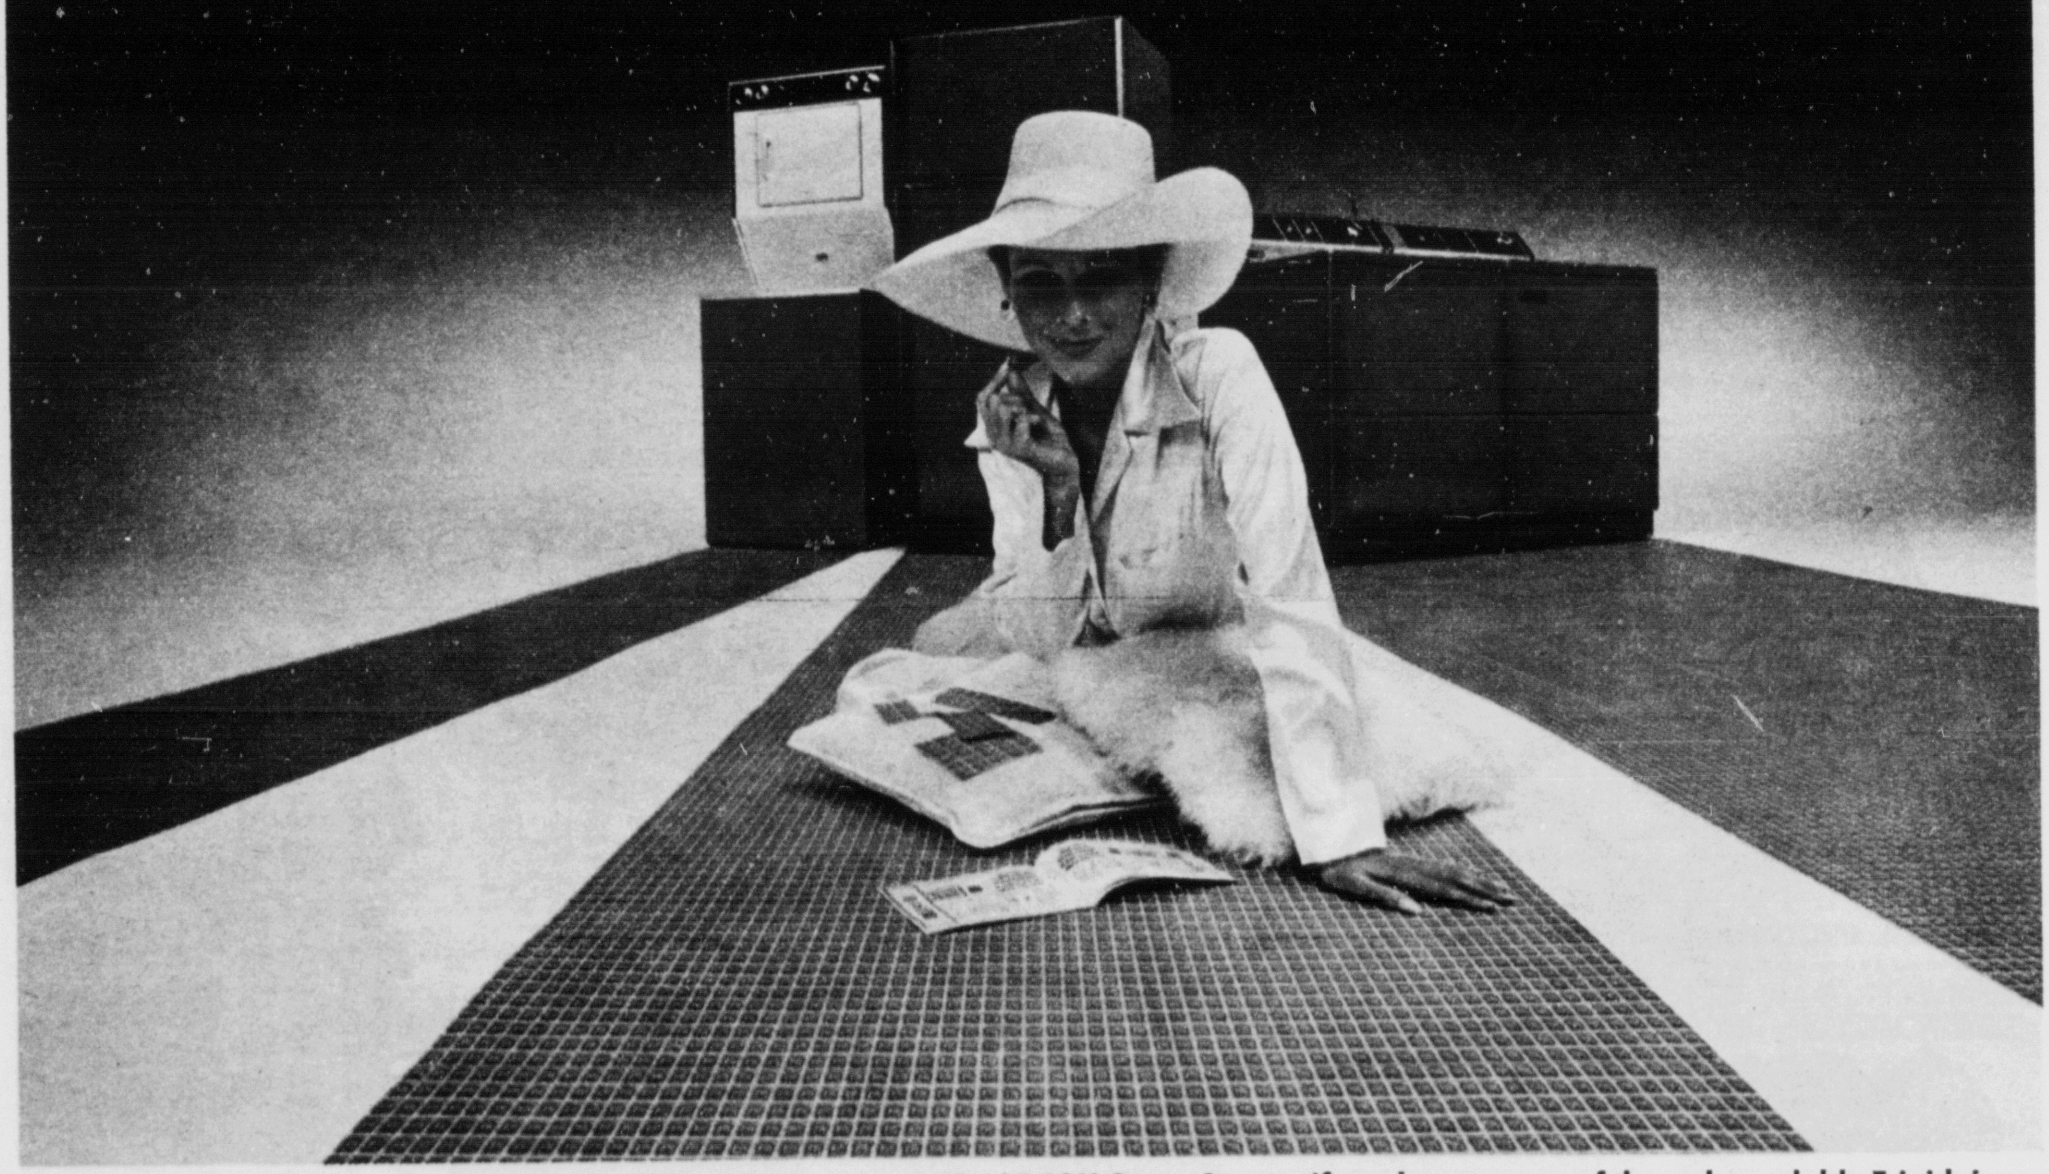

Named to most All-America squads. Was a major reason for Nebraska's top ranking in pass defense.

SCOUTING REPORT:

"One of those real big men with terrific speed and strength, though he may have to put on some more weight. No one blocker was able to handle him in college, though he won't have it that easy in the pros. He occasionally was stung by a counter play or suckered into a trap. But no one's going to run up his back."

NFL DRAFT PREVIEW

LINEBACKER

Waymond Bryant, Tenn. State (6-3, 236)

SCOUTING REPORT:

"This is a year for big linebackers, and Bryant is one of the great ones. Very agile and can drop back against the pass as well as play the run. A very mature individual with a good head for football. He says he came to Tennessee State because he wanted to be with a winner, and he's learned how to win. Great leadership potential."

Bryant

Gradishar

LINEBACKER

Randy Gradishar, Ohio State (6-3, 240)

SCOUTING REPORT:

"Has a chance either at middle linebacker or on the outside. Very aggressive and quick and can move extremely well for a big man. In other years, he might have a chance in the defensive line, but he's developed into such a good linebacker it wouldn't make sense to change his position. Plays well even when hurt, which is a good sign of his interest in the game."

LINEBACKER

Fred McNeill, UCLA (6-3, 210)

SCOUTING REPORT:

"The only question about him seems to be his size. But he was giving away lots more weight playing up front in college than he'll give away playing linebacker in the pros. A tough hitter, has excellent pursuit. Really stays on top of his men and makes sure they go down."

McNeill

Capria

FREE SAFETY

Carl Capria, Purdue (6-3, 180)

Leader of Boilermaker secondary that limited 1973 opponents, to only six touchdowns by passing and a 40 percent completion rate.

SCOUTING REPORT:

"His height is a real help in covering the pass. Also runs well, and has a good instinct for pass coverage. Safeties in the pros have to be able to cover the run now, and this is where Capria will be put to the test."

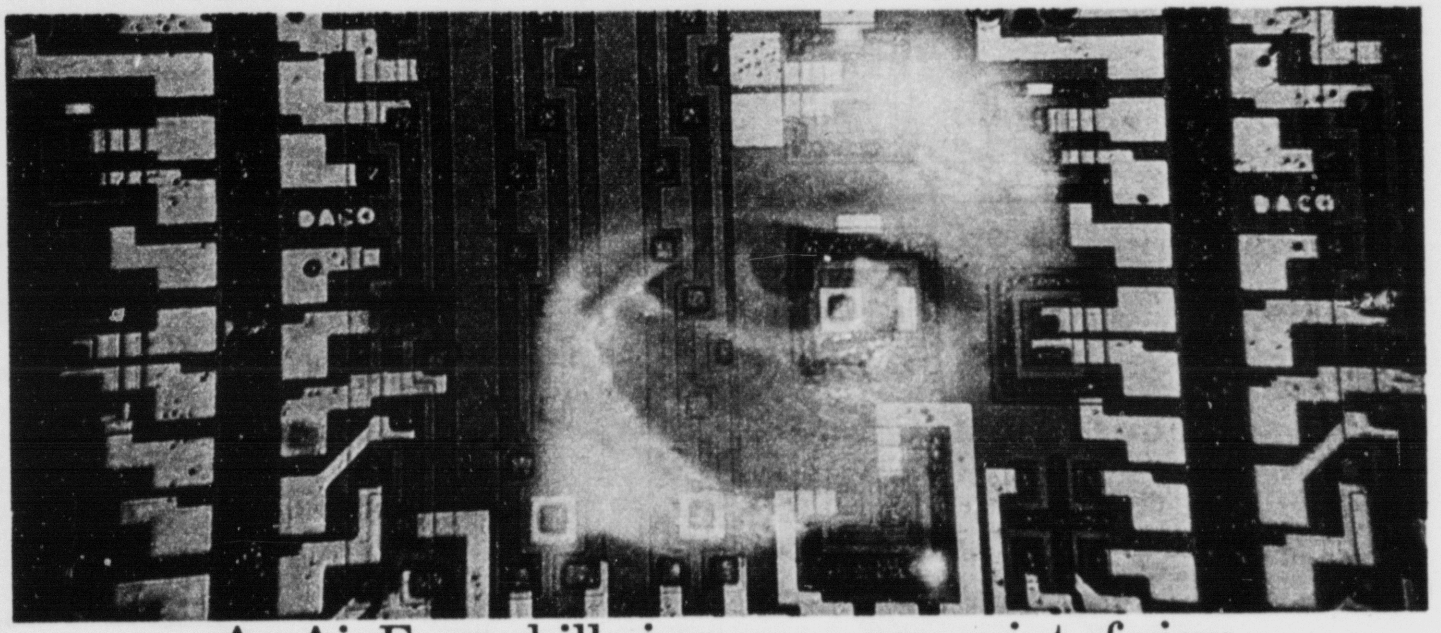

STRONG SAFETY

Mike Townsend, Notre Dame (6-3, 183)

An Air Force skill gives you a new point of view.

In a lot of ways.

You develop a close-up view of your job. Like the Air Force electronics specialist above. He can read every line in a printed circuit. But whichever of the more than 250 job areas we teach you—you'll learn it from the ground up. Be a specialist in it. And get paid while you learn.

You discover a wide view of your country and the world. Because you get to travel. Work in different places. Move around freely on your 30 days of paid vacation every year. Enjoy low rates on commercial airlines, or fly free on Air Force planes that happen to be going your way.

And you even look at yourself differently. Because you have so much going for you. A good job. Good pay. Medical and dental care. Food, clothing, housing. Wide-open opportunities to continue your education.

Plus the skill and experience that could land you a good job in civilian life—should you decide to go that route. And if all this gives you a new point of view about the Air Force, see your local Air Force Recruiter. For his location call 800-447-4700, toll free (in Illinois call 800-322-4400). Or just mail in the coupon.

And see how everything starts looking up.

IN THIS GRIND-EM-OUT WORLD, IS THERE SUCH A THING AS A QUALITY CIGARETTE?

If the cigarette is Kent there is.

We try to get rid of any taste-robbing imperfections before a Kent ever sees the light of a match. (Over 200 different quality checks in the manufacturing end, alone.)

We go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states to find the right kind of tobaccos for the milder Kent blend.

To complement this blend, we even invented our own filter, the famous Micronite filter—to smooth the flavor of Kent.

Why are we such sticklers about how Kent is made?

Because, that way we can give you the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

King Size or Deluxe 100's.

Mild, smooth taste.
America's quality cigarette.
Kent.

Kings: 16 mg. "tar," 1.1 mg. nicotine; 100's: 19 mg. "tar," 1.2 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report Sept. '73.

Star Chat

By Peer. J. Oppenheimer

Big David Hartman, Lover of Ballet—And Baseball!

"When I was on the road and couldn't get a king- or queen-sized bed to sleep on diagonally, I'd get twin beds and put the mattresses on the floor end to end."

Dave Hartman: A BA in economics, too.

From his television series "The Bold Ones," I'd been impressed by David Hartman as an actor. I also knew that he was tall. But it wasn't until I met him for lunch at Reuben's restaurant near Universal Studios that I realized just how tall he is—6'5"—and how articulate.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Are people ever surprised how tall you are when they first meet you?

HARTMAN: The first thing everyone always says is, "I never knew you were so tall!"

FW: Has your height ever been a problem?

HARTMAN: Oh, I don't know. I was tall at 15, and I decided a number of years ago to make it work for me. Like when I auditioned for the chorus in "Hello, Dolly!" in New York a number of years ago. I was told I'd never be in the chorus because of my height, and I thought, "Well, that's fine with me! Don't put me in the chorus, give me a part instead!" Luckily I'd had training as a dancer and singer, and that happened to be the combination that Gower Champion wanted. So I auditioned for him—and my being tall, along with my training, paid off.

FW: What about more mundane things, like finding places to sleep and clothes to wear?

HARTMAN: Beds were a problem until five or six years ago when I could afford to have an extra-big bed made up. When I was on the road and couldn't get a king- or queen-sized bed to sleep on diagonally, I'd get twin beds and put the mattresses on the floor end to end. As for clothes, I have to have them made. I spend money on a few good things that fit properly. I'm no clothes fiend. I usually live in Levis and a shirt that wore out three years ago. [I noticed his well-broken-in shoes had a hole in the sole of one of them.]

FW: Your father was an executive in an advertising company. Why didn't you follow in his footsteps?

HARTMAN: I have a BA in economics from Duke University, and most of my credits for an MA. But after three years in the Air Force, I felt I had to start from scratch again anyway, and I just wasn't interested in business. So I decided to attend the American Academy of Opera. I also studied ballet and took acting lessons.

FW: Why ballet?

HARTMAN: Because of what is called the psychology of the body. I didn't really want to become a ballet dancer—I'm too tall for that. But it taught me how to walk properly, and how to handle my body. Besides, I enjoy it! I think it helps anyone in the theater, particularly if you're tall. If you stand up straight, people tend not to notice how tall you actually are. My mother always made me stand up straight. She was forever putting her hand in the small of my back and saying, "Don't slouch—stand up!"

FW: Was there ever anything else you wanted to do besides act?

HARTMAN: I wanted to be a baseball player, and I spend a great deal of time with the San Francisco Giants. I still go through spring training with them whenever I can, but it's hard to last past your thirties in baseball.

FW: You became so famous as a doctor on "The Bold Ones." And now you're doing medical specials on TV. Does it bother you to watch real operations?

HARTMAN: Not at all. I feel very comfortable in hospitals and in the surgery arena. But I would get upset if I saw an accident. That's quite different.

FW: Do you think you have the temperament to be a doctor?

HARTMAN: Basically I'm a calm person, but I do get enthusiastic—as I am over the advances in medicine.

FW: How do your parents feel about your success?

HARTMAN: Both of my parents are dead. My father died of a heart attack when he was in his sixties. My mother died in her late fifties. I'll always remember them as marvelous people. They used to say to us, "We want you to see the world from our shoulders." And you know, I think my brothers and I do see it that way. FW

Continued

SCOUTING REPORT:

"Plays all defensive situations well. Though many pro teams now use the zone rather than man-to-man coverage of passes, a man with great speed still is helpful in the secondary, and Townsend has real good speed. His height also helps him a lot in covering receivers. The type of guy who seems to do his best in the biggest games."

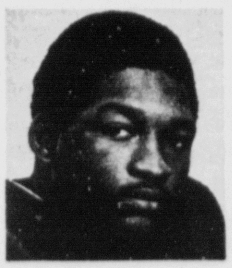

CORNERBACK

Ken Pope, Oklahoma (6 feet, 205)

SCOUTING REPORT:

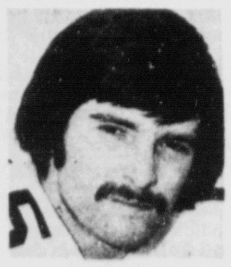

"Tough and aggressive—a real good hitter who enjoys contact. One of those guys you never hear much about because all he's doing is his job. Not flashy, but goes about his business with a lot of drive."

Pope

Henley

Ramsey

CORNERBACK

Bruce Henley, Rice (6-2, 173)

Played a lot at safety in college, and that may be his best pro position, though he is projected for the moment as a cornerback. An All-Southwest Conference selection.

SCOUTING REPORT:

"Good speed and good instincts for sports in general. Could probably make a lot of teams just on athletic ability alone, regardless of position. One of those guys who played great for a weak club. Lots of talent."

PUNTER

Chuck Ramsey, Wake Forest (6-2, 190)

Led the nation's collegiate punters most of 1973, averaging about 45 yards. Had lots of opportunities to kick because the Deacons were the worst team in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

SCOUTING REPORT:

"Keeps the ball high and lets his teammates have plenty of time to get downfield to cover the returns. A lot of pro teams could have used this kid this last season."

THE NO. 1 PICK?

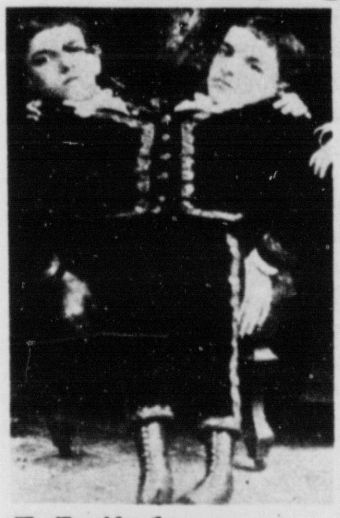

Perhaps the greatest honor of all connected with the draft is being the first player selected of all the 442 chosen.

Harry Cartwright suggests that the first player drafted will be, for the third year in a row, a lineman. (In 1972, it was Walt Patulski, a Notre Dame defensive tackle who went to Buffalo; in 1973 it was John Matuszak, a defensive end from the University of Tampa who was picked by Houston.)

"This year," says Cartwright, "the first choice is liable to be either John Hicks of Ohio State or Ed Jones of Tennessee State. I lean toward Hicks because there's always a scarcity of big super-offensive linemen."

Much depends, advises Cartwright, on which team makes the first selection. The Cowboys dealt defensive tackle Tody Smith to the Oilers for their first choice in the 1974 draft. If the Cowboys retain first choice, they might elect to draft Tennessee State's Jones, whom they could groom as a replacement for Bob Lilly. FW

VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE

The Struggles, Loves, and Triumphs of Human Oddities

As a youngster, Francesco Lentini was so shocked at what he saw in an institution for the severely handicapped that he never complained about his third leg again.

These are just a few of the many "mistakes of Nature" included in Frederick Drimmer's fascinating new book, VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE. What makes them very special is that they were all born "curiosities" and they all lived unusual lives. Like Chang and Eng, the original Siamese twins, who were joined at the chest for life. They married sisters, set up separate homes, and fathered 22 children between them!

Then there was Grace McDaniels, billed as the ugliest woman who ever lived (and her photo proves it). Believe it or not, Grace received several proposals of marriage before she accepted one from a handsome young man. They had a perfectly normal son, who grew up to be his mother's manager!

John Merrick, the grossly deformed "Elephant Man," was deserted by his heartless manager. Befriended by a kindly doctor, Merrick became quite famous and was frequently visited by Royalty.

The stories in this book are true, and we have over 65 rare photos to prove it. Never has one book been so complete. There are chapters on giants, dwarfs, fat people, armless and legless wonders, hermaphrodites (half man, half woman), bearded ladies, and numerous other human oddities.

This is not just a picture book of "freaks." The author treats these people with insight, compassion and the dignity one earns by being born different from everyone else.

VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE will also teach you one of the most important lessons that life has to offer: the incredible ability of man's mind, soul, and spirit to overcome any physical imperfection...no matter how hopeless it may appear. Read this book and you'll never indulge in self-pity again.

Only $5.95, hard covered, 412 pages, 67 photographs.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

How Well Do You Know the Reasons Behind Boredom?

True or False: The more sensitive a person is, the more subject he is to boredom. (See number 5)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Nobody knows what boredom is.
2. Some lucky people are never bored.
3. Boredom can do irreparable harm.
4. Boredom is one thing that yields no benefits to anybody.
5. The more sensitive a person is, the more subject he is to boredom.
6. When you're bored, there are three places to look to find the villain.

ANSWERS

1. False. Dr. Ralph R. Greenson, Clinical Professor of Psychiatry at UCLA School of Medicine, has made an intensive study of boredom, and finds that it "is not a sickness, but it is also not a wellness. It is a signal, an indication that the conscious ego has lost contact with the deeper levels and structures of the mind." It is described as a state of dissatisfaction—a sense of emptiness, frustration and restlessness. A typical statement of a bored person is cited: "I can't get with it, I am nowhere, I am out of it." This language, notes Dr. Greenson, clearly indicates that the person is out of touch with his feelings and emotions.

2. False. As one authority observed in summing up the findings of a study on the subject: "There are people who pride themselves on the fact that they are 'never bored.' The statement is pure bravado, and easily punctured. It can be stated as a clinical fact that the person who is 'never bored' doesn't exist." It's pointed out, however, that boredom varies from individual to individual, and some people are capable of snapping out of it more quickly and easily than others.

3. True—because when boredom becomes sufficiently acute, people are tempted to do almost anything to escape it. For example, a recent study of high school students in connection with a drug-education program showed that "in describing their reasons for drug abuse, a considerable majority attributed their use of drugs to boredom." And a Stanford University survey of school dropouts showed that more than 40 percent left "to escape the boredom and frustration of academic life."

4. False. As one specialist has found after psychiatric research of the various aspects of boredom, "Boredom also may serve as an adaptive function, particularly if it is recognized as boredom and is only temporary. It is a kind of local anesthetic, dulling the pain in a particularly sensitive psychic or emotional area while natural healing takes place." It's further observed that sometimes boredom may also serve as a period of germination before the birth of creative ideas.

5. False—as evidenced by the findings of a university study which showed that sensitive and cultured people are actually more immune to boredom than others. One reason for this is that they have keener self-awareness, clearer insight into their innermost feelings and desires. This makes them much less subject to common boredom arising from a restless desire to do something without knowing what. It's observed, however, that though persons of greater sensitivity are less often bored, they are more likely to be depressed.

6. True. There are (1) many people who bore us to tears. The same is true of (2) circumstances and situations—monotonous repetitive work, for example. But most of the time, when people are bored, (3) the boredom stems from within. More often than not, boredom is temporary and is relieved by a change of pace or scene, or indulging in a favored kind of recreation. But if your boredom is chronic, then you should think of it as a symptom, a signal that is trying to tell you that you need to modify your life-style to provide better and more satisfying expression for your real feelings.

Now—for the first time—an international Jet-Setter reveals the "inside" story:

How The Beautiful People Get Rid Of Both Cellulite And Ordinary Fat—Without Dieting!

Those stunning, sleekly-slim couples who grace the pages of the fashion magazines and society columns...who spend each new Season in New York and Cannes and Saint Moritz and Saint Tropez...who live surrounded by a horde of admirers and photographers must remain youthful and slim right up to 50...60...70!

And, if you were to ask them what they do to maintain their Beautiful People Bodies, the answer would always be the same: "I don't do ANYTHING; I don't diet!"

That's right! The Beautiful People Don't Diet! They enjoy the finest food in the world and yet the needle on the scale barely moves! How do they do it?

For the first time, Luciana Avedon (former Princess Pignatelli and now the wife of the European cosmetics executive, Burt S. Avedon) reveals the "BEAUTIFUL PEOPLE MIRACLE FORMULA" responsible for all those lusciously svelte figures on the society pages. How they NEVER go on fad diets, NEVER take dangerous amphetamines, diuretics or diet pills, and NEVER give up their favorite foods either! How they simply go right on eating the foods they like—but in a special way that keeps them always fashionably slim, without their having to jump on and off the diet merry-go-round.

One California socialite says: "I always keep my weight fluctuation within two pounds. It's bad for the face when you go up and down."

Another stunning fashion leader says: "I weighed more at age 25 than I do now." (She's now 37!)

Another says: "Sitting down to nothing but clear soup or health food depresses me; it makes me feel like an invalid."

But yet they know how to splurge like this without incurring disaster on the scales! They get their food kicks—constantly—but their figures never show it!

They eat the finest food in the world (even the delicacies and "tempters" you'd be horrified to touch), but they do it in a way that never lets them put on more weight than they can simply "peel off" in a few days any time they decide to!

(In fact, these Beautiful People secrets of delicious figure-maintenance are so powerful that, when one young, overweight model was introduced to just one of them, she lost 22 pounds in one month and stayed at that weight from then on! And another young girl, when shown how, lost 20 "impossible" pounds in two short months, even though not a single meal demanded special preparation!)

So, From Now On, Forget About Debilitating Diets! The Beautiful People Don't Use Them—Why Should You?

Once again, let us emphasize that the Beautiful People think dieting is a "bore." They eat well—very well—and they are not fat! They wouldn't think of doing without their favorite foods and the needle on the scale barely changes!

Why then shouldn't you follow their plan and lose weight—pounds and pounds and pounds of it! The process is the same, even if you start with a 50 pound handicap. And you do it all by yourself (without "fat" doctors, or the group therapy approach of diet clubs.) And, yet, (to repeat once again) you do not "sacrifice" the foods you love for a single minute!

Yes, you can still enjoy parties, restaurants, business lunches or dinners, and "super-relaxed" vacations. You can eat all the foods you usually do, and still find the pounds and inches gradually, but permanently, melting off!

ABOUT THE AUTHORS:

Roman-born Luciana Avedon, the former Princess Pignatelli, was educated in Switzerland. Her husband, Burt S. Avedon, is Director of European operations for Eve of Roma, an internationally famous cosmetics firm. She has been a fashion designer and coordinator, and is currently a beauty consultant. Her first book, The Beautiful People's Beauty Book, was a best-selling title here and abroad.

Listen, As The Beautiful People Tell You How To:

Condition yourself by developing your own built-in "Fat Radar" so that the minute your weight starts to shoot up, you can shoot it down!

Take off fat while it's still "soft"...before the body has had a chance to make it part of the muscle structure. Before it marbelizes, as in a fat steak, and becomes even harder to lose!

Make the natural diuretic power of food even MORE effective, so that accumulated tissue water drains out of your body faster and you NEVER get that bloated look!

Lose tons of weight—all in the right places—and NEVER get "scrawny" looking in the face. Actually melt unwanted pounds right off your body, and still retain that "youthful" bloom in your face the Beautiful People way!

PLUS...

How to be thin as a model, and still have the energy and stamina of a truck driver!

The Beautiful People's special "Secret Elimination Diet" that disintoxicates your system...drains out internal poisons...at exactly the same time that you are painlessly losing weight!

The Beautiful People "Easy-Diet Plan", a permanent part of your life, so that you continue to lose weight for as long as you wish, and yet NEVER feel deprived!

How to prevent your body from automatically "adjusting" to your first massive weight loss, so that it actually prevents you from taking off even more pounds.

What to do if you are a "sandwich fiend" and don't want to cut them out of your diet.

Why the Beautiful People make sure that they never lose more than 18 pounds at a time.

How they painlessly "retrain their nervous system so that they don't go on eating binges during an "anxiety attack."

Why the Beautiful People feel that American men are a "disaster...overweight, over-tobaccoed, over-alcoholed, and undersexed." And, what Beautiful People Males "over 30," do to retain their very special attractiveness.

Yes, The Beautiful People Have Been Looking Fabulous For Years THIS Way. Now You'll Learn How, WITHOUT RISKING A PENNY!

You are just as capable of keeping younger, prettier, slimmer and more attractive as any of the Beautiful People you'll read about in this book. And once you know their "secrets", you'll be well on your way to joining the ranks of all the Beautiful People all over the world, who realize that being beautiful also means being slender

SPECIAL ADDED BONUS:

How The Beautiful People "Smooth Away" Ugly Cellulite, The EASY Way!

Yes, while these Beautiful People are incredibly slim and supple at all ages—actually glowing with good health—they have also learned how to FREE themselves of ugly and distorting CELLULITE! (Cellulite, as you may know, is "orange peel fat"—the hard lumps of hideous fat that stick to the back of the thighs, knees, arms, buttocks and back. The same ripply fat pockets that cause desperation and unhappiness in thousands of American women who cannot walk down a beach, or up to a husband or lover, without feeling unattractive or just plain ugly!)

This is not ordinary fat, by any means. And it can't be gotten rid of by ordinary means. Instead, it's bumpy, hard lumps of toxic material—really a gel-like substance—that become trapped in bubbly, immovable pockets just beneath the skin. It's found in pencil-slim models and housewives alike. In fact, it's reputed to disfigure almost 90% of the women in the world! But not the Beautiful People! Why?

BECAUSE OF THESE TWO SIMPLE "CELLULITE CHASERS" THAT YOU CAN USE YOURSELF RIGHT IN YOUR OWN HOME, STARTING IN JUST A FEW MINUTES A DAY!

No, you don't need fancy doctors, or expensive health spas to be able to bid farewell to these unsightly globules. You can achieve spectacular results simply by following these two simple steps beginning on Page 26:

Second, follow the unique Anti-Cellulite-Food Program that will actually help your natural circulatory system to rid your body of annoying substances BEFORE they can build up and become IMMOVABLE CHUNKS OF FAT!

Both these Cellulite Fighters are yours, as just one section of this great Beautiful People Over-All Body Beauty Plan...yours to read from cover to cover, entirely at our risk!

THE WORLD'S FASTEST, MOST SUCCESSFUL BODY SHAPER EVER!!!

DOING JUST ONE FIVE MINUTE EXERCISE — TWICE DAILY — AND DIDN'T EVEN HAVE TO GIVE UP EATING THE FOODS I LOVE — DID IT!

"I never thought it would happen to me...but it did. I got fat.

"As a former fashion model, I'd always taken pretty good care of myself because if I didn't look good, I didn't work. But when I got married, and didn't need a job, it was a different story.

"For about 5 years, I neglected my body and ended up a mess. And worst of all, I looked about 10 years older than I really was. So I decided that it was time to do something drastic. I tried a few of those 'effortless exercisers,' but, of course, they didn't do a thing.

"Then I heard about Joe Weider's "5" Minute Body-Shaper Plan. After just 21 days on the plan, my weight dropped from 143 lbs. to 129. And my waist went from a sloppy 31" to a nice, trim 25", just about what it was when I was modeling. I can't thank the Weider 5-Minute Slimming Plan enough. It gave me back my youth." ALETA HOPKINS

WHAT IS THIS INGENIOUS PLAN?

The Weider "5" Minute Body Shaper plan is based on doing ONE CONTINUOUS RHYTHMIC CO-ORDINATED EXERCISE while still eating the foods you like. That's all you do! This one five-minute exercise is designed to attack the Waist and Hips (where fat accumulates quickest, giving your body a flabby, weak and distorted look) — as well as burn off excess body fat fast by speeding up your metabolism, burning up stored calories and releasing excess water — while still reshaping your chest, abdomen, firming up your legs and arms — your total body!

It's safer than strenuous workouts, beats the time consumption and dangers of gym workouts . . . or any other vigorous sport.

WHAT COMES OFF IN 14 DAYS?

Individual results vary, but during an average 14 day period, you can expect to lose up to four inches from your waistline and up to ten pounds off your present weight. It strengthens your heart and lungs, increases stamina and endurance, improves your digestive function and general health. IT TOUGHENS YOU UP. For a '5-Minute Exerciser' — it sure does a lot!

WHAT SATISFIED CUSTOMERS SAY:

Results vary, depending on how much overweight each of our student is. Nevertheless, this is a sampling from the impressive letters we receive: Willie Ellis — "I lost three inches off my waist and nine pounds in seven days." Kent Christensen — "I lost 5½ inches off my waist and 20 pounds in 10 days." Marino Zoller, M.D. — "I lost 2 inches off my waist in 14 days." Michael Benedict — "I lost 6 inches off my waist and 22 pounds in 21 days." Ken Waller — "I lost 3 inches off my waist in 5 days."

WHAT THE EXPERTS SAY:

Medical Doctors, Chiropractors, Osteopaths, Athletic Coaches...agree its the most successful Waistline-Weight Reducer and Shaping-Up Plan ever invented.

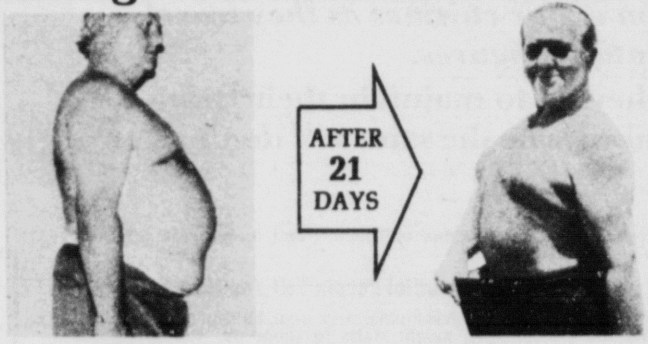

"Doctors have always known that exercise, done while lying on the back, virtually eliminates strains while slimming and reshaping the body. Yours is the finest Body Shaper Program on the market." RICHARD TYLER, D.C.

"Beats jogging and working out in gyms — and much safer. I lost 4½ inches off my waist in 14 days." JIM HANLEY, famous athletic coach.

"Based on sound physiological and medical knowledge, it burns off fat and shapes the body without strain to the heart or other organs. I lost 12 lbs. of excess weight using it." DR. ANITA SANTANGELO, Chiropractic Orthopedics

BIRD BATH

Ever hear of a bubble bath for birds? Well, retired Army man Bill Farquhar-Moody has set up a beauty parlor for our fine feathered friends in the back room of his house. Bubble baths are just one of the beauty treatments given to the favorite species of ornithophiles. Birds of all shapes and sizes come to Bill to have their beaks, nails and feathers clipped and trimmed. For a standard bird bath, Bill, who is 65, uses a "very soft toothbrush and special baby soap to wash the feathers." Parakeets and canaries take about 15 minutes for a complete treatment. Larger birds, of course, take longer.

What stretch of U.S. road has more accidents per mile than any other? Mayor David Cohen of Holmdel, N.J., says he thinks he has the champion—a 2.4-mile stretch of New Jersey 34 that had 95 accidents from January, 1970, to September, 1973, with six fatalities. In 1973, there were 17 accidents, three fatalities. This, says Mayor Cohen, ranks it right up there with the "Killer Highways" listed by T. K. Irwin in FAMILY WEEKLY ("These May Be America's Deadliest Highways," December 2, 1973). Mayor Cohen blames the bad surface—potholes on the shoulders that cause the driver to lose control. So far, no action from the State Department of Transportation, but the Mayor keeps trying. Any challengers to Mayor Cohen's tragic "champion"?

JOAN COLLINS AS "MARILYN"
And now to sleep...

Marilyn Monroe, more of a legend since her death than during her lifetime, is now the subject of a new play titled, appropriately enough, "Legend." British actress Joan Collins, normally a brunette, is shown here with the blonde wig she'll wear for the part. "But it will take me more than a wig and a talk with her makeup man to understand Marilyn," admits Miss Collins, 37, who knew Marilyn "only slightly" in the fifties when both were under contract to 20th Century-Fox. The London play dramatizes the last four days in Marilyn's life, coming to a climax with a 25-minute soliloquy as the actress slowly succumbs to an overdose of sleeping pills. The audience, hopefully, will remain awake.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

HAIR LINES

My wife has a rat in her hair.
I'm sorry to give you a scare,
But it isn't a rat that will scurry,
Which means you've no reason to worry.

My wife has her hair in a bun,
Which no one would think would be fun.
However it isn't to eat,
It's a hairdo that's rolled-up and neat.

In fact it's the rat that I mention,
And thereby, I think, got attention,

Her coiffure is considered so chic,
And people don't point and then shriek.

My youngest child wanted to know the truth about the tooth fairy. He wanted to believe, but friends have told him different. After he asked me time after time, I felt compelled to tell the truth, so I said, "Yes, son, I am the tooth fairy. I am the one who puts the money under the pillow."
